

Of Interest to Women

THE POEM.

Law's Worthington Smith in Success Magazine.
Light one must pause upon, pure life,
Bloom.
Breath of the summer night and treefuming gloom.
Black of the hills and spire in the profound.
Silence that awes and thrills, more sweet than sound.
Strangeness of things unseen where
Wonder of infinite sky-solitudes.
Dews and a flock of cloud, where star
Burns in the vast of time, wondrously far.

The Way to Beauty—Via the "Make-Up"

The brilliant comedienne, Kathryn Osterman, says: "Girls, be beautiful. It's all in the 'make-up,' she says. Here is the way she directs it to be done, and when she comes to the Grand Opera House in her clever comedy, 'The Girl Who Looks Like Me,' she will demonstrate it.

First, thoroughly cleanse the face with cold cream. Remember that takes time, and it may take two or three applications of cold cream and the careful removal with soft linen; then rouge the face, and, after rouging, powder. Don't put the powder on in spots. A big dab on your nose cannot be spread to cover your chin, or vice versa, so don't try it. Put the powder on a little at a time and all over the face. Blend the make-up thoroughly with a camel-hair baby brush. Then put a line carefully beneath the lower lash to make the eyes look larger, if they appear small. If you have the over prominent eye you need the line just the same, but in this case put the line above the lashes.

KATHRYN OSTERMAN

Now carefully put a dash of red paint on the corner of the eye to take off the harshness of the line, and then soften the effect. Then straighten and darken the eyebrow line with a soft pencil. Brown, if your eyebrows are rather a reddish tinge; black, if they are dark brown or black.

One thing more—lips are one of the important features of a make-up, and must have special attention. Usually the effect to overcome is thinness. This means put rouge above the lip. If the curve is not good, pay attention to that, for a little line of red, shading perfectly into the red of the lip, will straighten a curved line or curve a straight one. Work that out artistically with a model of good lips before you if you don't remember the exact curves of beauty. And there you are—a self-made beauty.

World Fairs Department

5702.—Little Girl's Juniper Dress.

Girls' Juniper Dress, developed in figured chas, trimmed with bands of plain material. Cut in sizes 4 to 12 years and will require 3-1/2 yards of 36-inch material for the eight-year size. These little dresses bid fair to be very popular this season. They are simple and practical, and their jaunty possibilities appeal to all mothers. White plaque with belt of leather would be very stylish.

The pattern here illustrated will be mailed to any address on the receipt of 10c in silver.

BE SURE AND STATE SIZE REQUIRED.

Pattern Department

Toronto World

For the above pattern to

NAME

ADDRESS

14 V. Avenue, Office of Child's

or Miss Pattern

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

2500

Her Wedding Gifts.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 27.—Within a few hours after the marriage of Mrs. Anne Weighman Walker to Frederick Courtland Penfold, in New York yesterday, her attorney in this city announced, in behalf of the bride, gifts aggregating $1,000,000, relatives and institutions in this city and state.

Course of Lectures.

A course of four lectures on the subject of "Pension Reform," having direct reference to sex, will be delivered under the auspices of the Canadian Society-Educational Association, by the honorary president, Dr. B. E. McKenzie. The first lecture will be given tomorrow (Saturday), evening 7:30, at the Guild Hall. Young women of sixteen years of age and over will be cordially welcomed at these lectures, which are free of charge. However, will be taken to cover the expenses of the room.

Children's Aid Society.

Filled to overflowing with coats in the attic and corridors and turning away four and five children a day is the condition of affairs at the Children's Aid Society. The annual meeting was held yesterday, and those directly interested in the work of the institution had many regrets to voice that the hard time period should have struck the institution at a time when the community was so much in need of its influence. The building has a capacity of thirty-five, but is giving accommodation to forty-four, while hundreds of needy cases are being left unaided. An addition to the building was to cost $15,000, and all the funds for this account have been accounted to $800. The city council promised $6500, but there has been no intimation as to when it will be paid over. The fund will increase the capacity 100 per cent. Then, too, the classroom in the present building is entirely inadequate, and Inspector Hughes advised that the board of education be asked for a larger room and increased equipment.

Police Inspector Archibald regretted that people at large didn't know the extent of the good the society was doing, and that if they did they might be more liberal. The shelter was crowded with waifs and strays, and only had one juvenile delinquent, which meant rescuing so many souls from criminal pursuits. The number of cases coming before the officers of the society during the year was 1330, involving the interest of 1451 children, an increase of 261 cases over the preceding year. The complaints were 218, or 58 less. The total number of cases dealt with by the society since its inception is 14,333, involving the interests of 19,014 children. The children's cases for 1907 were 1112, compared with 765 for the year 1906.

Receipts for 1906 totalled $4500, including the civic grant of $3000, with a balance of $84.04.

Personal.

