

A Christmas Message from Queen's.

To all her sons now engaged in the fight for freedom, justice and peace, Queen's sends her cordial Christmas greetings.

Your noble service and self-sacrifice on the field, in the trenches, in hospital wards and elsewhere, call forth our fervent gratitude and admiration.

You are fighting our battle and we are with you in spirit, as you add fresh lustre to the fame of your Alma Mater.

As the old year passes, so may there pass away much of the sorrow that it has brought to many hearts. As the New Year comes, may it bring fresh courage and bright hope, with assurance that through the tragic days of war we pass to righteous triumph and enduring peace.

To each one of you we wish a blessed Christmas and a very good New Year; and we pray that, by the mercy of God, we may have the joy of welcoming you home at the victorious close of the campaign.
