THOMAS McILWRAITH,
(HAMILTON, ONT.)
Second Edition, Enlarged and Revised to Date, with Illustrations by ERNEST E. THOMPSON and Others.
Cloth, 424 Pages, #2.00

"For many years Mr. McIlwraith has been the acknowledged and official head of Ornithology in Ontario, and his name attached to any work is sufficient guarantee of merit; for since the days of GOSSE I believe there has been no Canadian naturalist who more happily combined accurate knowledge with a felicitous manner of expressing it. When Mr. McIlwraith's first edition appeared it was practically out of print within a few months of its publication, and the number of enquiries during the last year or two show that a similar reception awaits this, for the work is undoubtedly the best extant on the birds of Ontario."—ERNEST E. THOMPSON, Naturalist to the Manitoba Government.

THEN AND NOW!!
In older times, newspapers were considered valuable to readers only for their news, and advertisements were mere incidental surplusage, inserted by merchants as a sort of charity to help fill up the paper, and rarely attracted attention. Today the newspaper is indispensable, not only to the merchant, but to the shoppers of the family, as the universally accepted medium of attracting business. Advertisements are no longer the regulation musty affairs they used to be. They are among the most artistic and attractive features of the popular newspaper, and the frugal housewife scans the business announcements as carefully as the dealer or speculator scans the produce or money markets. These business houses that patronize the newspapers are the ones that secure the bulk of trade. The carefully edited, compact, fresh, complete, cheap, and neatly printed newspaper is the popular favorite, and the only channel through which the public can be reached either for business or sentiment.—McClelland's (Pa.)
