ST. JOHN, N. B., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1911.

THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

Canadians from the Atlantic to the Pacific joined yesterday in extending a hearty and loyal welcome to the Duke of Connaught when he arrived at Quebec, was duly installed Governor-General of Canada. In addition to the cordial greeting which always awaits the representative of the Sovereign, there is in the coming of the Duke of Connaught a deeper feeling, in that His Royal Highness is the son of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, whose memory is held in reverence throughout the Empire. The idea is not new that a prince of the blood should represent the Crown in each of the great dominions. It was mooted long ago, and it is of interest to recall that it was the late Queen Victoria herself who then feared for the success of the experiment. Realizing to the full that the affection for the Crown and royal family was one of the strongest links uniting the British Empire, it is said Her late Majesty feared that if a son of the Royal House were made Governor-General here, and the whole Royal family, might suffer in popularity as the result of some act of the British Government for which he might be held responsible. No such cause for anxiety could exist today. Canada has made rapid strides towards nationhood and it is extremely unlikely that the Home Government could or would do anything to make a Canadian Governor-General unpopular in the Dominion.

It is well for us to realize that, apart from the high position which birth gives him, the Duke of Connaught is very much a man and a soldier. He is so much a soldier, in fact, that years ago he refused the throne to remain in his profession. On the tragic death of his nephew, Prince Alfred of Coburg, it became necessary to proclaim an heir to the throne of the ill-fated king's father, the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha. Next in line was the Duke of Connaught, and he declined the honor, declaring that he preferred to retain his British nationality and his position as a British General, to the Crown of any foreign sovereign belonging to the German Confederation.

As a soldier the Duke saw active service in the Egyptian war of 1882, where he commanded the Brigade of Guards and figured with great distinction at the battle of Tel-el-Kebir. There is a common impression that the possession of ordinary human virtues is exaggerated when they occur in men of royal blood, but the Duke's exploits in the Egyptian war are not thus to be depreciated. They were reported more than once in despatches by the German military attaches, and as a result the Kaiser honored the Duke by presenting him the military cross of the Prussian order, "Pour le Mérite," a distinction only conferred on one other foreign general, namely, General Noth.

From 1886 to 1890 he commanded the troops in Bombay, and he has since held the Portsmouth and Aldershot commands, and that of the Forces in Ireland. In 1904 he became the first Inspector-General of the Forces, and in 1908 he was appointed to the Mediterranean command, which it will be remembered, he resigned. It was a great disappointment to him that he was not permitted to share the risks of the Boer war. The last of the many important army posts held by the Duke was Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean Forces, which he resigned shortly after his appointment. Last year he represented the King at the opening of the South African Parliament, enduring wonderfully well for a man of sixty the fatigue and hurry of his 18,000 miles trip.

The Duke's connection with Canada is already a long and pleasant one. Forty years ago, when a young man of twenty, he came to Canada and served as a soldier through the Fenian Raid. Since then the Duke has several times visited the Dominion, each time enhancing not only his own, but the Royal family's popularity. It will also be remembered that his son, Prince Arthur, toured Canada some four years ago and was a welcome visitor to St. John.

It has been the Duke of Connaught's good fortune to be a general favorite. He is a man of singular charm and modesty of manner, great kindness of heart, tact and sound judgment. Nothing could have been more fitting than his happy reference on landing at Quebec yesterday to the blending of races in Canada: "In days gone by," he said, "it was the fusion of the French and English races which made the greatness of England; here again history repeats itself, and it is their union which makes England draw the qualities of courage, perseverance and strength which raised her to her proud position among the nations. Here, under the wise rule of statesmen, sometimes of British and sometimes of French descent, Canada has achieved an era of development which is the envy of the world."

It is the wish of all Canadians that the Duke of Connaught's stay with us shall be happy and to our mutual benefit. Without inviting any comparisons with any of his predecessors it is the universal hope and belief of the Canadian people that the Duke will prove the most successful and popular Governor-General in the history of Canada.

THE LOCAL OPPOSITION.

The trumpet blast in the local columns of last night's Times regarding the local Opposition is significant of the deplorable condition into which that organization has fallen since the defeat of its candidate in York last March. During that campaign it was asserted day after day in the supporting organs that Mr. Burden would be elected by a good majority, thereby proving the strength of the Opposition and the decline of the Government in the metropolitan county of York. The House was in session during the campaign and there was not a schoolhouse or public hall that did not resound with the voices of the various Opposition members as they denounced the Government and lauded Reciprocity. Mr. Carvell was also on hand and told the people what great things he had done, and was doing, to secure for them the Valley Railway, and how his strenuous efforts in that direction were being blocked by the Hazen Government.

