

September
Seventh
1926.

Major General W. Bethune Lindsay, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O.,
Toronto Club,
Toronto, Ont.

My dear Bill:

I have just returned to Montreal from spending the Summer at York Harbor, Maine, and a short trip to Nova Scotia.

I wondered if you were not in Canada as I received a letter, mailed in Strathroy, addressed to you in my care - that was about three weeks ago, and the letter I forwarded to the Reform Club in England. I shall look forward to seeing you when you return East in October.

There is very little news that I can give you. We are all well and as yet are living at the Ritz Carlton. It is most unsatisfactory and I am hoping to get a house very shortly. Things with me go on in very much the same old way.

There is little use in my making any comment on business conditions in Canada as you will see them for yourself in your trip across the Continent, but business is better both wholesale and retail. Railway traffic has enormously increased, all of which indicates that business is better in every way. The trouble with most of us is to find a way in which we may profit personally by the betterment of business.