One letter, after giving a vivid description of the manner in which the war is entering into the domestic life of England, said: "Truly it can never said that the British Empire planned this war. So I would humbly ask every member of our splendid board to do his utmost to urge along men and training, even the it is a great sacrifice, assuring you that it is very vital, as without a doubt the German and his resources have been badly underestimated by the general public and the cry that comes back from the trenches every time one of our brave heroes is laid out is Never mind, l am glad, but write home and tell them to send somebody's brother to take my place, and also shells."

PAID LAST RESPECTS TO LUSITANIA VICTIM

Funeral of Late A. R. Clarke Largely Attended Yesterday.

Yesterday the remains of the late A. R. Clarke, who died in England on June 20 as a result of the torpedoing of the Lusitania, were laid to rest in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. The funeral was largely attended. The Rev. Dr. Aikens, who read the funeral service, paid fitting tribute to his memory. Dr. Aikens dwelt particu-larly on the character of Mr. Clarke "It was given to our late friend to fill a large and useful place in the community. The recruiting campaign continues to be distinguished by the number of Britsh army veterans who are offering their services. These men have again "smelled the battle from afar." and their experience is likely to prove extremely useful in connection with the new battalions which are being raised. Capt. Keith, who is in charge of the recruiting for the 9th Mississauga Horse, has a long list of ex-soldiers who have enlisted with that regiment who have enlisted with that regiment in the last two days. One of the most recent was a hardy-looking veteran, who stated that he joined the 16th Lancers as a drummer in 1886 at a time when the sergeant-major of that famous regiment was a young man, who has since won distinction in many wars and is now known as
