How They Lost and Regained Spion Kop.

Claim the British Left 1,500 Dead on the Field of Battle.

Boer Headquarters, Modder Spruit, Upper Tugela, Wednesday, Jan. 24, midnight, via Lorenzo Marques, Thursday, Jan. 25.—Some Vryheid burghers from the outposts on the highest hills of the Spion Kop group rushed into the langer saying that the kop was lost and that the English had taken it. Reinforcements were ordered up, but nothing could be done for some time, the hill being enveloped with thick mist. At dawn the Heidelberg and Carolina contingents, supplemented from other commandos, began the ascent of the hill. Three spurs, precipitous projections, faced the Boer positions. Up these the advance was made. The horses were left under the first terrace of rocks. Scaling the steeps, the Boers found that the English had improved the opportunity and entrenched heavily. Between the lines of trenches was an open yeldt, which had to be rushed unopen veldt, which had to be rushed under a heavy fire not only of rifles, but of lyddite and shrapnel from field guns. Three forces ascended the three spurs co-ordinately under cover of fire from the Free State Krupps, a Cruesot and a big Maxim. The Brittish tried to rush the Boers with the bayonet, but their infantry went down before the rifle fire as before a scythe. Defore the ratio are as perfore a scytche. The Boer investing party advanced between the by letter until 2 p. m., when a white flag went up and 150 mem in the front trenches surrendered, being sent and princeparty to the head learner. The as prisoners to the head laager. The British advance continued on the two kopjes east of Spion Kop. Many Boers were shot, but so numerous were the burghers that the gaps filled were the burghers that the gaps takes automatically. Toward twilight they reached the summit of the second kopje, but did not get further. The The British Maxims belched flame, but a wall of firing Mausers held the English back. Their centre under English back. Their centre under this pressure then gradually this pressure then gradually gave way, and broke, abandoning the position. The prisoners speak highly of the bravery of the burghers, who despising cover, stood against the sky-line edges of the summit to shoot the Dublin Fusiliers, sheltered in the trenches. Firing continued for some time, and then the Fusiliers and the Light Horse, serving as infantry, threw up their arms and rushed out of the trenches. The effect of the abandonment of Spion Kop by the English can hardly be gauged as yet, but it must prove to be immense. An anusually high proportion of lyddite shells did not explode. The British dead left on the battlefield yesterday
