

Canadians who remain in Hong Kong for three months or more are encouraged to register with the Canadian Consulate General. This will make it easier for Canadian officials to help you in the event of an emergency.

Conditional and Unconditional Stay

Most Canadians who first enter Hong Kong with the intent to live there initially acquire Conditional Stay status. Permission to work is granted separately. Conditional Stay status can be revoked at any time and must be renewed periodically.

After seven years of continuous residency under Conditional Stay status, you can apply for Unconditional Stay status or the Right of Abode. The Unconditional Stay relieves you of the need to periodically renew residence and work permits. This is an administrative measure that does not convey any legal right to stay, and it can be revoked at the discretion of the Director of Immigration.

The Right of Abode

Persons holding Right of Abode status cannot be deported. The law concerning the Right of Abode treats individuals differently depending on their ethnic background. Canadians of Chinese descent who were born in Hong Kong may be considered Chinese citizens. They have the Right of Abode in the HKSAR immediately. Canadians of Chinese descent who were born elsewhere have the Right of Abode after seven continuous years of residence. The required residency may be at any time in the past and does not have to immediately precede the claim to Right of Abode status.

Persons deemed not to be of Chinese nationality can qualify for the Right of Abode if they entered Hong Kong on a valid travel document and have ordinarily resided there for seven continuous years immediately prior to applying to become a permanent resident. The period of continuous residence can be before or after the establishment of the HKSAR.

Once you have acquired the Right of Abode, you are entitled
