

to the profession as a warning. To any one at all familiar with both diseases there can be no doubt as to it being a case of discrete smallpox, and from the appearance of some of the pustules on the face it would seem as if some of them simulated the condition described as being present in No. 14.

The remaining illustrations are of cases of smallpox which happened in the eastern portion of the Province, Nos. 19 and 20 being those of a brother and sister, both unvaccinated, and exposed to the same infection. The little girl is a typically mild form of which no doubt there have been thousands in the Province, while the brother presents the disease in a more marked form. The pustular stage as shown on the hands being in contrast with the character of the rash as found on the face where it has aborted. The contents of the vesicles having become muco-purent and in some places presenting the appearance of crusts.
