CONDESCENSION. — At a meeting of the Philadelphia Bible Society, in the First Presbyterian meeting-house, on the 27th ult., Dr. Tyng made a speech, in which he alluded in flattering terms to the Bishop elect of Pensylvania. He was followed by Dr. Parker, of the Clinton street meeting-house, who graciously said, "He would take it upon himself to say, on behalf of his Presbyterian brethren, that they will receive the new Bishop as a brother beloved; that being ourselves Bishops, we shall place Bishop Potter on the same high position which we ourselve occupy, and acknowledge him as in every way offici-ally our equal.—Banner of the Cross.

LAY BAPTISM.—A very strong expression of opinion upon this subject was given by the late Presbyterian Ge-neral Assembly. By a nearly unanimous vote they de-cided that, "Since baptism is an ordinance established by Christ in His Church, and is to be administered only by a minister of Christ, duly called and ordained to be a stew-ard of the nucleum of Ced it follows that no rite adminard of the mysteries of God, it follows that no rite admin istered by one who is not himself a duly ordained minister of the true church of God visible, can be regarded as an ordi-nance of Christ, whatever be the name by which it is called, whatever the form employed in its administration." — Ibid.

Fourteen Days Later from England. ARRIVAL OF THE CALEDONIA.

This regular Mail Steamer arrived at Boston, on Thursday fternoon, the 19th instant, with London and Liverpool dates to the 4th instant, making her passage in about tifteen days. The Maynooth Bill was read in the House of Commons, or the 21st May, a third time. The majority for the third reading was as follows : Ayes, for Mr. Bankes's amendment ... 184 Noes, for the third reading ... ... 317

Majority for the third reading 133 On the motion that the bill do pass, Mr. Thomas Duncomb moved an amendment limiting the operation of the act to three years. Upon this amendment the house divided as follows :--

For the amendment .... 145 Against ... ... ... 243

Majority for passing the bill without limitation 98 The following is the conclusion of Sir Robert Inglis's admi-