The following gentlemen had the honor of being invited to dinner on Thursday at Government House: E. W. Rathbun, E. E. Fraser, J. Studholme, W. Andlauer, D. S. Gillingham, D. E. Racine, A. Hislop, D. Reed, R. A. Thompson, Dr. Morley Currie, E. A. Dunlop, D. J. McCall, C. Bowman, C. A. Brower, G. J. Ferguson, Dr. Nixon, J. H. Fisher, Dr. Forbes Godfrey, C. C. Hodgins, W. A. Preston, G. Kerr, T. E. Bradburn, Alex. Ferguson, M. J. Morrison, S. J. Fox, D. Jamieson, Dr. E. Jessop, A. O. Aubin, W. J. Paul, A. C. Pratt, E. H. Bowyer, J. R. Dargavel, H. H. McIlroy, A. McCowan, J. Torrance, J. H. Devitt, J. Galna, Dr. Smellie, T. H. Lennox, H. Montgomery, G. W. Neely, all members of the legislative assembly, the sergeant-at-arms, W. A. Baird, mayor Toronto Junction; Aubrey White, deputy minister of lands; J. R. Cartwright, K.C., deputy attorney-general; T. W. Gibson, deputy minister of mines; Dr. Bruce Smith, inspector of charities; Alex. Fraser, provincial architect; Dr. Colquhoun, deputy minister of education; C. C. James, deputy minister of agriculture; F. R. Heakes, architect public works; F. H. High, registrar crown lands; Walter Gillespie, Toronto Mortgage Co.; John Firstbrook, Walter Wilson, Mr. Fletcher, Metropolitan Bank; Capt. Young.

Miss Mae Stull of Georgetown is making a short visit among a few of her friends and relatives.

Mrs. John B. O'Higgins (nee Church) will receive this afternoon at 893 Brunswick, for the first time since her marriage.

Sir Mortimer Clark and Lady Clark will attend Queen Alexandra's School to-day at 2:30 p.m. to present the flag sent by the pupils of Toronto, N.S.W., to the pupils of Toronto.

Mrs. T. H. Barton, 37 Chichester-avenue, is giving a $5000 to-day in honor of Miss Hannah Black, whose marriage will take place on Wednesday next.

The Queen City Yacht Club give a ball this evening at the Metropolitan Assembly Rooms. The Strathclyde Club give a dance at the same rooms on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Flavell entertained the members of the Mendelssohn Choir at their home in Queen's Park last night.

Miss Gillespie, principal of the Hills Indian School, will address the W.F.M.S. Presbyterian meeting in Old St. Andrew's Church this afternoon.

Mr. Peter Lees, Miss Lees and Miss Millicent Lees of Minneapolis are spending a few days with Mrs. Samuel Arnold, 101 Langley-avenue, on their way home from a tour of Great Britain.

A number of officers were in Ottawa at a meeting of the Paardeberg dinner at Government House, among them being General Otter, Col. Williams, Col. Macdonald, Major Carpenter, Capt. Laybourn and Mr. Gilman. Col. Sedgwick Denison and Mrs. Long Innes also attended the dinner.

It was reported at the seventeenth annual meeting yesterday that the attendance at the monthly meetings of the Toronto McAll Auxiliary had increased from thirty-seven to seventy-five. The gathering was held at the residence of Miss Curry, in Jarvis-street. The president, Mrs. T. M. Harris, was in the chair, and Dr. B. L. Laybourn of Knox College gave an account of the work of the association in France. The secretary, Miss Flavell, stated that there were seventeen halls in Paris and thirty-two in thirty other localities throughout France, where gospel temperance and mothers' meetings were

Queen Quality

THE FAMOUS SHOE FOR WOMEN

Ease With Elegance

Just a word to those who have been wearing homely commonplace shoes for comfort, but with a regretful sigh for the more fashionable and handsome style.

Our new "Queen Quality" shoes will give you not only the comfort you must have, but also the smart style and elegance you want and ought to have.

And you get these shoes at no higher prices than you pay for just ordinary good shoes. But all this means nothing unless you test it. We invite you to do so.

THE SIMPSON COMPANY LIMITED

held continually. Also, the work of the two boats of the society in the canals was described. The secretary, Mrs. Joseph Henderson, stated that $350 had been taken in during the year and would be forwarded to the parent organization immediately.

The officers for the year are: President, Mrs. T. M. Harris; vice-presidents, Mrs. M. L. Laird, Mrs. W. R. Stock and Mrs. Cowan; secretary, Miss Traveller; treasurer, Mrs. Joseph Henderson.

Mrs. Harry C. Barker, Spadina-road, will receive to-day and not again this season.

The fancy ice skating contest which was held at Victoria Rink yesterday afternoon drew a large number of spectators. J. L. Cawthra kindly donated two silver mugs—one for the gentlemen's class and one for the ladies' class. The prizes were awarded as follows: Gentlemen—Mr. L. Martin; 1st, Mr. Sydney Fellows; 2nd, Mr. Norman Patterson; 3rd, Ladies—Mrs. Bingham, 1st; Mrs. Allan, 2nd; and Mrs. Burns, 3rd.

Mrs. Herbert Burgess, corner Bloor-street and Spadina-road, will receive this afternoon and not again this season.

"The Liars," by Henry Arthur Jones, will be presented next week at the Royal Alexandra Theatre by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough, allowed her by the popular home company, who have made this author's works so popular at this theatre. The admirers of Jones claim that it is his highest work. It is certainly a charming story, well worked out, with many interesting situations. The dialogue are of unusual brilliancy and teach a number of moral and sensible ideas. The indiscretions of a young married society woman, although innocent enough