FORTY DEFAULTERS

TAKEN IN ONE DAY

A surprise visit by the Dominion police yesterday to the Thomas Employment Agency, 66 Church street, proved both interesting and successful. Four military defaulters were arrested inside the agency office, but none were Canadian. Three of them were Austrians and one Russian. All four were turned over to the civil police for custody. One of them had just arrived from Winnipeg, which city he had left without first notifying the authorities of his intention to travel. The Dominion police state that the women relatives of the men in the various overseas battalions are in special auxiliary for the purpose of furnishing the police with information regarding men they suspect of being Military Service Act defaulters. Capt. Tom Flanagan, chief of Dominion police for this district, declares that in view of the importance of the war operations now in progress overseas the women can do more to bring about victory by sending in information to his department than by knitting socks.

Word has been received from Ottawa, that Sir Sam Hughes has recommended, thru the department of justice, that a lenient attitude be taken by the Dominion police in Toronto in regard to the refusal of W. J. Cook, who had to do with the approaching of Sir Sam Hughes as a military defaulter while at the Union Station. It is understood that in view of this, it is understood that he is to be reinstated on the force.

During the past 24 hours the Dominion police have arrested 40 Military Service Act defaulters in central and western Ontario. They were arrested at the following cities and towns: Sault Ste. Marie, 11; North Bay, 7; Windsor, 4; Toronto, 5; Sarnia, 2; London, 2; Hamilton, 2; Blind River, 2; Niagara Falls, 1.

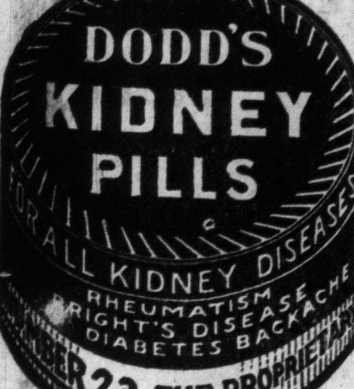

A total of 2,454 investigations into cases of alleged defaulters were made by the Dominion police in the same 24-hour period. One thousand and thirty of these investigations were made in the City of Kingston. The remainder were made in other parts of the province.

LIEUT. J. D. KELLEY

ALREADY WITH WOUNDED

Word was received in Toronto yesterday that Lieut. John Douglas Kelley, who went to France from England a few weeks ago with a battery of the Royal Field Artillery, has already been in action and is now in hospital at Rouen, suffering from gas poisoning. His mother, Mrs. C. K. Kelley of Walmer road, has called for further particulars. Lieut. Kelley is a graduate of Trinity College. Prior to going overseas, with a unit from the C.O.T.C., for an imperial army commission, he was attached to the 6th (University) Battery, A.C. He was with the first Canadian contingent, and was twice wounded.

PLAYS, PICTURES AND MUSIC

The Robins Players.

George V. Hobart, author of "Experience" and "The Follies," has been called upon by Edward H. Robins to supply the bill for the third week of the Robins Players' fourth season at the Royal Alexandra, commencing next Monday evening, with "What's Your Husband Doing?" the present season's reigning farce comedy hit.

This play is built for laughing purposes only, and it has succeeded in its self-appointed mission in being proven by the long and successful run it enjoyed at the 39th Street Theatre, New York. The production to be given by the Robins Players will be the first presentation on any stage in Canada, and the scenic embellishment will be the equal of the New York effort.

"Rambler Rose."

"No announcement in the course of the theatrical season is more welcome each year than that of the coming of Julia Sanderson and Joseph Cawthorn. Therefore the news of the coming engagement of this popular pair at the Princess Theatre for one week, beginning Monday evening, will be eagerly received by their large and loyal following here. Miss Sanderson and Mr. Cawthorn will be seen here in the new musical play in which for many months past they have been appearing at the Empire Theatre in New York. The new vehicle is called "Rambler Rose," and has a score by Victor Jacoby, recalled agreeably for his exquisites "Syll," the musical comedy in which Miss Sanderson and Mr. Cawthorn were seen last season. The Charles Frohman Company has surrounded Miss Sanderson and Mr. Cawthorn with splendid supporting company, including Ada Meade, Jean Newcombe, John Goldsworthy, Stewart Baird, George Mack, W. H. Bentley, Jane Anderson, Doris Trevelyan, Ethel Boyd. Needless to say, there is a large and extremely attractive chorus.

Rea Martin in "The Brat."

There is no city in Canada that will do so much for an artist if he like her as will Toronto, and this is being fully borne out by the manner in which the amateur theatre has accepted that brilliant little Rea Martin was to come back here to the Grand Opera House for a return engagement in the Morocco comedy success, "The Brat." Miss Martin is a born comedienne, and her work in the Maude Fulton comedy was sparkling and bright, and she made a host of friends in this city. She will be supported by the same cast seen here on the previous visit, not one change having been made since the company left New York.

At Shea's Next Week.