was bound to support a system which professed to teach the doctrines of the Established Church exclusively out of the funds of the Church of England. (Here arose a cry on the opposition side of the house, of "question.") The hon. baronet apologised for having been taken somewhat by surprise to-night. Indeed, a quarter of an hour before, he had not the slightest idea that he shead have been educed. he should have been called on to take the part he had to-night taken in this debate. But he was impressed with the idea that, however unworthily he had opposed the measure already, by his vote he was imperatively called upon to assert his principles, and could not consistently avoid resisting the bill with his, voice, (hear). He could not conceal from himself a conviction that the position of his right hon, friend at the head of the government one of the test of the bill with the government was one of the most singular responsibility. He had become responsible by the part he had taken for every measure which had emanated from the legislature for the last quar ter of a century, whether it were for good or for evil, with the exception of the Reform Bill and its corollary the Municipal Reform Act. Everything which had been done by the legisla-ture for at least the last twenty years had been effected either by him or through his active interference, and the merit or demerit of each measure must belong to his right hon. friend, in-cluding the acts which passed for the great reforms effected in our common law, the results of the ecclesiastical commission and chemical states of the ecclesiastical commission and the consequent reforms that took place in the Church.-The poor law-(loud derisive cries from the opposition benches) replied to that ironical cheer, that he was not there either to praise or to blame those measures, but only to argue from importance how great and awful was the political responsibility of his right hon. friend. Alluding to the awful power which his right hon, friend wielded, he would ask whether it would have been possible for the Whig government to have carried any of their measures if it had not been for the inter-vention of his right hon. friend? He meant that sort of inter-The same observation might be applied to the sanction instants hon, friend had given to the Manicipal Reform Bill (loud cries of "divide"). He would still remind them of the awful power his right hon, friend exercised in those respects, a power never exceeded, perhaps never equalled, by any minister before him. Who else could ever have expected to carry the measure now integrity. ing man of the day ("hear, hear," from the opposition benches) have proposed such a measure without feeling a certainty of being defeated? (hear, hear). The great distinction he would observe in the present time as compared with the past was this, that there was a marked encouragement to the Church of Rome displayed by the present government whenever it had it Rome displayed by the present government whenever it had it in its power to bestow it (hear, hear), whether at home or abroad ("at Oxford, at Oxford," exclaimed some voices on the abroad (" at Oxford, at Oxford," exclaimed some voices on the opposition benches). The opinions of Oxford University were only to be taken from the decrees pronounced in convocation. There had appeared in the paper of their proceedings a notice of a bill which he had thought had passed that house some years ago - a bill with the title of Roman Catholic Relief Bill. He had thought that in the year 1829 the Roman Catholic Relief Bill had passed into a law. The object of that bill was to repeal the protective and conservative portions of the bill of repeal the protective and conservative portions of the bill of 1829, and to legalise the introduction of monasteries and mouastic orders. The bill had been brought in without a single observation, and had now been nearly three months on the table of the house. He regretted to say that the Roman Catholie Church was receiving the most direct encouragement, both at home and abroad. In the year 1797 a university was established in the province of Canada, for the purpose of main-taining the Protestant Church there established, and 222,973 acres of land were granted (a laugh). He hardly knew whether the lands of the joint of the purpose of the lange of the lange of the joint the laugh of the hon, member for Kerry was directed against the laugh of the hon, member for Kerry was directed against the credulity of those who supposed that such a grant could have been made with a bond fiele intention of continuing it, or whether it was meant as a mark of contempt for those who believed that the government would be willing to continue it. But however that might be, her Majesty's government had taken big orders. taken his advice or perhaps the advice of his great namesake (a langh) in religion and in policy, and they had, through their Governor General in Canada, brought in a bill for taking from that Protestant University that property which was vested by their predecessors for the permanent support of the Church of England in Canada, and by a majority of eleven they had repently heir bridge the superstructure of the superformation. recently decided that the property should be transferred from the Protestant University to a university the distinguishing ure of which was that there should be no religious instruction, test, or tenet in that university (hear, hear). Was he not justified in saying that abroad and in England. and, also, as an encouragement of the Protestant Church of England, and ot England came forth. Believing that the present measure had opposed it more than he should have done had he regarded it as a single insulated measure. Other members of the regarded present measure indicated, in Ireland, there was a systema-discouragement of the Protestant Church of England, and it as a single insulated measure. Other members of the govern-ment had allowed themselves to say that this was an instalment of the ment ind allowed themselves to say that this was an instalment of the debt alrealy due; but so long as the right hon. baront at the head of her Majesty's government did not say that it was an instalment, that it was not the commencement of a new system, he should induge the hope that, however bad the mea-sure might be in itself, it was not bad in its consequences (hear, hear). If he looked to no other consequences than the excite-ter would venture in the present generation the introduction of any ulterior measures having for their object the endowment of for his colleagues. The Minister of Finance had declined to of her Sovereign, the great organ of protesting against the doc-trines of the Church of Rome in Europe. He heard with regret the remarks which had fallen from the right hon, baronet the Secretary for the University for the University for the remarks where had fallen from the right hon baronet the secretary for the University for the University for the remarks where had fallen from the right hon. he remarks which had fallen from the right hon baronet the Secretary for the Home Department the other night. No Words will not remain much longer in the Cabinet. words could fall from the right bon. baronet on such a subject to which the Protestants of England would not look with deep and and anxious attention. They would draw from a slight whisper on b. part conclusions unfavourable to their religious hopes and spiritual interests. He trusted that no encourager would be given to any qualification of that declaration, and that they would not compromise in the slightest degree that great security which the people of England had in the Protestant character which the people of England had in the Protestant character of its nominally Protestant members, and that nothing Would be done calculated to violate the integrity of the Protesnstitution. Believing that this measure was bad in itaelf, he should continue to give it the same full and determined opposition, which he gave to it when it was first announced on the part. the part of her Majesty's government (hear, hear).

