Name in full

At the close of Graves' evidence the Crown officer rested his case.

It will be remembered that the duties to be levied on wood pulp and print paper were made dependent upon the action of foreign governments in connection with the trade, heavier duties being laid if such governments in connection with the trade, heavier duties being laid if such governments in question coming to the United States, or prohibit such exports or otherwise discriminate against the United States.

For some time the customs experts of the treasury department have been busy preparing regulations under which the provisions of paragraphs 406 and 499 of the new law are to be enforced. Those paragraphs provide for duties on wood pulp and print paper. The department has made an investigation of the tariffs of Canada, Sweden and other countries that ship wood pulp and similar products to the United States. Regulations have at last been prepared and will probably be made public tomorrow.

To Prevent Import.

It is understood that their effect will be practically to prevent the free importation of wood pulp altogether. The bill provides a duty of one-twelfth of a cent per pound on mechanically ground pulp, except when imported from countries which impose no restrictions on the trade. It having been ascertained that the province of Ontario prohibits the exportation of pulp wood, the treasury department will levy a duty of one-twelfth of a cent a pound on mechanical wood pulp coming from that province.

In accordance with the same paragraph imports of mechanical wood pulp from Quebec will have to pay an equal duty plus the equivalent of the Quebec export tax of 25 cents per cord on pulp wood.

Chemical Wood Pulp.

The regulations will contain similar provision with reference to chemical wood pulp imports, it is undertood. Under the law this product is ubject to a tariff of one-sixth of a ent a pound if unbleached, and one-purth of a cent a pound if bleached, to these rates must be added the quivalent of the 25 cent per cord exort tax of Quebec, in case of imports rom that country. There may be ther additions to this countervailing uty.

He said: "Mr. Graves, you have always been a good friend to me, and I want you to get me clear of this. I am sorry for what I have done, and I should not have burned your buildings if I had not been drinking. I drank four kinds of whisky that day and it was twentst lever saw. Get me out of this, and I will be your friend as long as I live."

Washington, Aug. 27.—The wood pulp and paper mills of Maine and New Hampshire will continue to enjoy the home market with little or no competition from abroad under the new-tariff act, is the opinion of treasury department officials. Imports of wood pulp from Canada will have to pay heavy duties, as was predicted by friends of free wood pulp before the bill became law.
