INFLUENCE OF ROYALTY ON SOCIETY

Important News of a Week In Social Circles In London

RICH BRIDE'S HOME

Seaford House Being Garnished For Its New Occupant, Lady Howard de Walden—Canadians on Visit to England and Continent

(Times' Special Correspondence)

London, March 2.—There is a hall in our gaities just at present, attributable to various causes. Several hosts refrain from entertaining in Lent, but their number is quite small. The majority are waiting to "see which way the cat jumps" in other words, to try to catch an inkling of the social atmosphere that is to prevail during what is practically the first season of the present reign, before making final preparations for their functions.

You have heard before this that things are expected to be different, and in a few weeks' time, their "Majesties' whims, which have a strong moral influence on the inner circle of society, will be known definitely. So far, everything points to the fact that social functions will be carried out on more formal lines than before. Everything is to be earlier, in the first place.

It seems curious that the doings of a large number of people should depend upon the hour that two of them dine! Yet this is so. The dinner hour of King George and Queen Mary is an hour earlier than was that of the late King Edward, and so, society dines an hour earlier, starts dancing an hour earlier and so forth.

The lord chamberlain's regulations about the court dresses, which have caused so much ill-concealed protest among some of the younger members of society, albeit quite an unnecessary one. Because the rule ran that the train was to be so many inches on the ground behind its fair wearer and so many inches wide at the extremity, they rushed to the conclusion that this meant wide skirts. Of course, anything of the nature of an "unbecomingly" skirt at court would not be allowed, but no wise maiden, be she ever so mode-loving, would indulge in such an absurdity, for without straining her intellect she can see at once that to make several curtains in such a skirt would mean ignominious disaster, probably landing her sprawling in front of Their Majesties' feet.

All these regulations are only what most people expected, but there are persistent rumors going the rounds of Mayfair drawing-rooms which have set people wondering just what rules will be laid down for the admission of people whose financial affairs are not running smoothly. One dachshund was excluded from the courts during the last reign, but it is said that she will attend one this season.

Mrs. Cecil Bingham's dance, which she gave in her white dress trimmed with blue, was a great success. Two people who are most rarely seen at such a function were present. One was Mrs. Arthur Sassoon, who often entertained King Edward, and the other, the sixty-year-old Countess of Salisbury, who has been since the autumn. A daughter of the tenth holder of the Grey-Scott baronetcy, she married in 1873 the sixth Lord Selkirk, the son of that Lord Selkirk whose work in settling Scotch families in the Red River District, formed such an interesting chapter in the history of Manitoba, and after whom the province was named. It was his example which inspired the present Duke of Sutherland with the plan of settling Highland families in Canada.

About Canadians
Recently in St. Matthew's church, St. Petersburg Place, London, the marriage of Robert Simpson Holman, A. R. S. M., son of Charles Smith Holman of Toronto, to Miss Marjorie Antoinette Carlotta Wharton, second daughter of the late Captain H. Wharton, R.N., of Scarborough, and Mrs. Wharton, took place. The bride wore a dress of soft ivory satin richly embroidered with silk and pearls and a spray of orange blossoms was worn in front of her hair. The bridegroom wore a tuxedo with a white bow tie and a boutonniere of orange blossoms and he carried a bouquet of white blossoms which was a jeweled pendant, were the bride's gifts. The best man was A. G. Bostford, brother of the bridegroom. After the ceremony, Mrs. Wharton held a reception at her house in Leinster Square. The honeymoon is being spent in Bournemouth.

Wonderful Presents of Jewels
Much sweeping and garnishing is going on at Seaford House, the town residence of Lord Howard de Walden, who sprang such a surprise on us all last week by getting married the day before the date fixed. A great deal of the furniture is being removed, and some of a different style being taken in to replace it, which seems to point to the fact that the late Lady Howard de Walden has definite ideas of her own on the subject of interior decoration. Undoubtedly she has, for she comes of a most artistic family.

It also means, which is of more consequence to us, that Seaford House will once more become a center of hospitality. Its future chateaux is a most interesting personality and we are all agog to see how she "pans out." She has everything to help her to be most successful; beauty, wealth, originality and brains, so we expect much of her.

I hear that the value of the jewels among her wedding gifts, most of which were presented to her by her husband, runs well into six figures, and required the undivided attention of two detectives day and night while they were on show at her mother's house before the wedding. The late Lady Ludlow, Lord Howard's mother, was a most successful jeweler.

After a long and painful illness, the death of John Torrance Vaneck, son of the late Thompson Vaneck of Montreal, took place at his villa at Cannes on February 22. A cousin of Eliot Galt, of Montreal, and second cousin of the present Lord Huntingfield, Mr. Vaneck spent much of his time at his Paris residence, and took great interest in his racing stud. When in England he lived at his ancestral home, having for neighbors many Canadian financial men. He married twice; in 1889 Amy, daughter of Edward Hyatt of Baltimore, and in 1902 Sarah, daughter of Henry D. Brookman of Brooklyn, and widow of P. B. Miles of New York, who died in 1908. The interment will be in Greenwood cemetery, New York.

The Countess of Warwick, who has given two scholarships prizes of the annual value of $30 to be competed for by the Peebles, Scotland, schoolboys, has promised a third prize of the same annual value to the Peebles school board. The prizes are to be known as the "John Hope" prizes in memory of the late John Hope of Montreal, who was a native of Peebles.

Mrs. Labatt of Ottawa and London, Ontario, who has been spending a three-months' holiday in Great Britain and the continent, will return soon to Canada.

Mrs. A. C. Pratt, of Toronto, wife of the Ontario legislator, who had come to Europe for her health, accompanied by Mrs. B. B. Tucker of Morristown, has been staying at the Russell Hotel. She has now gone to Egypt and will spend some time in Cairo; afterwards going for a trip to the Nile. Other Canadians enjoying the beneficent air of the land of the Pharaohs, are Mr. and Mrs. Scott and Miss Scott of Montreal, who have been in London for some time, left this week for Monte Carlo.

Soap improves with keeping, and it will be found economical to purchase it in large quantities. Before storing it, however, the bars should be cut up into convenient sizes, for this is easily done when the soap is soft and new, but not when it has become dry and hard. The easiest plan is to cut it with a piece of wire or a bit of twine, in the same way as grocers cut cheese.

MARRIAGE AND LONG LIFE
Matrimony is the greatest aid to longevity is the conclusion advanced by Dr. Jacques Bertillon. His contention is based on a world-wide census. A married man or woman has three times the chance of a long life possessed by a bachelor or a spinster. The doctor shows that the mortality among widowers is greater than the average among married men, and recommends them to look out for a new partner. This is his advice to young men: "Marry; you will do well, even from a selfish standpoint. But watch carefully over your wife's health, as even from this egotistical point of view her loss will be a terrible misfortune, for your life depends in a measure on hers."

The really best method of cleaning mirrors and windows is to rub them with a paste of whiting and water. When this dries polish with dry cloths and remove the powder. A little alcohol in cold water also gives a brilliant polish. Soap-suds should never be used.

A new timepiece actually calls out the hour, half hour and quarters, day and night, unless shut off, and will tell you the time to the minute any hour of the night if you press a little button at your bedside.
