The wheel fitted with Dunlop Tires gives no trouble to the dealer after its sale.

This is one reason why dealers favor Dunlop-tired wheels. They know that Dunlop Tires are the outward sign of inward worth in the building of a bicycle.

PASSING OF THE BELL.

No Longer Used to Record the Joys and Sorrows of Humanity.

The solemn and impressive custom of announcing death by the tolling of the church bell will soon be but a vague and distant memory. "The passing bell" has itself passed away, and its slow measured accents no longer tell the story of the departure of one more soul. The brief notice in the daily paper, while it conveys explicit information, falls to give something that the bell's tolling carried with it. The solemn rhythmic tones awakened a momentary vibration in the breast of each listener and bade each pause for sympathy and meditation. The bell admonished the sinner to repent and warned the thoughtless that time was flying while it spoke clearly and comprehensively and bade all scattered and preoccupied inhabitants attend its story.

The bell's voice is identified with all the deepest and most sacred human emotions. It has bespoken the joys and sorrows of all mankind for centuries. Is its voice to die away and have no part in the life of the future? The wedding bells ring out no more save in some song or story. The Christmas chiming are seldom wafted to our ears. The church bells ring but faintly now and under constant protest. "The curfew tolls the knell of parting day" only in verse. A sunset gun today gives greater satisfaction. The angelus sounds merely in pictorial form, the fire bells give place to still alarms, the dinner bell is silenced in polite society, and sleigh bells are discarded.

What is the future of the bell—that happy silver tongue that has sung out the joys of all the world, that solemn tone that has mourned for the nation's dead and voiced the nation's woes and summoned to their knees the nation's worshippers?

QUARRIES OF OLD EGYPT.

Where Stone for Pyramids of the Desert Was Procured.

On the way to Philae and the head of the cataract, a short distance south of Assuan, we came upon the ancient quarries which supplied the granite for the columns, statues and obelisks throughout Egypt for many centuries. An obelisk which we saw lies in its native bed. It is 95 feet in length, and three sides have been carefully cut, but for some unknown reason it was never separated entirely from the parent rock. The surface bears the tool marks of the workmen. The grooves in it show that it was to have been reduced at the sides. It was supposed that the stone was split from its bed by drilling holes in the rock and filling them with wooden wedges, which were afterward saturated with water.

From illustrations in the temples it is clear that these great monuments were floated down the river on flatboats and rafts and then carried inland by artificial canals or dragged overland by thousands of slaves. In one of the tombs at Beni-Hassan is a picture illustrating the process. The great stone is loaded upon a huge sled drawn by a multitude of workmen. One man is enlaid in pouring water upon the rungers to prevent friction; another stands at the left of the statue and beats time, that the men may work in unison, while overseers, provided with whips, urge the laborers to their task. What king desired to extricate this block from the quarry, why it was left here, what it was to commemorate, we can never know. The riddle of the sphinx is solved, but the riddle of the obelisk in the quarry will no doubt remain with us forever.

To Avoid a Total Loss.

A Pittsburgh man tells of a visit he made at a thrifty home in a nearby town. The call was quite a pleasant one and during the evening "Abe," the hopeful son of the family, was sent to the cellar for refreshments for the guests. He could be heard groping his way through the dark, and then came the noise of something falling and the crash of glass. "Abe's" mother was plainly uneasy, but she assumed the unnatural composure which her society duties demanded. Soon "Abe" came up with an armful of bottles.

"What was that noise we heard," "Abe?" asked the mother.

"Nothing much," replied "Abe." "I knocked over a bottle of milk and it rolled down the steps and spilled."

"Did you call the cat, 'Abe'?" asked the thrifty woman.

Frequent Vaccination.

Although almost absolute immunity is secured for a period of six months by vaccination, there is no certainty that its effects will continue beyond that time. In the majority of cases it does, but the interval for which this additional benefit is enjoyed is variable. Hence those who have studied the matter most carefully recommend a fresh operation if more than six months have elapsed since the last one, if a person is liable to be subjected to peril, as in time of an epidemic.

Not Wholly a Misfortune.

The Widow—Yes, Henry's death is a great loss to me, but I am thankful for one thing—he died before he could get his patent perfected.

Sympathizing Friend—Pardon me.

The Widow—You don't understand? Why, in that case, you know, all the money he had would have gone sooner or later.

A Drowsy Bargain.

Wife—Oh, such a bargain! I reached Biggs, Drive & Co.'s ahead of the crowd this morning, and got enough stuff for a perfectly elegant dress for $1.00.

Husband—Hoopla! You're an angel! What will it cost to get it made up?

Wife—Bout $30.

FAMOUS CASE TO BE HEARD.

On Friday in Montreal—Husband
Wants to be Released

From His Wife Because Though Roman Catholics They Were Married by a Protestant Minister.

