CASE OF TWO BOYS DEMANDS ATTENTION

Practically Homeless, Living on Charity of Neighbors, While Parents Are Not to Be Found

Some weeks ago the Times published an article in connection with a family named Keating, declared living in destitute circumstances in the vicinity of Brookville, about three miles out from the city on the line of the I. C. R. The family consisted of father, mother and two small boys. The father had been employed with a firm in the city, but just before the matter was brought to the attention of the public had left for parts unknown, leaving the family practically destitute.

The authorities intervened and the two children were put in St. Patrick's Industrial Home at Silver Falls. They stayed there until last week when they left the home and wandered back to Brookville. Since then they have been living on what the neighbors give them and have been sleeping in barns.

James Connell of Brookville called at the Times office yesterday and said that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Keating was in Brookville, nor could they be found, and that the two boys were practically homeless. He said the boys were too small to do any work and were running around getting a bite here and there and were a source of annoyance to the people. Enquiries, he said, were being made to the whereabouts of the parents but without avail.

It is declared too bad that the two youngsters must suffer and it is to be hoped that the authorities will again look after them and provide them with a home.

Mr. O'Connell says that the two Keating boys have another boy with them, who has been in the home at Silver Falls for some years.

There is a list of attractive amusements, ensuring a good outing.

New Developments in the Rockwood Park Case Taken to Make it Certain That William Taylor Committed Suicide

Coroner Berryman has not yet decided whether or not he will hold an inquest into the death of William Taylor, who was found drowned in Lily Lake by Policeman McLeod yesterday afternoon. He is looking into the matter. It is now pretty well assumed that Taylor had contemplated drowning himself in the lake and that he was interrupted by the approach of the policeman, for on a small piece of paper which was found in his pocket were scrawled the words "Grapple at Lily Lake, William."

It is now said that when the mounted policeman came upon him in the dark, he pulled off his coat and vest and shouted "I have got to leave this world tonight, anyway, so shoot and make a good job of it, but look out for I am going to knife you." After saying this he made a lunge at the policeman and succeeded in cutting him in the leg. The horse took fright and jumped away but the man still followed, fighting all the time. The policeman tried to get him into the light so that he could see what he was doing, but the man sprang into the woods and disappeared. McLeod tied the horse to a tree and went back to look for him but failed to find any trace of him. He then went through the woods. He was found in about four or five feet of water lying face downwards and with arms outstretched under him. The police do not believe the story that this man was seen wandering around the park all week for he was known to have been in town a couple of days before his death. A small carpenter's rule was found in one of the pockets.

NEW BRUNSWICK COULD FIND AN OPPORTUNITY HERE

Edward Smith, Deeply Interested in Reclaiming of the Man in Hard Luck, is in St. John Today

Edward Smith, of Bewley, England, who was in St. John last year, and who is greatly interested in the Adult School movement to reclaim men, was a welcome caller at the Times office this morning. Smith is benevolently situated in western Nova Scotia with Rev. Mr. Thackeray of Newfoundland. They went about place to place, and Mr. Smith delivered several addresses at the Adult School movement. He will leave tonight for Quebec, en route home to England.

To the Times Mr. Smith said he had been very much impressed with the potentiality of Nova Scotia and the splendid opportunities it offered to Englishmen, who had a little means and desired to establish a home. He was aware there were very many such people who would do well in these provinces, once they were settled here.

Mr. Smith added that he had been a bit disappointed that the overseas premiers did not take more kindly to Sir Edward Grey's suggestion about the unemployed of Britain. There were many men in the old country who were unemployed and unemployable, and they were being sifted out and divided into classes according to their capacity. Mr. Smith thinks Canada could absorb a large number who would become valuable citizens if a proper system of locating and starting them were devised. He told of five men who once were what are termed "public house crawlers" in an English city who are now owners of homes in the United States. They got away from the old life and the old companions and made good.

He thought it ought to be possible to establish in Canada, or in each province, under government auspices, a large farm where selected men could come and get a start.

Two preparatory farms in England, to which Mr. Smith referred, took men of the almost hopeless type, and a large percentage of them turned out all right. Such men would do well in New Brunswick, and it would be worth while for the government here to make provision to receive them, get employment for them, or in some way give them a good start. There were great numbers of men who were not doing well in England who would, with a fair chance, make sturdy citizens of the British overseas.

Mr. Smith talks in a most interesting way of the splendid work of Adult Schools in reclaiming men ordinarily classed as down and out. He is personally engaged in this work, and to it devotes both time and money without stint.
