

should be. Apathy on the part of the Officers, a total disregard of qualifications, and a decided lack of interest in the membership with non-attendance at the meetings, were distinctive features of some of the subordinates.

The Grand Commander arrested the Charter of one of the Subordinates for gross irregularities. The Committee on Grievances approved of the Grand Commander's action, but owing to some mitigating circumstances recommended that it be restored.

Sir Knight W. W. Van Winkle is again the author on Correspondence. Canada 1898, gets a pleasant and lengthy notice and Grand Master Macwatt's address noted and quoted from. He is complimentary to the writer of the Correspondence Report, and we tender our modest thanks. He dubs us a true Anglo-Saxon. Aye, Frater Van Winkle, and we are Canadian and Briton to the backbone.

Sir Knight Van Winkle covers 115 pages in his report; he excerpts well and comments just about enough at times to give us a faint idea how he stands on some of the subjects or legislation under review. It is a pleasant review.
