IN FLY TIME.

(Jules Verne Des Volgnes, in September Lippincott's)

A wealthy Jew had decaded to take a long-contemplated vacation. With an eye to business, he called his son to him ere his departure and instructed him, carefully and in detail how he wished his affairs conducted during his absence.

"Now, Isaac," said he, "I vont you to be very particular mit the suits. I have regulated the price this way: Every dot on the price-mark means a dollar. Von dot means von dollar; two dots, two dollars; three dots, three follars. Now, my boy, save the price-marks and take good care of the store, so your old father will be proud of you!"

And so the old Jew went away and tayed two weeks. Upon his return he sought his son eagerly.

Jersey Lily Is "Going Broke."

She Will Close Up Her Affairs In Swagger Style-Her Remarkable Career.

(New York Times).

From London and Newmarket comes the news, scarcely more than whispered as yet, that Mrs. Langtry is going broke.

The "Jersey Lily," of world-wide reputation has begun to droop. Her jewels have been augtioned off at Christie's—and for an English woman of pretentions that is the next thing to calling in the balliffs. About $30,000 was realized for gems supposed to be worth a king's ransom only a short time ago. Shades of Cleopatra!

The famous London house of Mrs. Langtry, where she took ner first step on the social toboggan of dropping a fragment of ice down the back of the Prince of Wales (now King Edward) is to be sold by auction next week by Mesers. Harold, Limited, at the Mart. Which, to the fashionable world, means that the Jersey Lily has re-arranged to close up her affairs in swagger style.

The place which is, in Tedworth a quare is associated with the most thilling incidents in the life of the most brilliant and successful adventures so that this generation has known. The midnight suppers in the beautiful dining room, panelled and beamed with old cak, gathered from all quarters of the globe, at one time was the wonder of two continents. The drawing rooms are paved with marble, and hung with tapestries weaned by wealth from the poverty-stricken princely houses of Europe. The bath room is lined with Forentine mosale.

From the shady springs of Saratoga, A. H. Hummel, the personal representative of Mrs. Langtry, so far as her affaired in the stories from London about the Jersey Lily being hand up. The auction sates of her town houses and her jewels are mysteries to him. "Mrs. Langtry is a rich woman thirough the land she owns in Caffornia and Fexae," saye Mr. Hummel.

"Her London auctions may mean simply that she is tiped of metropolitan life and means to quit it. She
