Believe Body of Man Found Was Sailor on Ship Nellie Eaton

MISFORTUNE IN BRITAIN

MAN'S BODY IS FOUND ON BEACH

Remains are Believed to be Those of George E. Smith.

BROUGHT TO CITY No Inquest is Planned, it was Stated This Morning.

The body of the man washed ashore near Chance Harbor last night and which was brought to St. John this morning has been identified, almost beyond a doubt, as George E. Smith of Ingham's Hill, Rockland, Me.

The victim was a member of the crew of the ill-fated schooner Nellie Eaton, which was wrecked on Nan Rock, one mile west from Chance Harbor light Tuesday night during the hurricane which was raging in the Bay of Fundy.

The body was washed up on the beach last night and picked up by residents of Chance Harbor, who have been diligently searching for the unfortunate victim.

Many View Body It was brought here this morning by Arthur Abbott in a motor boat named No. 615 which landed at the foot of South Wharf and the body was conveyed to Brennan's undertaking parlors in Main street.

When the body reached the undertaking parlors a search was made of the clothing to see if there was anything which would lead to identification. In one of his pockets was found a small card, which reads: This is to identify George E. Smith, Ingham's Hill, Rockland, Me., father of Captain Richard F. Smith of Rockland, Me.

There was another envelope with the name of George E. Smith appeared written on it. There was also a postcard addressed to James A. Collins, but apparently had not been finished by the sender, as the address alone was on it.

The body of the man had no tattoo marks, is five feet five inches in height, weighs about 145 pounds. Four teeth are missing on his upper jaw. He is and has blue eyes. He was wearing a dark grey sweater, khaki overalls, gunnery boots with canvas tops lacing up to the knees, a heavy grey sweater and a vest with a herringbone stripe. In addition to the papers found on the body, was a time check, which was attached to a key-ring. It bore the number 441. There was also an empty pay envelope, with No. 441 printed on it.

No Inquest Planned. The body was viewed this afternoon and from reports received prior to going to press it was announced that there would be no inquest.

Further Search The Times was in communication with N. C. Beading again today and was informed that at low tide this morning another search was made in hopes of finding the crew of the straggling members of the crew of the ill-fated vessel. Their search among the ledges and along the shore proved unavailing and when the tide started rising the party returned to their homes. They plan on making another search at low tide this evening. The tide is now completely submerged and the spars are the only evidence that another vessel has been last seen.
