OLD ORKNEY.

Most everybody knows the type of Whisky that OLD ORKNEY is. Perhaps the strongest feature is its absolute purity and wholesomeness. OLD ORKNEY takes its name from the Orkney Islands, to the North of Scotland, where this Whisky is distilled—the farthest north of any distillery. OLD ORKNEY is in popular demand with the entire world. Always buy "O. O." for home use.

"Certainly not," she declared. "He bought this dress for me, and I put it on to please him. After he sees it I will take it off."
"Don't do that," said he. "You are beautiful because of your quietness and simplicity, but now—his dress swelled—why, this is a breath from home. You're like my sister and the girls in Kentucky, only more wonderful."

"Am I?" she cried eagerly. "Am I like other girls? Do I really look as if I'd always worn clothes like these?"
"Born to them," said he. "Her warmth and unaffected frankness sufficed him. He stood out, trying to show the best of her gown, her brown hands fluttering tremulously as she talked."

"It's my first party dress, you know, and I'm as proud of it as Molly is of her rubber boots. It's too big in here and too small right there. That girl must have had a bad neck. But I don't care. I'll wear it as if it had been made for me, doesn't it?" And the shoes—then she looked at the shoes. "She held her skirt back, showing her two feet side by side, her dainty ankles slim and shapely in their stockings."

"Away with the check-rein!" By Fashion was planned!
O, let it be banished by Mercy's kind hand!
Away with the check-rein! Come, join the crusade!
Let kindness and justice our motto be made!
We ask these dumb creatures to toil hour by hour.
Yet if such invention deprives them of power.
Away with the check-rein! It robs them of ease.
A painful incubation, producing disease!
Give them the freedom their fall weight to throw.
Hard into the collar with head bending low!
Away with the check-rein! Such tortures be long.
Far back in the ages of darkness and wrong.
You ask for a reason why check-reins should go.
Then look at a horse that is crippled up so!
His head, held up high, seems to wear a proud guise.
But O, what untold looks forth from his eyes!
O shame on such needless custom, thrice shame!
We do not denounce it must share in the blame.
Away with the check-rein! By Fashion was planned!
O, let it be banished by Mercy's kind hand!

"About ten years."
"Then Miss Neola was born in the States?"
Gale shot a startled glance at the soldier before he answered in the affirmative. But Burrell was studying a picture of sunlight on the floor and did not observe him. A moment later he inquired hesitatingly:
"Is this your first marriage, Mr. Gale?"
When the other did not answer he looked up and quickly added:
"I beg your pardon, sir. What led me to ask was Miss Neola. She is so—well, she is such a remarkable girl."
Gale's face had undergone a change, but he answered quietly:
"I ain't never been married."

"When I took Aluna it wasn't the style, and neither one of us has thought much about it since."
"Oh, I see," exclaimed Burrell hurriedly. "I'll bring that list with me the first time I think about it." And, nodding amiably, he sauntered out. But his mind was in a whirl, and even after he had reached his quarters he found himself repeating:
"The other was bad enough. Poor little girl! Poor little girl!"
Gale likewise left the store and went into his house, the old look still strong in his eyes, to find Neola posing in her new regalia for Poleon's benefit. At sight of her he fell into a strange and unexpected humor and to their amazement commanded her roughly to take things off. Her looks and manner were harsh and at utter variance with any mood he had ever displayed before.

"You say the word, John, and I'll take some fellow along to help me, and we'll make this military post."
"Fah! I'm just supposing," said the trader.
"All right. It's up to you. How come I begin to keep down on this pay streak before it sees me coming? I'm going to put my friends in first and foremost and shut out these dress-makers completely. So long!"
Having given Neola's message to Poleon, the Businessman took up his business with the trader. It concerned the purchase of certain supplies that had been ordered from the military outfit, and when this was concluded he returned to the encounter of that morning.

"I don't want you to think I bungle everything in that manner," he said. "I don't want to work with you, and I want to be friends with you."
"By writing," said Gale.
"Nobody dislikes playing policeman more than I do, but it's a part of my duty, and I'll have to do it," continued the young man.

"I reckon you simply aim to keep peace, eh? You ain't looking for no party in particular?"
"Of course not—outside of certain notorious criminals who have escaped justice and worked north."
"Then there are a few that you want, eh?"

"Yes, certain old timers. The officers at every post have descriptions of a few such, and if they show up we will take them in and hold them till courts are established."

"If you've got these names and descriptions, I could help you," said the trader carelessly.
"Thank you. I'll bring up the list, and we'll go over it together. You must have been here a good while."
