Dr. Slockton—They will require a microopposition have appealed to them to take, these gentlemen at once declare that it was because the government were afraid, or because public feeling was against them.

The opposition papers had urged in the Kilam then took up the address and reviewed it at a considerable length. He bounds mith greenman we find the book of the state they looked at it through proper and wright of the store of the state o

The leider of the opposition had stated that the motion did not mean any want of confidence in the government Surery the hon member did not regard to business of legislation as child's play, no think it was the duty of hou members to act as of owns in a circus. Why should he venture to declare that a motion of this character did not involve a want of contidence in the government?

Dr. Stockton—Do you say if the motion is carried it means the deteat of the government?

Mr. Mitchell submitted a memorandum of greement with M. McDade for reporting and publishing debates, and on notion of Mr. Mitchell, seconded by Mr. Enumerson, the official reporter was assigned a seat on the floors of the house under the content of Mr. Speaker.

Hon. Mr. Blair-I say the amendmen the hon. member has moved means a wa-t of coundence in the government? Of course not mean that, but no government with particle of selt respect would remain office after such a motion as this was passes product of his desire to gain some signi-political advantage. He (Biair) therefore asked the members of the house, wh the facts upon which the hoo. member had based the conclusion at which he had arrived, to assent to the adoption of the address as it stood.

Hon. Mr. Blair said that he did not place himself second to any gentleman in the house in his regard for the manof the free institutions of this country.

It was not always those who professed the most who valued them the most highly.

When he attributed to the government a remisiness of duty in respect to the Carleton election he was travelling beyond the legitimate limits of criticism and basing The honorable member had stated that the late member for Carleton, Mr. Conneil, had resigned his seat before the legislature last year. He (Blair) was not aware of it, and now heard it for the first time. The government were not aware of it and that was when the resigning member took means to place his resignation in the hands of the government or of the proper officer; until that took place there could be no recogni-

He was pleased at the selections made by these counties, and he heartily welcomed both these gentlemen as members of the legis ature.

Mr Pitts—What about Carleton?

He was giant to welcome the house was better pleased that Dr Atkinson had been permitted to take his seat by pleased that there had been no opposition to Dr Atkinson, but he had advised the government. Hon Mr. Bair—That is a very impertinent not to put up any candidates against Dr. Stockton's ticket in S. John in 1890; and he would now say that he believed that It was not often that he made an inquiry that had so much point in it, and he (Blair) matter Dr. Stockton would now be found should endeavor to meet his aspirations by telling him at once. He could not but realize with respect to the Carleton election the
