GRIP QUICKLY KNOCKED OUT.

"Some weeks ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and myself contracted severe colds, which speedily developed into the worst kind of a gripe with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Egleston, of Maple Landing, Iowa. "Knees and joints aching, muscles sore, head aching, eyes sore and running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, aiding the same with a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the gripe."

5,000 DEAD AT MOSCOW

Bombs Oppose Cannon in Desperate Street Fighting.

Wounded Are Said to Number 14,000
—Artillery Used to Batter Down Houses Where Revolutionaries Are Barred—Program to Encircle Troops in Heart of City—Atrocities Committed Are Those of Madmen.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 26.—Direct telegraphic communication with Moscow was severed Sunday night, but the Government succeeded in restoring communication by a roundabout route yesterday morning.

All reports agree that the fighting May, which continued until midnight, assumed the nature of a butchery by the machine guns of the artillery, grape and canister being employed mercilessly against the ill-armed insurgents.

Atrocious tales are told of the Cossacks, who, piled with vodka until drunk, fired down the streets, sometimes charging with lances. The insurgents displayed great stubbornness in holding their positions, even advancing in a mass to the slaughter. At the same time the bombs were thrown from the windows of the revolutionaries. The artillery was summoned and battered the houses to pieces.

The plan of the insurgents, it is stated, is to hold the outskirts and gradually enclose the troops in the centre of the city.

Leaders announce that an army of 30,000 is concentrated at Orechovsk, northeast of Moscow, and will soon be ready to march to the city's assistance.

The latest report is that both sides were exhausted at midnight, when firing practically ceased. The streets were in absolute darkness, save for searchlights in the towers of the bivouacs behind barricades.

5,000 Killed; 14,000 Wounded.

London, Dec. 26.—The correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at St. Petersburg, in a despatch dated at 1:15 p. m., Dec. 25, says: "At an early hour this morning the casualties at Moscow were estimated at 5,000 killed and 14,000 wounded, with the fighting still proceeding. The inhabitants of Moscow have been forbidden to leave their dwellings after 7 o'clock in the evening. It is impossible to move about the city in consequence of the frequency of the bullets. Many innocent persons have been accidentally killed. A scarcity of provisions is threatened."

The same correspondent, telegraphing at 10:45 p. m., says: "Your Moscow correspondent's telegram has not been accepted because all private messages were refused this afternoon."

Desperate Fighting.

It is learned, however, that cannon firing is now proceeding in various parts of the city, where to-night very near the railroad stations the barricades erected by the revolutionaries are being desperately defended. The Kurk terminus at Moscow is being pillaged, and many wagons laden with provisions are being looted. The Emperor is engaged daily in reviewing at Tsarskoe-Selo, the remnants of the St. Petersburg district. The spirit of the troops is decidedly loyal.

The Fury of Hate.

From fragmentary accounts received from Moscow, I gather that the civil war has brought no decisive action, but only a thickening of the blood cloud, an intensifying of the horrors, and an increase of the prevailing bitterness.

The driving force behind both the troops and the rebels is no longer that of enthusiasm or of any human impulse. It is the fury of superhuman hate, and hence the deeds reported are not acts of patriots, soldiers or otherwise, but the enormities of madmen.

"For every barricade destroyed Sunday, two or three appeared in other places. Orders were given by the revolutionaries to shoot only when there was great hope of bringing a man down, but otherwise to let the troops until they lost patience."

Loyalty of the Troops.

"The most surprising thing of all is the loyalty of the troops, which nobody here anticipated. Talking with an intelligent group of St. Petersburg revolutionaries I was informed that while they believed the strike would be victorious, they fully realized that they were staking everything upon the issue, and that failure would set back their cause for several years. They said they were devoting their efforts to shaking the foundations of Russian finance in full confidence that once the existing regime was overthrown, they could as quickly build another and that foreign nations would be as ready to advance money to a democratic republic as to the autocracy."

"In conclusion they declared that in event of failure of their cause they would have recourse to terrorism, choosing their victims from all classes of society."
