

Chignecto Post, AND BORDERER.

Sackville, N. B., September 8, 1881.

The Sackville Meeting.

Sir Albert Smith charged Sir Leonard Tilley with being a self-seeking politician; he had stepped out of an office in 1873, worth $8,000 a year only, to accept one worth $10,000, and he had pocketed in all $117,000 of public money for his services, &c.

Before leaving for Ottawa, which I shall do on Monday next, I propose to carry out a purpose I have had in contemplation for some time.

My re-appointment would secure to me, should my life be spared, five years more of rest and quiet and freedom from political strife, matters of some consideration I admit to a man in his sixtieth year;

It is only usual for public men on such occasions to reply to proper questions respectfully asked, and when Sir A. J. Smith either ignored questions asked by hearers, or evaded them, it shows he is no longer capable of taking a fair and dignified position in public affairs.

In his speech Sir A. J. Smith said the Post had promised the Conservative party "would build the Cape Tormentine Railway." He asked: "Why don't they do it. They have millions of surplus."

Where was Sir A. J. Smith's professed friendship for Sir S. L. Tilley when the latter refused to accept the Lieut.-Governorship and to get out of the way? Did he rejoice that at the change of Government his friend Sir Leonard Tilley had at last

The President.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 6.—The morning was sent to-night to Morton, Minister at Paris, and to Lowell, Minister at London: The President left Washington at half-past six this morning and reached Long Branch twenty minutes past one.

The great advantage of Farming over commercial pursuits is evidenced in the startling fact that not over 10 per cent. of commercial men succeed in business.

Not very many years ago, Hunt's Merchants Magazine, an authority on commercial matters in America, found reason to conclude that not five men out of a hundred engaged in commercial pursuits could continue them successfully for a life time.

A list of names of wholesale houses to the number of 100, taken from a Chicago directory of 1870, embracing the first four names that occurred in the alphabetical classification of 25 different wholesale interests, was submitted to Dun's people, who were asked to decide how many of the firms which it contained, had come to grief up to the present time.

An old farmer of Pictou county, N. S., has been overhauling his accounts to see if Mr. Blake's statements about the increased price of everything are correct. He finds a difference in favor of horse-shoeing of 25 cents per set in favor of the present time.

PERSONALS.—Sir Leonard Tilley left St. John for Ottawa yesterday. According to present arrangements, the Princess Louise will leave Liverpool for Canada in the Allen steamer, sailing on Thursday, Oct. 20th.

THE WEATHER.—The weather the past week has been very favorable to hay-making and a great amount of work has been done. Reports come in from country districts that the potato crop has been seriously injured by the rot, and the rust and weevil have affected the wheat crop.
