Thirty-Fourth General Assembly of Canadian Presbyter ans Opened

The thirty-fourth meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly was formally opened in St. Andrew's Church last night, being the third to be held in this city. The four hundred delegates arrived during the day and more are expected this morning. The church was well filled when Rev Dr. Fletcher, the retiring moderator stepped to the platform and in a strong, clear voice offered prayer, after which the one hundredth Psalm was

THE NEW MODERATOR.

In the selection of a new moderator, the general assembly may be depended over its past deliberations, and to judge the candidate for sucession in the light of their qualifications. In no respect does Rev. Dr. Milligan fall short. In scholarship, in eloquence, in executive ability, in good works he is a worthy successor to all those upon whom the Presbyterians may be confident that, under Dr. Milligan's leaders that, under Dr. Milligan's leaders that an appointed.

A recently published volume of Carlyle's letters shows the philosopher worrying over his books while he was writing them. While at work on his "Cromwell" he wrote: "I have read a good many volumes about Cromwell and his time; I have a good many more to read. Whether a book will come of it or not, still more when such will come, are questions as yet. The pabulum the subject yields me is not very great; I find it far inferior in interest CARLYLE AND HIS WORKS.
