

men of Canada have sufficient interest in fire protection and forest protection to co-operate at their own expense in carrying on a campaign of education. Acting on lines something like these, where you utilize as media various articles in constant and tremendous circulation, you have an opportunity of reaching almost everybody in the country, and, of course, the great advantage is that such a campaign does not call for the expenditure of large sums of money.

---