

Baptist Church and other Protestant churches, the Presbyterian Church and the Episcopal Church have more than 500,000 active members of women's auxiliary societies and their services primarily for war work

The organized activities of the women in these five groups will annually contribute exceeding $100,000,000 Women of the Protestant Churches will through their women's organizations and women's missionary societies, throughout an ever increasing of all kinds and every district blackest and darkest as well as enlightenment to millions and men in the armed forces and their dependents

It is the purpose of these women's organizations to provide funds for the purchase of necessities and relief for the families of the armed services and the interest and the general financial aid to churches in the services

These women's organizations have been able to station out all over the world and their services are being rendered in the most efficient and effective manner possible and to the highest credit of their churches

and the world

Women of the Protestant churches are interested in the causes of the world, organized on a national and district basis with the object of promoting a far-reaching war-time program and cooperating with various organizations in promoting domestic and foreign relief and service work and general education and other work of the kind of the National Council of Women and other organizations and their work is being carried on in the most efficient

and effective manner possible and to the highest credit of their churches

and the world

and their work is being carried on in the most efficient

and effective manner possible and to the highest credit of their churches

and the world

and their work is being carried on in the most efficient

and effective manner possible and to the highest credit of their churches

and the world

and their work is being carried on in the most efficient