"On the High Seas," Langdon McCormick's greatest scenic spectacle, will headline the bill at Shea's Theatre next week. Mr. McCormick was the originator and producer of "The Forest Fire," which was the sensation of this week's bill, and "On the High Seas" is even a greater spectacle, dealing as it does with the submarine warfare now engaged in by the allies and Germany. Lillian Fitzgerald will make her initial appearance in a repertoire of exclusive songs by Clarence Senna, Watson and Delaney, supported by a company of 12 talented musicians, who present the rural novelty, "Rubeville." Emma Stevens in a bright novelty offering, while "Woof" and Stewart have a comedy sketch called "In Two Flats." Eddie Dowling, the international comedian; Jack and Cora Williams, versatile entertainers, and the British Gazette are also on the bill.

Loew's Theatre.

Charles Ray's latest picture, "The Family Skeleton," heads this week's offerings at the Loew's Theatre. The vaudeville bill, which will be headed by a miniature musical extravaganza, "Sweetheart," written by the Loew's, will also include Billy S. Hall and Players, in "The Black Sheep," Bob Hall, the extemporaneous boy; Herman Van and his "Soliloquy in Nonsense"; Laurie Ordway, English comedienne; Master Paul and Georgia Hall, offering an artistic melange of music and song; and Delia Loew's comedy and Universal topic pictures complete the bill.

The Hippodrome Bill.

"Inspiration," a comedy in miniature with a cast of clever boys and girls, will headline the bill at the Hippodrome next week, when they will present a new and complete series of songs and dance novelties. The Three Kashner Girls have a singing offering that embraces both popular and classical selections. "The Blue Bird" is a new and complete series of songs and dance novelties. The three Kashner Girls have a singing offering that embraces both popular and classical selections. "The Blue Bird" is a new and complete series of songs and dance novelties. The three Kashner Girls have a singing offering that embraces both popular and classical selections.

Dan Coleman.

Dan Coleman, the Emerald Isle comedian and star of the Harry Hastings' Big Show, which is billed for the Gayety Theatre, is putting on a year one of the best and classiest shows ever witnessed. Dan's songs are one of the features, among which may be mentioned his "I'll Follow You" and his big finale number, "Are You an American?" Mr. Coleman and Thos. S. Allen are responsible for most of the music used in this production.

City Belles Coming.

The City Belles come to the Star Theatre on Monday for an engagement of one week and it will be found a fast moving burlesque show, which embodies, in addition to the customary burlesque qualities, many innovations and novel features. The chorus is one which looks well and which possesses the highest sort of vocal and theatrical talents. The musical program is of the highest quality, the costumes marked by originality of design, the scenic effects of a high order, and everything in fact marks a production of the highest type.

Mae Marsh Next Week.

It is always with a great deal of satisfaction that Mae Marsh, the greatest motion picture star, is announced, but on this occasion, when she will appear in such an unusual drama as "The Face in the Dark," the anticipation of what Regent patrons will enjoy adds materially to the pleasure of the announcement. The story deals with a mystery in the life of a former secret service man gets on the job. Today Mae Kennedy is seen for the last time in "The Danger Game," a play of rare comedy. For the week of April 29 a story depicting a page in the history of the nihilist faction of Russia will be shown. It is entitled "The Suspect," and has for its star Anita Stewart.

It would be difficult to find, in the whole range of drama and opera, a place that has won more signal renown than "La Tosca," which is Pauline Frederick's newest Paramount picture, being shown at the Allen for the last times today. The possibilities of "La Tosca" as a screen drama, can hardly be overestimated. It is as perfectly adapted to the film as it had been written for them, and Miss Frederick, as the beautiful Italian singer, leaves nothing to be desired in her magnificent interpretation.

"Alimony" at Strand.

Today will be the last day for witnessing "Alimony," the great six-act first national photodrama, with Josephine Whittell and Lois Wilson, at the Strand Theatre. Josephine Whittell, in the part of the adventures, who extorts huge sums of money from rich men, does magnificent work for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next, the last attraction will be "Vengeance is Mine," a strongly dramatic photoplay, with Mrs. Vernon Castle in the leading role.

For the first half of next week.

the feature at the Madison Theatre will be Lois Weber's new production, "The Price of the Night," starring Josephine Whittell and Lois Wilson. It is a picture that reaches out to all and clutches one's very heartstrings.

"Seven Days' Leave."

The keenest public interest awaits the presentation here at the Grand Opera House of a complete scenic production of "Seven Days' Leave." The seat sale for the local engagement opens Monday morning.

YOUNG MAN KILLED BY FREIGHT TRAIN

When he jumped in front of an approaching passenger train at the corner of Dupont and Bathurst streets at 5.24 yesterday evening, Carl Woodrow, aged 18, of 724 Dufferin street, was instantly killed. The engine of the freight train and four cars passed over his body.

According to the police, Woodrow and Cecil Gadsby, 551 Dupont street, were standing on the north track waiting for the arrival of the train which carries munition workers from that point to Leaside factories, when Woodrow, noticing the approaching train, stepped off the north track directly in the path of a freight train traveling at a high rate of speed.
