

FOREWORD

The Government's most valuable asset is its employees. Senior Management of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade place the highest priority on the well-being of every building occupant. The effectiveness of this commitment is reliant upon the continuing support and participation of employees. Everyone has a role to play and it remains the responsibility of all employees to familiarize themselves with the established emergency procedures and to abide by them fully, should the need arise.