The Situation in the Bruces

(Fourth of a series of articles on the political situation in Western Ontario.)
[BY A. D. CLARKE.]

SOUTHAMPTON, June 18.—The Whitney government has at last given Bruce county some consideration in the matter of legislation. Here is where we meet Jerry Mander. Jerry has been received none too cordially by the fair-minded Germans and Scots, but it is a question now whether he will be of any real service to his pirate chiefs. Those who devised him thought to gain much. They many gain a little. They may be disappointed entirely.

TORIES EXPECT TWO SEATS.

By carving up the three Bruce's and dis-uniting families, the Hanna-Reaume surgeons aimed to secure two out of three seats that formerly went Liberal. They could not have them all, so they hired the Liberals, and handed them to Charlie Bowman. By shifting boundaries, that have existed ever since Bruce had three electoral districts, they found a place, which they felt must elect a Conservative, and called it North Bruce. By further alterations they fixed up a little oasis, grouping several places having liquor licenses. This they named South Bruce. They eliminated Centre Bruce, and created West Bruce, in which Mr. Bowman has nothing to fear at the hands of his opponent, Chas. Green, of Southampton.

In doing these things, they took a seat away from J. G. Anderson, and forced him to seek pastures new. (From latest reports he is finding the browsing good.)

RESULT OF LAST ELECTION.

In the last election the three Liberals went in with majorities as follows:

North Bruce, Bowman	391
Centre Bruce, McDonald	104
South Bruce, Anderson	306

The same vote, were it recorded in the present arrangement, would give these majorities:

North Bruce, Conservative	234
South Bruce, Conservative	7
West Bruce, Liberal	1041

Wm. McDonald, former member for Centre Bruce, is tackling the 284 handicap in North Bruce, and his election over H. A. Vanduzen, who opposed Mr. Bowman in the last election, is already conceded even by some Conservatives who have been active in the campaign.

This is effect No. 1 of the gerrymander. Sharp practice by a top-heavy Government, which used its great majority to do as it liked when it liked, which brought on an election when it was not needed, and loaded the dice at that in order to add to its brute force, does not seem to have been received sympathetically.

The little licensed haven they have created in South Bruce may give Mr. Hanna and his friends some trouble, too. It is comprised of six wet municipalities: Greenock township, Brant township, Walkerton town, Carrick township, and Culross township—all wet—and Teeswater village—dry.

The Liberal township of Kinloss and the Liberal village of Lucknow were taken off South Bruce, and the wet township of Greenock was added.

A THOROUGHLY WET RIDING.

The idea of a thoroughly wet riding must have appealed to the Provincial secretaries as having some possibilities in a campaign, where the matter of licenses is such a pronounced issue.

Very serious thought was given to the selection of a government candidate for this special riding. Three prominent Conservatives were after the convention, namely, Otto Klein, of Walkerton; Dr. Fowler, of Teeswater, and Robert McCullum, of Brant township. These men were so keen that a split in the party was feared, and Wellington Cargill, the man who went down before Reuben Truax in the Dominion by-election, was coaxed to allow his name to go before the convention. Mr. Cargill was not anxious for local honors, but it was apparent that he was the only man to whom the other three aspirants would give way, and he yielded.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE POPULAR.

Mr. Johnson, who opposes Mr. Cargill, is the former proprietor of the Mildmay Gazette. He was born in the township of Carrick. He is running as an Independent Liberal, and is exceedingly popular throughout the riding. He has a good chance for election. He has only a majority of seven to overcome, plus the liquor influence.

The defense of the Conservatives for the gerrymander is that they have equalized the population. It did not require all the shuffling that was done to do this. By taking the township of Arran and the village of Tara from the North and placing them in the Centre, the same result, from a standpoint of population, could have been attained.

Rev. Mr. Rodger has always been a front rank fighter in the temperance battles which have been waged in Owen Sound, and has a host of the best temperance Conservatives lined up and working for him in the present campaign.