There was a petition from the Archdeaconry of Northampton, with 137 signatures of clergymen, and one from that of Suffolk, including only the eastern part of the county, with 116 signatures. All denominations of Dissenters, with the exception of those who professed Socialianism or Unitarian the exception of those who processed socialism of Unitarian doctrines, were also strongly opposed to the grant. The Bishop of DURHAM and another right rev. prelate like-wise presented several petitions against the Maynooth Bill. The Duke of GRAFTON and the Earl of CAWDOR presented petitions to the same effect.

The Bishop of LONDON presented four petitions against the bill—one from the Isle of Wight, another from a place in Mid-dlesex, a third from a place in Essex, and one from Bayswater.

visited the League Bazaar; but it seems that, after all, the success of the affair in its main object of raising cash is at least success of the affair in its main object of raising cush is at least questionable. In London any gew-gaw exhibition will attract visitors; and if a runnour of a squeeze for admission be judi-cionsly propagated, the sight success are irresistibly caught. Thither they flock in crowds; for the Couldance and fe-male, is a gregarious animal, and delights in the character in-cidents of ruffled muslin and disordered hats. Visitors, how-ever, are not always buyers, and herein consists the probable failure of this new trick of the League. At first enormous prices, we are told, were put upon the articles exposed for sale, in the belief that the bright eyes and ruddy checks of the Lan-cashire Leaguereeses would be too much for the Londoners to withstand. But the ladies expended their fascinations in vain. In vain dd they catch gentlemen by the arm, and with softs sonile and most insinuating tone exclaim, "What d'ye buy, pretupon the goods. People began to find out that it was not quite creditable in these Leaguers to raise money for their own selfish ends by under-selling the respectable tradesman. So that upon the whole, when the immense expense of decoration that has been made about the Covent Garden toy-shop. deed, one London journal goes so far as to declare that the Leagne will be a heavy loser by the speculation. So be it, say we, for the end and the meaus are alike bad.—Cambridge

INDIA.

We have received the bi-monthly Indian mail, bringing ntelligence from Bombay to the 5th of April; Calcutta, the 7th; and Madras, the 14th.

The intelligence is not of a very important character. Sir Charles Napier's expedition against the Pindarees has been crowned with complete success. Bejar Khan, their leader, and a considerable part of his followers, have been captured.

a considerable part of his followers, have been captured. The Punjaub remains in a very unsettled state. The Khalsa troops have come to an arrangement with Goolab Singh, who is to pay them 36 lacs of rupecs. Phond Savant and his confederates continue to find sanctuary in the Goa territories. The Portuguese Governor still refuses to allow our troops to follow the rebels within his frontier, and is unable, even if he were willing, to drive out the fugiives. The measures for concentrating a body of troops on the north-west frontier of the Sutlej are nearly completed. Sir H. Hardinge will wisit the Unger Provinces during the spare

DEATH OF GENERAL JACKSON .- General Jackson, Ex-President of the United States, died at his residence, the Hermitage, on Sunday the 8th instant.

