Just now, however, our concern is not with these, but with that troop of gentlemen cavaliers who came a-riding with the Merry Monarch from St. George's Fields, Southwark, all the way to his palace at Whitehall, on that May morning more than two and a-half centuries ago when "the King came to his own agaln." Very fine and gay and gallant they Very fine and gay and gallant they looked, a rare and striking contrast, we may be sure, to Monk's dour Puri-tan men-at-arms, dressed some in leathern doublets, some wearing dim-med and dented hauberks, and steel caps devoid of polish or ornament. These cavallers from over the seas, on the other hand, gave to London its first glimpse of the pomp and pageantry of the Continental armies of those days. The officers, we are told, "were so of those days. The officers, we are told, "were so richly dressed in cloth of gold and silver that they might have been knights all armored in coats-of-mail of the same." Than this first-hand glimpse, however, nothing further is rouchsafed to us concerning the lead-ers of the splendid cavalcade, but of the rank and file we get a very pret-ly and likewise a fairly detailed pic-jure.

G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto. 70-3 Too Much Busy-ness. Faistaff's saying, "It were better to be eaten to death with rust than scoured to nothing with perpetual mo-tion," comes to mind when one notes the many busy-nesses of the modern woman. "Rushed to decth!" she cries. "So much to do, so little time," and away she patters to attend a committee meet-ing or address a convention or "see somebody" about something. And i never occurs to her that this old world would wag along just the same if she did none of these things-in fact, she would be highly indignant were such an insinuation made. Well, as a matter of fact, women do accomplish many good works. But they haven't as yet acquired the art of doing things without bustle and fuss as men do. They spend too much en-ergy in getting ready to do things they flutter too much. The empty wagon makes a lot of noise; the loaded wagon goes quietly. The woman of real executive ability goes about her duties quietly; she has mentally organized her work. Whether she moves about in her own house or engages in outside endeavors, she is calm and composed—and effective. She has, moreover, a sense of proportion which enables her to recognize how much of her energy and time can pro-fitably be given to any one thing. You will find that the really efficient woman is not busy with her busy-nesses all the time. She knows the value of leisure and that hurry and haste never produce the best results. And quite often she is called upor to repair the results of overhaste or ill judged action on the part of those who act first and think afterward.
