THE TORY SLOUGH.

Editor Robinson this morning tells us, that in spite of all our criticism of the Premier's doing, Sir Edward would offer us the glad hand and help us out of a slough. And Editor Robinson speaks as one speaking with authority and knowledge. His readers know full well he is Sir Edward's journalistic mouth-piece. It is passing strange that the editor of the Morison organ should play such a part, but he has been playing it now for some considerable time, and it is overt evidence of Sir Edward's guile. So much then for his authority. As to his knowledge that is a matter of record. No one has abused Sir Edward more roundly than Editor Robinson and his chief patron, Hon. D. Morison, unless it be his twin brother of the Chronicle. No one has attacked him more fiercely than this trio of political heeler who have been deep in the political slough.

We furnish to-day a specimen of Robinson's abuse of Morris, and we can furnish more specimens as occasion demands. Here is one:

"For Sir E. P. Morris, it is enough that moneyed men, capitalists like the Harmsworths are concerned. Capitalists have an apparently irresistible attraction for him. It is long since the tribune of the west end became transformed into the courtier of King Pentas, whether Prince Reid or Prince Harmsworth be the regent. But what wonder! Sir Edward has more than one illustrious example, wealth not infrequently transforming the socialist into a reactionary of the bluest tint. After all, the man who could vote for the contract of 1898, and then vote for that of 1901, could vote for anything, and we may well be pardoned for not taking seriously his views of any contract where capitalists are concerned."

Is it a wonder then that the lines quoted by the Editor of the Daily News stick in his memory? Is it a wonder that the author of the abuse applies them to the man who took him out of the political slough and hoisted him into the Legislative Council?

A perusal of the words will point the moral. They are:—
"While you are abusing him, even now, he would help either one of you out of a slough."

Mr. Robinson speaks from personal experience, and who should know if he does not, and moreover he has other examples before his eyes. There is the parallel case of the Hon. P. T. McGrath, who heaped abuse on Morris and now finds himself an honourable member of the Legislative Council.

Striking as these illustrations are, they pale into insignificance before the illustration to which a veiled allusion is made in the objection taken to our criticism of the action of the Governor and the Prime Minister in the Morison case. We have dared to criticize the sacrosanct features of these veiled prophets, and to tell them what we think of their whitewashing of Morison, and as a result called forth confessions of Mr. Robinson. He calls upon himself and his readers in charity to remember that "Folks never understand the folks they hate." What a penitent mood Editor Robinson is in at present! And how charitable!

Mr. Morison could never have understood Sir Edward when he wrote of him:
"If my main object in life was what the man in the street called political success, I might take pattern by Sir E. P. Morris, who is such a warm friend of Temperance reformers and rum-sellers alike at one and the same time."

"However," in the words of the Hon. J. A. Robinson, "let us in charity remember that 'folks never understand the folks they hate.'"

Let us remember, too, about Sir Edward:
While you are abusing him thus, even now he would help either one of you out of a slough.

Are the public likely to forget that Sir Edward Morris helped the Hon. Donald Morison out of the slough into which his Orange Bay letter and his timber greed had plunged him?

But they do not honour Sir Edward Morris for that. They attribute it to the fear that if he had not pulled him out, the whole administration would have been shortly in a political slough out of which they could not have extricated themselves.

They do not honour Sir Edward for setting the Hon. Donald Morison, the Hon. P. T. McGrath and the Hon. J. A. Robinson on political pinnacles, no more than they trust him for deceiving them about the cost of the railway. They have lost confidence in him, just as we lost confidence in him.

The editor of the Daily News declares some years ago we delighted to honour Sir Edward Morris. Yes, that is so. But, it was before he became a political turncoat and succumbed to the blandishments of the Tory party. Has the Daily News editor forgotten the blandishment used in a letter to the Daily News of May 17th, 1909, when Sir Edward Morris was acting as Premier during the absence of Sir Robert Bond in London?

Here are the concluding words: "Sir E. P. Morris is fortunate in the possession of friends on both sides of politics, who are proud of his success and who will be glad to see him at the proper time go up higher." These words were significant and foreshadowed the action of Sir Edward Morris three months later, when he left the Bond government.

But they are no more significant than words which appeared in another Tory paper of an earlier date, when Morris was called the Man of the Hour, and called upon to leave the government.

JOHN B. AYRE.

For these and many other reasons, we decline to take the glad hand of Sir Edward Morris. But we decline chiefly because he is plunging the country into a financial slough which will seriously embarrass the future. The only hope of the future is in the statesmanship of Sir Robert Bond, who will have a difficult task in taking the country out of the slough into which Morris is casting it. Doubtless, the Daily News would be pleased if Sir Robert Bond would succumb to the blandishments of Sir Edward Morris and allow himself to be put in nomination for high office. Then in charity, the plenitudo would begin to understand the folks they hate.

