"Willie, when did you wash your face last?" "Mother, don't let's bring up the past." were covered with mud, their arms no ulonger shone, but their chests were still out and they marched as bravely as before, only now was hardened veterans, and again the 26th New Brunswick Battalion was reviewed by His Gracious Majesty the King. They had seen ten months' fighting, those lads of the 26th, when reviewed the second time, but the king immediately recognized that unit which had pleased him so greatly when on parade in England and again he was pleased as he saw their splendid bearing after they had been tried by fire on the western front. The latest triumph of the 26th was in the recent Somme fighting and there the Canadian eye-witness says they carried themselves with great gallantry. They fought side by side with their brothers from Nova Scotia and Quebec, and fighting their metal rang as true as any on that bloody field which bore the maple leaf.