The result of all this Opposition thunder was the defeat of Mr. Burden by one of the largest majorities ever recorded against a candidate in a provincial election in York county. For two years the Opposition had been boasting that the Hazen Government had lost prestige with the people and would be wiped out of existence whenever an opportunity was afforded to take a vote. The result in York had such a disheartening effect on Mr. Robinson that at the close of the session he tendered his resignation as leader but was induced to withdraw it.

For a second time within a year Mr. Robinson has again tendered his resignation, and the latest information is, that on this occasion it is not likely to be withdrawn. So little interest did he take in the caucus of his party that he was not present at its first session and did not turn up in the city until yesterday. In the meantime quite a lively interest had been displayed as to who is to lead the forlorn hope at the next session. This question is somewhat clouded by the rumor that a general election may be held before the Legislature meets—that is, if it were to accept the statement of the Times that the deliberations of the caucus were interfered with by lack of knowledge on this subject.

The result of the Dominion election in the county of Westmorland does not inspire confidence in the fate of the members now holding the seats for that county in the Legislature. Should a general election be called, there is a strong probability that they will all be defeated. This is a sad condition for the Opposition to face, as four of its present twelve members come from that county. These include the leader, Mr. Robinson, and his first lieutenant, Mr. Copp. The only other gentleman spoken of on the street in connection with the leadership of the Opposition is Mr. Carvell from Carleton county, and he, at present, has no seat in the House, and no apparent prospect of getting one.

In view of the utter demoralization of the Provincial Opposition it is amusing to read the declaration in the Times, that "if Premier Flemming decides to go to the people at once, the Opposition is ready. If he decides to hold the by-elections in St. John, Charlotte and Sunbury, and have a session before election, the Opposition will be able to meet that contingency." The real facts are that the Opposition's plans will be materially interfered with in many counties by their inability to even get candidates to enter the contest in their interests.

If the Times is to be believed, the little bunch of ex-tractors who call themselves an Opposition, are in a most optimistic frame of mind and hopeful of victory. This hope is based on the effect of the withdrawal from Provincial politics of Mr. Hazen, the administration of the Highway Act, and the position of the Valley Railroad. It is not so very long since that every Opposition organ and spouter was telling the public what a weak man Mr. Hazen was. The changed attitude towards Mr. Hazen is the only glimmer of sense that has penetrated the agricultural known as the Opposition, for some time. Mr. Hazen has proved himself an able administrator and has displayed great ability in coping with the affairs of the Province since he assumed office. His work as Premier has won for him a high reputation among all classes of the community who recognize what has been accomplished in the last three years.

When the present Opposition were turned out of power the finances of the Province were in a deplorable condition. In ten years the funded debt had been increased by more than $2,000,000, and of this amount more than $500,000 had been funded in meet over-expenditures directly due to the reckless waste of the old Government and the present attitude of the Opposition is that of a man whistling to keep his courage up. It makes little difference in the present state of the public mind whether a general election will be called or only elections to fill the existing vacancies; the defeat of the Opposition is certain. They have no leader and no policy on which to appeal to the people, and their record, when in power, was so besmirched with graft and dishonesty as to be utterly indefensible. As a political party in whom any confidence can be placed they have ceased to exist.

BOY SCOUTS AND CHIVALRY.

No idea has been more fruitful of results than that to which was due the initiation of the Boy Scout movement. Now of world-wide extent, though unfortunately in some of the continental countries of Europe diverted from its proper object, the organization has proved irresistible in its appeal to the youth of both sexes. The spirit of chivalry is latent in every individual man and woman and boy and girl, and given the moment and the inspiration it will flash into being, though but in the passing.

Sir Francis Vane, president of the British Boy Scouts, believes that the age of chivalry is not gone, and that the peace foundation on which the movement rests, provides ample scope for chivalry, which the scout law enjoins, to "protect the weak, defend the helpless and assist his neighbor," without fear or expectation of reward.

The latest development in the Boy Scout Association proposes to unite the scoutmasters along a common line of action. "The great difficulty in dealing with the scout movement," said Sir Francis Vane, in a recent interview, "has always been to obtain union in action of those most excellent men, the scoutmasters, so that they may go to their scouts and to the world inspired by a great ideal of service and with a due sense of responsibility in their noble mission. That is what we have been trying to achieve at, and that is what we hope to achieve by the 'commandery of chivalry.'"

The object of this new order is to carry the chivalric principles of the scout law into the lives and actions of the scoutmasters. With that in view the ritual of the order will include a solemn charge to all the officers to realize their responsibility as the leaders of the young, and "neither by word nor deed suggest anything to those whose charge you have accepted but that which is pure, noble, wise and inspiring."

Current Comment

(Christian Guardian.)

To the people of Canada has been entrusted a magnificent heritage, with almost limitless possibilities, and only internal strife and mismanagement can check our rapid development. Canadians alone can permanently injure Canada. Racial bitterness must not be fostered upon our soil; religious differences must not be allowed to banish Christian courtesy; political affiliations must be subordinated to patriotic considerations; and the best of our race must not be permitted to reproduce in Canada the tragedies of European industrial life. The millions of our people are to be welded into one great Canadian nation. This is our work. The task is a herculean one, and the churches of God must lead the way.

(Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.)

Announcement is made that the real reason for the banishment of a promising pitcher from one of the American league baseball teams was his inclination to sulk and a tendency to break the rules designed to keep players in condition for the strenuous work before them. Unfortunately, this sort of "temperamental" nonsense is not confined to baseball players. If men would work half as hard to produce results which would establish their claims as they do to make people accept their own egotistical estimates of their ability more than half of the problems of the industrial world would be solved.

"The Maple Leaf Forever" may not be the Song of Culture, but it is the Song of Canada. The band played "The Maple Leaf Forever" when R. L. Borden returned in triumph to his native town in Nova Scotia. At Regina, Winnipeg and the coast cities, as truly as in Ontario and the Maritime Provinces, rejoicing Canadians found in the simple melody of heartfelt words that came from the heart of Alexander Muir a tribute of affection for Canadian nationality and British unity that they could not find in offered substitutes for Canada's own song.

NO LINIMENT LIKE "NERVILINE"

Fifty Years' Use Proves It The Strongest, Safest, Best.

1,000,000 BOTTLES SOLD ANNUALLY.

The unexampled success of "Nerviline" is due to the fact that it is five times stronger, three times more penetrating, more pain-relieving than any other liniment.

One million bottles used every year—think what this means! Surely stronger proof is not possible that "Nerviline" is a trustworthy liniment, a household remedy upon which millions can depend in case of accident or sudden sickness. Scarcely an ache or a pain that "Nerviline" won't cure—among the hundreds of ailments for which it is guaranteed are the following:

Headaches, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Chest Colds, Sore Throat, Toothache, Earache, Cramps, Diarrhoea, Bowel Disorders. Doctors will tell you that nothing but the purest and most healing antiseptic drugs are used in "Nerviline"—that's why it is so safe for general family use, for the baby as well as the parent. If you haven't tried "Nerviline," do so now—your neighbors are almost sure to know of its manifold merits and uses. Refuse any substitute for "Nerviline," sold the world over in large size bottle, 50c, or sample size, 25c, all dealers, or The Catarrhstone Co., Kingston, Ont.

DEATH VALLEY "SCOTTY."

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 12.—Walter Scott, "Death Valley Scotty," struck Los Angeles today in true "Scotty" style. He had a roll of bills as big as a tomato can and began spending freely. He hired a taxicab, and with three friends started on a round of the hotels in pursuit of excitement. "I say I am broke," said Scotty, disgust in his voice. "Well, take a taxi at that." He pulled out a large roll of yellowbacks from his pocket, and, peeling one of them off, handed it to a bell boy. He then invited his bandsters to "have another" with him.

PROVINCIAL ADMINISTRATION.

(St. John Globe, Lib.)

Many persons in the Province who take at least as much interest in provincial affairs as they do in the affairs of the Dominion, will regret that the political changes which have taken place—while the taking place—remove Hon. Mr. Hazen from the position of Provincial Premier. The legacy left the Province by the former administration was of such a nature that to properly dispose of it demanded a large amount of consideration and action. The work to be done was one that would require time, united action on the part of the men who undertook it, earnestness in attention to principles as well as details of work. Considerable progress has been made along the right path in the substitution of new and better methods for the methods which had so long prevailed and which contributed so much to maladministration. The earnest reformer may chafe at the slow progress, but the changes which he feels and knows are needed in the interests of good government. The man engaged in the actual work of government has the ordinary duties of administration to carry on from day to day, from month to month, and therefore, may be able to change but slowly the old order of things, against which he contends and which he desires to change.

Mr. Hazen and his colleagues, since they found at their hands when they took up the burden of government. But they have faithfully collected the public revenue and honestly administered it, showing a sympathetic interest in all of the laudable enterprises and aims of the people. Mr. Hazen himself was an inspiration to the people, and his natural sympathy with honest desires awakened throughout the Province seeking to improve conditions and his natural sympathy with honest desires awakened throughout the Province seeking to improve conditions and his natural sympathy with honest desires awakened throughout the Province seeking to improve conditions.

In other words, there is much work yet to be done in New Brunswick by a fair and strong-minded administration. However, it is not natural that the leader of the local government should respond affirmatively to the call made upon him by the new leader of the Canadian government, and take up work in the larger arena of the whole Dominion. The call is a lure difficult to withstand. Sir James Whitney has done it in Ontario. And the people who are simply New Brunswickers—spreading the word to the people, and its interests—must feel gratified that the conditions which made Mr. Hazen leader of an effective administration will be very satisfactory to the people. The administration of Provincial affairs will be continued with the spirit, energy and good judgment which have been displayed since the new rulers were called to the management of the affairs of the Province.
