

in fair preservation under a spreading oak. So far we have been unable to trace any of the occupants of the mounds, which were thought to be filled by victims of some epidemic at the Ontario Reformatory for Boys, but this is a mistake. There is a tradition that they are the graves of soldiers from the Garrison, who died during the cholera epidemic of 1842-3.

Opposite this group and the first on the left as you enter is another nameless grave with no tablet to mark its location or to identify the occupant. In it rest the remains of the late Mrs. Wallace, formerly Mrs. Johnston, who died in 1869. ae. 85 yrs., so long mistress of the "Masonic Arms," a direct descendant of the Earls of Darnley, and whose romantic marriage in London's Westminster Abbey has already been recounted.

Turning to the right, and next to the Copeland family plot, is an extended plot with only two graves and a simple tablet marked "Tyne," with no other particulars. This was a military family in the 30's, forgotten long since by the oldest residents.

Then comes the allotment of the late Adjutant Keating. He died in Nov., 1849, but no monument commemorates his death or that of any of his family. The only shaft in the plot is a chaste Celtic cross of freestone inscribed "In memory of Emberly Hamilton, daughter of Francis and Charlotte Walbridge, 1907," (Dr. and Mrs. Walbridge of Midland). The plot is neatly kept, and the absence of any memorials to the founder of the family is probably due to the early removal of the surviving members of the family to distant lands over which the descendants have scattered, even to Honolulu in the Hawaiian Islands. The next in this series is the allotment of Capt. Hoar, R.N., the hero of St. Jean d'Acre.

Turning to the right, the visitor encounters two horizontal slabs, nearly overgrown with verdure, almost unique and the only two of the kind in the church-yard. On the first, inscribed in plain letters are the words, "Here lieth the body of Elizabeth Simpson, who departed this life in hopes of a better, on Sunday, Feby., 1831, ae. 46." This was the first wife of the late Wm. Simpson, Esq. As the church and cemetery were not consecrated till 1840, and as the first burial recorded is that of Wm. Wells of the 13th Light Dragoons in 1840, a little further on, the apparent inconsistency is explained by the fact that the remains of Mrs. Simpson were first buried behind the original store on the corner of Queen and Water
