LONDON. Oct. 13.-The Prince of Wales made a notable addition to the discussion of unemployment by his speech at the Mansion House today on the project for holding a British Empire Exhibition in 1923 at Wembley, southwestern suburb of London. The idea was started by Lord Strathcome in 1913, with the object of bringing tegether an exhibition of the resources of all parts of the Empire, and it was estimated that the necessary buildings and large sports stadium conneced with them would cost tional unemployment conference was £1,500,000, and could not be started split wide open today on the question wit. at a 4 ha and see i md of £1,000, of recommending wage cuts. 000.
