A TESTOTAL PREACHER ASKS FOR A GLASS AND GETS IT.

A testotal Minister, who was very particular about his toilet, went to preach one Sunday for a brother Minister in a parish in Kinrossshire. On entering the vestry he looked around in search of a mirror, to see that his appearance was all right before entering the pulpit, but, failing to find one, he said to the beadle:

"John, can I have a glass before entering the pulpit?"

"Certainly, sir," replied John. "Just bide a wee, and I'll get one for you immediately, and he left the vestry at once. On his return the Minister said, "Well, John, have you succeeded. Yes, sir," replied John; "I've brocht a gill, that'll be a glass for the forenoon and another for the afternoon."

HAM AND CHEESE.

On one occasion the late Rev. Walter Dunlop, of the U.P. Church, Dumfries, after a hard day's labor and while at a dinner-table, as he called it, kept incessantly praising the ham, and stating that "Mr. Dunlop at home was as fond of ham like that as he was when the mistress kindly offered to send her the present of a ham."

"It's unco' kin' o' ye, unco' kin'—but I'll no pit ye to the trouble. 'I'll just tak' it home on the horse afore me."

When, on leaving, he mounted, and the ham was put into a sack, some difficulty was experienced in getting it to lie properly. His inventive genius soon cut the gordian knot. "I think, mistress, a cheese in the either 'en' would mak' a gran balance." The hint was immediately acted on, and like another John Gilpin, he moved away with his balance true.

THE HIGHLANDER AND THE ANGELS.

A genuine Highlander was one day looking at a print from a picture by one of the old masters, in which angels were represented blowing trumpets, he inquired if angels played on trumpets, and being answered in the affirmative made the following pithy remark:

"Heh, aye, but they maun be pleased wi' music. I wonder they dinna borrow a pair o' bagpipes."

THE FLY-FISHER AND THE HIGHLAND LASSIE.

An English tourist visited Arran, and being a keen disciple of Isaac Walton, was arranging to have a good day's sport. Being told that the horse-fly would suit his purpose admirably for bait, he addressed himself to Christy, the Highland servant-maid. "I say, my girl, can you get me some horse-flies?" Christy looked staid and he repeated his question. Finding that she did not yet comprehend him, he exclaimed: "Why, girl, did you never see a horse-fly?" "Nae, sir," said the girl, "but a wansie saw a coo jump over a preshipie."

A MISDEAL.

A celebrated Scotch divine had just risen up to the pulpit to lead the congregation in prayer, when a gentleman in front of the gallery took out his handkerchief to wipe the dust from his brow, forgetting that a pack of cards was wrapped up in it; the whole pack was scattered over the breast of the gallery. The minister could not resist a sarcasm, solemn as the act was in which he was about to engage. "O' man! man, surely your psalm book has been ill-bund."

LESS SENSE THAN A SHEEP.

Lord Cockburn, the proprietor of Bonally, was sitting on a hillside with a shepherd, and observing the sheep resting in the coolest situation he observed to him, "John, if I were a sheep, I would lie on the other side of the hill." The shepherd answered, "Ay, my lord, but if ye had been a sheep, ye would have mair sense."

THE CHIEFTAIN AND THE CARRY.

The following story illustrates the disadvantage of having an article in common use called after one's own name. The chief of the Clan McIntosh once had a dispute with a cabman about his fare. "So you know who I am?" indignantly exclaimed the Highlander. "I am the McIntosh." "I don't care if you are an Umbrella," replied the cabby. "I'll have my rights."

NOT AT HOME.

One evening, John Clerk (Lord Eldon) had been dipping rather too freely in the convivial bowl with a friend in Queen Street, Edinburgh, and on emerging into the open air, his intellect became to a considerable extent confused, and not being able to distinguish objects with any degree of minuteness or certainty, he thought himself in a fair way of losing the road to his own house in Piccadilly Place. In this perplexity he applied some one coming towards him, whom he stopped with this query:

"Dye ken whaur John Clerk bides?" "What's the use o' your speerit? that question?" said the man. "You're John Clerk himsel'."

"I ken that," said John, "but it's no himsel' that's wanted—it's his house."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
"THE GREAT KIDNEY CURE"

Address to Jonas Barter, Esq.

By the Members of the Truckmen's Protective Union on the Occasion of His Retirement from the Presidency of the Union.

