TOLSTOI SOFTENED

As the Czar Jollied Him Along About Disarmament.

THE COUNT WILL CO-OPERATE. The Czar's Proposal as Described in a Circular From Count Muraviev Looks Towards the Mitigation of Land and Naval Warfare—The Document Contains Ten Important Points.

London, Jan. 17.—The Daily Mail prints the following despatch from Odessa: "While journeying north from Livadia, Emperor Nicholas, during a break for luncheon at Tsoolch (capital of the government of the same name in Southern Russia), sent a messenger worded expressing his desire to see Count Leo Tolstoy. Contrary to expectation, Tolstoy accepted the invitation and soon appeared at the railway station. In his peasant's garb he presented a striking contrast to the richly-dressed entourage of the Czar. Emperor Nicholas kissed him on the mouth and both cheeks. Tolstoy readily responded.

"Then a conversation commenced, the Czar asking his guest for an opinion upon the Imperial proposal for the limitation of armaments. Count Tolstoy replied that he could only believe in it when His Majesty should see the example to other nations.

"On the Czar mentioning the difficulty of the problem and the necessity for the united aid of the great powers, the Count softened somewhat and expressed the hope that the Emperor would be able to attain some definite results or, at any rate, to formulate some workable plan at the conference. The Czar, thanking him for his good wishes, said he would be pleased if Tolstoy could be induced to lend his genius to the solution of the question, and the Count rejoined that the Emperor might count upon his cooperation, for he was already engaged upon a work which would soon see the light."

THE Czar's TEN POINTS. Which He Hopes Will Lead to the Disarmament of the Nations. St. Petersburg, Jan. 17.—The circular issued by Count Muraviev, Minister of Foreign Affairs regarding the coming meeting of representatives of the European powers, in answer to the Czar's appeal for disarmament, suggests the following points, which would soon see the light: "First—To agree not to increase naval or military forces, and the corresponding budgets for a fixed period. Second—To endeavor to find means of reducing the forces and budgets in the future. Third—To interdict the use of any new weapons or explosives more powerful than now made. Fourth—To restrict the use of the most terrible of existing explosives, and to prohibit the throwing of any projectiles from balloons or similarly. Fifth—To restrict the employment of submarine torpedoes and similar contrivances. Sixth—To undertake not to construct vessels with rams. Seventh—To apply the Geneva Convention in several respects, and a vestigial agreement regarding warships. Eighth—To neutralize vessels, serving those wrecked in naval battles. Ninth—To revise the principles of international law and customs of war elaborated at Brussels in 1864. Tenth—To accept the principle of mediation and arbitration in such cases as lend themselves thereto. The circular realises that nothing touching existing political relations shall be discussed.