Montreal, Feb. 14.—The famous Deloit case again came before Judge Archibald in the Superior Court yesterday, when Mr. Bisailion, counsel for the husband, who is seeking to have his marriage annulled because it was performed by a Protestant minister, moved to have the case continued until Friday afternoon next. Mr. Bisailion, in the course of his remarks to the court, got very excited. He explained that the case was one of more than ordinary interest. The whole community had their eyes upon it; resolutions were being passed by all the ministerial and other associations, and the case was actually adjudicated upon. The case was in reality one between two Catholics, but the whole Protestant element was taking it up and raising subscriptions, and the case was generally regarded as a test case. In this instance, when his friend on the other side said "My clients," that expression involved the country, and he (Mr. Bisailion) was forced to ask the protection of the court against these persons who meddle with matters with which they have no business. The case in its present stage would require to go back as far as the capriciousness of Charlemagne, and it was only fair that he should have an opportunity to consult with his counsel. Justice Archibald—It might have seemed advisable that a case of this importance should not have two careers, and that it should be finished in a single session. I am unable to decide the case upon a pure question of law, without allowing for my conscience as a Protestant, or the conscience of anyone else, but as a Catholic, I was then agreed by the lawyers, and announced by Justice Archibald, that the hearing would begin on Friday at 2 o'clock, and the judge remarked that would grant a late sitting if that would facilitate an uninterrupted hearing.

"Yes," responded the city editor; "and I would much prefer to have you use commas and semicolons."

"It is the little rift within the lute which, ever widening, makes the music mute." It is just this rift in the life of a woman often, which gradually takes the spring from her step, the light from her eyes, the rose from her cheek and the music from her voice. Perhaps the bug-bear which has frightened the woman from the timely help needed at the beginning has been the dreaded questions, the obvious examination, the local treatments, of the home physician. There is no need for these. Nor is there need for continued suffering. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can be relied on by every woman, suffering from what are called "female troubles," to renew the health and cure the disease. Women are astonished at the results of the use of this medicine. It not only makes weak women "robust and rosy cheeked," but it gives them back the vigor and vitality of youth.

Free! Dr. Pierce's People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is sent free on receipt of 31 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing and customs. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce.

"How is your brother, Tommy?" "Sick in bed, miss; he's hurt himself."

MEN AS THEY PASS.

William Heywood of Honolulu is to represent the Hawaiian Sugar Planters' association in this country.

E. H. Keller, one of the doorknockers of the senate, so much so, that Senator Mason that Senator Wolcott of Colorado recently mistook him for that senator.

Senator Thomas R. Bard of California and his brother, Dr. C. L. Bard of Ventura, Cal., are to erect a hospital in that city as a memorial to their mother. This hospital will eventually be presented to the city.

Congressman Allen, popularly known as "Private John Allen," says he recently made an investment that netted 150 per cent. "I bought Sulzer a 2 cent newspaper," says Mr. Allen, "and he paid my car fare."

Robert Dick Douglas, a grandson of Stephen A. Douglas of Illinois, has been appointed by Governor Russell to the office of attorney general of North Carolina. He is but 25 years old and the youngest man to fill that position in North Carolina.

Joseph Jefferson, the actor, has purchased real estate in Chicago valued at $87,000. Mr. Jefferson paid that sum for it, giving $47,000 in cash and assuming a mortgage of $40,000. The property consists of a three story brick apartment building in Forty-seventh street.

D. O. Mills of New York has promised the University of California about $24,000 to defray the expenses of a two year astronomical expedition from the Lick observatory to South America or Australia, the object of which is to study the movement of stars in the line of sight.

Professor Giovanni Schiaparelli, director of the Brera observatory at Milan, has been retired after 42 years of service. He is celebrated for his discovery of the canals in Mars. His observations of Mars, on the double stars and on the planets Mercury and Venus are of the highest astronomical value.

William McClary of Philadelphia has given $50,000 to the Masonic home of Pennsylvania in memory of his son, Charles J. McClary. It is his desire that $20,000 be used for the general welfare of the home, and that the remaining $30,000 be used for establishing an orphanage for the children of members of the order.

General Joe Wheeler writes in Success that the czar's peace plan came to naught "because it was in the nature of things impossible for man and nations to be so good as to let the world be as it is, and then to begin to change it, after all, an instinct. All animals," continues the general, "fight and will continue to, I think."

The Duke of Rutland, now 82 years old, has been a member of six consecutive British cabinets. He is the last surviving member of Lord Derby's first administration and also the oldest member of the Carlton club. In 1841 the duke, then Lord John Manners, was William E. Gladstone's fellow member for Newark. In 1888 he was a palibearer at Mr. Gladstone's funeral.

Mr. Justin McSweeney, formerly one of the most prominent owners on the Australian turf and a well known Sydney citizen and man of business, has been making revelations of a sensational character regarding horse racing at the antipodes. He confesses that he has lost 130,000 in horse racing and that with his own limited experience he has seen about 30 wealthy men ruined on the turf.

Euston station is the oldest as well as one of the largest in London. There are 13 platforms varying from 400 to 1,000 feet long, in addition to which there are two broad carriage ways 700 and 1,000 feet respectively in length. The station covers an area of 16 acres.

THE COOKBOOK.

Never add nuts to any cake you desire to keep for any length of time. They will mold and ruin it.

A cut lemon may be used instead of vinegar to make tough meat tender. Rub thoroughly and let stand three or four minutes before cooking.

Cheese crackers for the salad course are easily home made. Sprinkle Parmesan or grated American cheese thickly over the crackers and bake in the oven until the cheese is melted and browned. Serve cold.

A substitute for Welsh rabbit may be made by melting half a pound of rich cheese on a hot plate over hot water, meanwhile toasting four slices of bread, season with salt and cayenne, poured over it.
