day he leaves for Montreal to see his brother. Capt. Smith was a lieutenant when he went to South Africa, but was soon after promoted to the rank of captain. He was in several battles, the principal of which was at Retief Nek, when 4,000 Boers under command of Gen. Prinsloo and several guns were captured. Sir Hector Macdonald was commanding the Black Watch then, having succeeded Gen. Wauchope, who fell at Magersfontein. The battle of Retief Nek lasted three days, and many were killed and wounded on both sides. Capt. Smith was shot through his left thigh, and was laid up for two months from the effects of the wound.

The president stated that he had received the following message: "Government, will grant five thousand dollars for exhibition this year. City members will see you Saturday," and submitted it to the meeting.

Messrs. Lantalum, Purdy and Robert-

Mr. Lantalum said that he supposed that the city members were to meet members of the Champlain committee as well as the exhibition directors, and that an arrangement could be amicably made to divide the money. Mr. Purdy agreed with Mr. Lantalum

19 January a committee waited on the government and asked for an assurance of the grant this year, and received a promise from the premier that an answer would be given early in February. A second delegation waited on the government and received another promise, but nothing definite had been received until the message from Mr. Robertson on Thursday last. Mr. Lantalum objected to what he called Col. Markham's attack on the government, and said that the Exhibiion Assosiation had been well treated by the government.

Mr Purdy said that the commissioner of agriculture had complained to him that the essociation had treated him with scant courtesy in matters conneeted with the exhibition, but that the Fredericton association had consulted him in everything.

President Emerson positively denied the statement, and said that all doouments pertaining to the prize lists had been sent in the customary way to the agriculture office at Fredericton. The president asked Mr. Hubbard, the late hese matters.

> Grooming - The question is often asked, "Why does the stabled horse require constant grooming, whilst the same horse turned out in a field does very well without it?" It is not the grooming. It is the work and food, not the shelter which constitutes the difference between the domesticated animals and the horse in the state of nature. By work, and especially by fast work, the secretions of the glands of the skin are largely increased. Nature must be assisted by artificial means to remove these increased secretions, or the pores of the skin will become clogged and the health will be deteriorated greatly. HALIFAX, N. S., April 11 .- The sensation of the day has been the preliminary trial of J. D. Metcalfe, manager of the Academy of Music, and Jere McAuliffe, of the McAuliffe Comedy Company, on a charge of giving an indecent act in vaudeville. This, fact of living under cover but the ac- it was alleged, consisted in the singing tive work and the high feeding of the of a song called "Sammy," by one of stabled horse which necessitates the actresses, who held out her arms appealingly to the audience, and an effort was made to show that Mc-Auliffe's parodies on "Marching Through Georgia" and "Hiawatha also were improper. The case against Metcalfe was dropped without much delay, the prosecution saying they had no evidence to offer. But that against McAuliffe occupied the whole afternoon. The information was laid by John Wood, a barrister, who said that the actress in singing "Sammy" had pointed at him and at others in the audience. Two or three witnesses were called to show that there was something improper in dress and language of others in the company. The defence gave no evidence, relying on the weakness of that of the prosecution. Magistrate Fielding asked the counsel for the defence for a "standard of decency" on which he might go. His reply was the conventions of gociety and public opinion were such a standard, but he wanted authorized for this, and the court adjourned the tomorrow at 3 for this to be supplied ICE STILL FIRM