Dear Mr. Barter,—
It is with feelings of deepest regret that we learn of your intention to retire from the Presidency of our Union. While we appreciate the fact that the eminent services you have rendered the Union during the past twenty-five years—for practically the whole of which period you have occupied this, the highest position in the gift of our organization—entitle you to a well-earned rest and freedom from the duties and responsibilities of executive office, we cannot but feel that individually and collectively we are suffering an irreparable loss by your retirement.

You may well be called "the father of the Truckmen's Protective Union" for it was due to your efforts, influence, and foresight that the Union came into existence, and down through the years since its inception you have ever given of your best to the furtherance of its aims and objects, working zealously and unceasingly for its welfare, fostering its ideals, and watching over its destiny with paternal care and solicitude that had for their object not alone the advancement and protection of the Union as a corporate organization but the happiness, prosperity and contentment of its members.

Beginning nearly a quarter of a century ago with a membership of six, without means or influence but with the strong faith and courage and indomitable spirit of its founder, to spur it on, it boasts to-day a membership of over two hundred and an unassailable position in the mercantile life of the community.

You were its first President and your term of office continued practically unbroken down to the present day. During that time great has been its advancement and innumerable the benefits and advantages it has secured to its members through your wise guidance and control. You always stood for the true principles of Unionism—the amelioration of living conditions, the safeguarding and advancement of the rights of labor, the betterment of the position of the employee, and the recognition of the just claims of the employer; and you exemplified in your own life the principles you so steadfastly advocated. You now ask to be relieved of an office you have filled with such distinction and success and though we would have it otherwise we yet feel that you have well earned the rest you now seek. You must be supremely gratified at the success that has crowned your efforts—as gratified as we are appreciative of all that you have done on our behalf. "A man's work lives after him" is all truth yours on behalf of the Union will be a perpetual testimony to the magnitude of the task you undertook and the unqualified success you made of it.

We tender you this expression of our admiration for your work and our appreciation of your services on our behalf, and bid you an affectionate farewell as you step down from the active life of our executive. We ask your acceptance of the Honorary Presidency of our Union, and as a further indication of our esteem for you we present you with the accompanying souvenir, and express the sincere wish that you will be spared many, many years to still counsel and advise us and to see the fruition of your fondest hopes.

Signed on behalf of The Truckmen's Protective Union.

DENIS J. FITZGERALD, Chairman.
PATRICK MURPHY, Secretary.

St. John's, May 11th, 1922.

REPLY:
Mr. Chairman and Members of the T.P.U.

Words fail me to express to you my deep appreciation of your recognition of my past services as President of your Union.

I can assure you that if I had done anything, it has only been what I considered my duty to my fellow-men. I am proud of the good feeling that exists in the Union, and also of the willingness of the members to conform to reasonable terms with the employer of labor who, I must say, always treated us with respect since the formation of the Union.

I, with others who have passed to the Great Beyond, with others who are still alive, believed that "Union is Strength," and saw the great need for the banding together of the Truckmen.

You will agree with me, Mr. Chairman, when I say we have been an asset to the community when you consider that we have liberally subscribed to the C. of E. Tower Fund, the O'Donnell Wing, the National Sports Regatta, the Mt. Cashel Orphanage, C. of E. Orphanage, and several other worthy purposes, besides contributing to our Mortality Fund.

It is my earnest desire that the same good-will will exist in the future as it has in the past.

Your new President, who has had a wide experience will, I feel sure, secure your hearty co-operation while

Great "Tarzan" Story At the Crescent.

MODERN HERCULES STARS IN MOVIE FILM.

Everybody admires a strong man, and patrons of this popular house of amusement will have the chance, to-night, to see a modern "Hercules" in the famous story entitled, "The Revenge of Tarzan." Almost three hundred applicants were interviewed before Gene Pollar was selected for the role of "Tarzan" in this production. The character demanded both splendid physical prowess and attractive personality. Mr. Pollar who was, to be exact, the 285th man interviewed, had just returned from nineteen months in service abroad. Judging from this picture, it appears that there isn't a dare in the whole world of stunts that we won't grab and grin at. In the jungle episode Tarzan is shown springing from tree to tree with the agility supposed to have been acquired by his upbringing in the forests.

There is also in store for patrons, an excellent treat of vocal music by Miss Betty Dunn, and this in itself is sufficient guarantee of a pleasant evening's enjoyment.