DEATH OF MAJOR BEALE .- We deeply regret having to announce the unhappy death of Major Beale, of Woodstock, which took place on Thursday evening in this city. The find-ing of a highly respectable Jury is the best account of this mournful affair. The deceased was a highly informed man, an nthusiastic loyalist and a copious writer. CANADA COMPANY .- We learn that the Canada Company as obtained, through the indefatigable exertions of Mr. Wid der, a mass of information from nearly every township in the Province, which will furnish materials for the immediate pub-lication of a Gazetteer, accompanied by a diagram of each township. The Gazetteer will contain, under the proper head, arranged alphabetically, statistical details of each township, its population, extent of cultivated and wild lands, places of worship, mills, cattle, &c., hotels or taverns, &c., with many other important details. The diagrams will exhibit the travelled roads, distance, &c, and cannot fail to be a most useful auxiliary to the traveller, as well as to all classes of the population, and more especially the newly arrived emigrant. Purchasers were rare area, and the sight of a drawn purse threw the whole theatre in a flutter. In short extortion-ate prices would not do. Nor indeed does it appear that much greater success attended the affair when reasonable sums were say 150 acres for each family—employ hands to clear and sow five acres on each lot with fall wheat, which will cost about £15. -during the winter clear up five acres more and erect a good shanty on each Lot; the land to be planted with Potatoes and and show is taken into the account, it is likely enough that but small profit will fall into the League's wallet, after all the fuss making in all, for the 10 acres under crop, and the sharty. £35. When the emigrants arrive in mid-summer for whom these loca-tions have been made-(say six to twelve families) they proceed direct to their farms—under the guidance of their deputy, who will probably meet them at Quebec for the purpose, and to save them from imposition, there they will find a roof to shelter them, 415-2 heir crops growing around them-their fall grain nearly ready for the sickle, and their roots requiring the immediate use of the hoe or plough. They go to work immediately—they are at hand to cheer and assist each other in cases of sickness or "merry as a marriage bell." They have no more than two months' food to purchase, and that, where a quantity is required can always be bought on more favorable terms than in mointies. This little settlement will in the next year be able to employ the heads of at least a dozen poor families to assist in enlarging their clearings,---and in a short time they will be able to support a Minister of the Gospel to dispense the Word of Life amongst them-a well qualified Te cher to instruct their children, and a Physician to cure their bodily ills-they will pos-sess all the elements of a thriving settlement-i prove their own condition by emigrating to the Province, and at the sam time contribute to its wealth, its inteiligence, and consequent Scarfs, Gloves, Silk Stocks, Caps, Suspenders, &c. &c.

This is by no means a highly coloured picture of what might be the almost immediate condition of housands who emigrate to Canada, did they only pursue the course we have pointed out. It is thus that the Germans and the Swiss and the New tion shall be paid to the execution of orders which has been England Yankees emigrate to the Western States, and hence their success. There are thousands of acres of the best land in the Province to be obtained in the way referred to, and on the most reasonable terms-indeed proprietors generally would be willing to accept 20 per cent, less than to sell their lands by piece-meal, -Kingston Chronicle & Gazette.

astonishment, we think, in England, more especially as it is understood that on a former occasion the home authorities were not backward in showing their displeasure. Certain Simmese priests went to Kandy for the purpose of seeing and worshipping the relic called the tooth of Badh, which is carefully preserved by our government. If the elerks in the pub-lic offices are too lazy, or too proud, or too stupid to make themselves masters of the public business, let them be turned themselves masters of the public business, let them be turned out toute suite to make way for those that will; the Duke of Wellington's hint to the Treasury clerks at home, "that if they could not do the work of the office, he would discharge a dozen sergeants from the Guards that both could and would," would not be a bad one to act on here—but we have generally observed that just as is the head of a department just so will wille and the Minister of Marine, on the subject of the steam navy of France, in regard to which, the Prince purposes it is said, to publish another note, as a supplement to his first bro-inguishing nis instruc-Was he ond, also, as a systema-tion of the coast of Africa, which are intended to exercise an a criver and combined surveillance over the vessels of their respec-tion of the subject. RELIGIOUS PAPERS .- Because of the great power wielded through the sgency of the press, and its frequent perversion to contention and other evil ends, individuals are found who ex-claim against the employment of this engine for religious pur poses, some perhaps even proceed to the extreme of discountenancing all religious newspapers. The following passage from the address of the Bishop of Missouri, to the late Convention of his Diocese, percinently showing the error of this kind of "It is to be expected that we shall not at all times be pleased with the articles of any print. We read scarcely a book with a total concurrence in its sentiments. An editor's mind is ONE, while the minds of his readers are many. But let us not be afraid or ill disposed, therefore, as to this engine of useful-ness. We might as well abuse the art of printing, because we never read a volume with which we entirely accord, as condemn the press, with its mighty influence for good or evil, because we have sometimes found in one of its papers a sentiment not exactly our own."—N.