Then the Daily News man would have a good word for him as he had when Sir Robert gave him a job about the Post Office. But Sir Robert is too patriotic to succumb to blandishment as Sir Edward did. As for ourselves we shall continue to criticize Sir Edward Morris's administration, as order, and let us not give us a trial criticism because he is plunging the country into a financial slough which will seriously embarrass the future. Cape Race Report

Special to Evening Telegram. CAPE RACE, To-day. Wind west, light, with dense fog and rain; nothing heard passing. Bar. 29.40; Ther. 52.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—Rev. Brother Kennedy, Mt. St. Francis, very gratefully acknowledges, per Hon. M. P. Gibbs, K. C., the sum of one thousand dollars from the estate of the late Fr. Roe. P. P. Harbour Main—advtd.

But the journalist or public man who comes out boldly and criticizes acts derogatory to the King's government, is serving the King best, and endeavoring to preserve the fame and name of the Kingship unsullied. As to Sir Robert Bond, he will be faced with a gigantic task in extricating the Colony from the slough into which the Morris administration has plunged it. But he is a statesman, cast in heroic mould, and he will face the task, as he faced a similar task in 1895.

War Has Now
Been Declared
ON BOTH OF THE INFINITE ELEMENTS OF TIME AND SPACE.
BY J. R. HAMILTON.

With the beginning of the last century, civilization began its war on time. In the middle of the century, it began the actual war on sickness. At the beginning of this century, we began the war against space. Before the end of the century we shall be in the thick of the fight on the last of the infinite stronghold—DEATH—

This article deals with only two great struggles against Time and Space. If you want to see how bitterly men are fighting Time, get on the Twentieth Century Limited, or the Pennsylvania Special, from Chicago to New York, and see people holding their watches jealously against the start and the finish of that eighteen hour race. Or take a flyer from San Francisco to Chicago and watch the people chuckle at the two hours they have apparently added to their lives when they set their watches back an hour at Ogden and La Platte.

And if you want to measure the bitterness of the fight against Space, go out and count the dead that have been surrendered both to the racers across the earth and through the sky. And if you want to see the commercial results of this fight against Time and Space, go out and look at the faces of the millions of young men who already have achieved success even before they have come to their physical prime. Indeed the faces of an old man who is through with life is almost a curiosity in this age.

Business especially is constantly fighting these two elements with modern weapons. Such weapons as fast express trains, telegraph wires and midnight rides. Every possible effort is made to get and provide the best of every commodity at the lowest price that can be secured. But all these flying squadrons of buyers, with their fast trains and telegraph wires, all the ingenuity of inventors, of assemblers and managers would be of little avail if it weren't for one more weapon—the advertising. For advertising is the method by which the world is told what the world has done. It is the great commercial report of accomplishment. All those who accomplish the best results must advertise. Therefore, if you would accomplish the best results on your part, you must read the advertising.

Many a family is ten years behind the times because it has not learned to follow the advertising—because it has not caught the spirit of advertising in this rapid age. Whenever you save a dollar, you save a part of a day. Whenever, through the advertising, you find out where to go direct to get the best results, you clip off a certain coupon of space. Time and Space are always exchangeable for par at the bank of Fortune. Whenever you save five minutes of your day or a half a mile out of your routine path, you can take it straight to the bank and cash it in.

Really, the most wonderful weapon of all with which everyone is fighting these two elements of Time and Space is advertising.

Rescued From Drowning.

A few days ago an 8 year old boy named Gooby was nearly drowned near Job's Southside premises. While near Job's Southside premises, while getting over the head of the pier he became excited and fell into the water. The youth, being unable to swim, struggled desperately. Eventually he became exhausted, was gradually going beneath the surface to rise no more when Edgar Whitten, who was working at seal skins on the wharf, heard the outcry, and without diverting himself of the heavy clothing he wore, jumped overboard and saved the boy in the nick of time from a watery grave. Whitten is a prominent member of the C. L. B., and was one of this year's rowing crew. This is not the first time he has displayed pluck and heroism.

Here and There.

LEFT FOR IRELAND.—Rev. Father Clark, who was spending a four weeks vacation at Holyrood went by the Mongolian yesterday. Quite a number of his former parishioners of Torbay were on the pier to see him off.

Fishery News.

St. Jacques.—Schr. Companion from Grand Banks with 800 qtls. of fish. Flower's Cove — East wind and clear; no fish; traps ashore.

Harbor Grace.—Hook and line 1 to 1 1/2 qtls.; traps nothing.

Trinity.—Wind moderate, showery; traps 1/2 to 3 qtls.; caplin plentiful.

Lanaline.—"Calm and foggy. Very little fishing being done on account of shortage of bait; dogfish still in evidence.

Holyrood.—No sign of squid here or vicinity; plenty of caplin.

LOOKING FOR SQUID.—Squid bait is a serious problem at the present time on the S. W. Coast. There are now a couple of hundred schooners in that section seeking bait. This morning communications were received in the city from various places to the Westward asking for information as to where possibilities are good for a squid baiting. Squid are exceptionally late striking in this year.
