Fifteen Hundred Took Part in Orange Celebration at Petrolea.

PETROLEA, July 12.—Over nine thousand Orangemen and their friends arrived in Petrolea this morning, notwithstanding the rain, to attend the grand Orange demonstration. Special trains from Woodstock, London, Ingersoll, St. Thomas, Chatham, Sarnia and Port Huron brought in the Orangemen from these points. The weather became more favorable at noon and the parade, which was formed at one o'clock, extended the full length of Petrolea-street, the sidewalks being impassable for hours, so well did the citizens and people from the surrounding country turn out.

The parade was led by Capt. N. C.
Carey's automobile containing the Hon-W. J. Hanna, Dr. T. S. Sproule, M.P., J. E. Armstrong, M.P., and E. T. Essery. Other automobiles and carriages followed containing Mayor Pollard, R. R. Gamey, M. L. A., J. A. McKenzie of Woodstock, George Neely of East Middlesex, and other prominent Orange-A conspicuous feature of the parade was the presence in it of over 1500 In dians from the Walpole, Sarnia and After parading thrue the principal streets of the town, the procession marched to the east end, where an oil well was torpedoed on the property of J. C. Armstrong for the entercainment of the visitors. From there the parade marched to Greenwood Driving Park. Speeches were delivered by Hon. W. J. Hanna, R. R. Gamey, Dr. T. S. Sproule, E. T. Essery and others.

THREE THOUSAND ATTENDED.

WATFORD, July 12.—Over three thousand people attended the Orange celebration here to-day. The town was gaily decorated with flags and streamers. When the procession started at 1 p.m., twelve lodges were in line, headed by the Forest and Adelaide bands. Lodges were present from Yale, Mich., Forest, Warwick, Plympton, Jura, Brooke, Middlesex, Wanstead, Inwood and Watford. Upon reaching the park, speeches were fade by Mr. F. Sherls. R. Brock. One of the chief speakers was H. C. Hocken of Toronto, who asserted that Orangemen must take their legitimate position in the public life of Canada as the political arm of the Protestant as the political arm of the Protestant Church. They must be Protestants before they are partisans of either side of politics, exercising an influence upon disaster is attributed to a slight fauit organization, impressing upon them the impending duties and the need of United Protestant action. We must bring before the public of this country the character, aims, principles and his-tory of the papacy. Our three-fold program should be to co-operate with the Protestant churches to defend the public school, and to educate the Protestant public

Other speakers were: I. MacLean of Newcastle: Dr. Edwards, M.P., Cataraqui, and Rev. W. F. Fitzgerald, Kingston. The last mentioned strongly condemned mixed marriages, asserting the position he had taken in a sermon preached to the Grand Lodge Prentice Boys at Kingston.

To-day's celebration marked the 80th anniversary of the organization of L. O.L., No. 1, Brockville, by Olge R. Gowan, to whose memory it is proposed to erect a monument here. The pro-ceeds of the day will form the neucleus of a fund for that purpose.

British Army Dirigible Flew Over London and Returned to Aldershot.

LONDON, July 12 .- While London ers this evening were discussing the tragic death of Capt. Rolls, the army dirigible balloon, manned by a full crew, created intense excitement by flying from the army manoeuvring grounds at Aldershot, 35 miles away, into the City of London. High above the ground, the mammoth dirigible, under perfect control, made many daring evolutions, twice encircling St. Paul's Cathedral at the height of four hundred feet. After more mandeuvring, the dirigible pointed her nose back to Aldershot amid the cheering of more than 1,000,000 people.

CHANNEL FLYER MEETS DEATH BY FALL OF PLANE

Hon, Charles Stewart Rolls' Machine Turned Somersault and Plunged Straight Down.

BOURNEMOUTH, Eng. July 12 .-Hon. Charles Stewart Rolls, the famous English aviator, who, on June 2 last, won the honor of being the only man to make a round trip across the English Channel from England to France, was killed to-day in the aviation meet prize of $1250, his aeroplane suddenly turned a somersault, crashed 40 feet turned a somersquit, crashed 40 feet to the ground and crushed the aviator to death directly opposite the grand stand. Almost immediately after the first signs of trouble were noticed the aero-plane turned a complete somersquit and then plunged straight down. Rolls attempted to extricate himself, but the drop was too swift. The edge of the machine caught him as the two came to the ground together and fatally crushed him. His limbs were fractured and he died within a few moments

Was intended for Diplomat.

Rolls was the third son of Lord
Liangattock, and was intended for the

He was educated at Eton and Cambridge, was captain of the Cambridge University Blevele Club, and gained his military title with the Eton Volunteer Battery. Rolls had written and lectured much on his hobby, principally on motoring, and was also an expert at music. He was the technical managing director of the Ro'is-Moyce Motor Co., and also cap-tain of the London section of the army motor service corps.

Daring Autoist. Rolls was a pioneer of automobiling in England, introducing a motor car there in 1896. He soon became famous as a daring automobilist, in races, both in England and on the continent, and was awarded a gold medal for his driving in the 1000 mile race in 1900. He drove in the famous Paris-Madrid. Paris-Berlin, and Paris-Vienna races, and was England's representative in the Gordon Bennett race in 1905. He held several records for speed driving, breaking the Monte Carlo to London record in 1906. Then Rolls went in for ballooning, and was soon a licensed pilot. He made 160 balloon ascensions, and won the French Aero Club's medal for the ongest balloon flight in 1906, from Paris to Shelbourne, Norfolk, Eng. He was taught aero planing by Wilbur Wright. He had had numerous narrow escapes from death.

Another in Peril. M. Audemars, a French aviator, fell in his initial flight and was badly hur. Rolls saw the accident to Audemars, but after extending sympathy to the injured man, mounted his own ma-

In Toronto Three Years Ago. The late Capt. Rolls was in Toronto three years ago, when he was the guest of Col. J. B. Maclean, who had met him in England. Count de Lesseps, the French aviator, now here, whose feat in crossing the English Channel was eclipsed by Rolls, said: "He was a very good friend of mine. When I made my flight across the English Channel, it was he who took me in his automobile when I arrived and entertained me. On several occasions when I have been in England. he has been most kind to me. As you know, I do not speak English, and he made my stay very pleasant by doing my interpeting for me."

Rolls was coming to America this fall to compete in the balloon race from St. Louis, and also in the international aviation meet at New York in October.

of politics, exercising an influence upon the representatives of the people who sit in parliaments. He advised his hearers to study closely the political movements of the day, and be firm in maintaining the essential Protestant principles of civil and religious liberty, which are inseparably connected with the name of the Orange Association. "We should conduct," he said in closing, "an active propaganda among Protestants, to convince them of our sincerity, and the necessity for our organization, impressing upon them the impanding dutles and the need of the machine, which as slight fault in the material of the machine, which left the biplane unable to bear the strain of 60 miles an hour speed at which Rolls was flying.

A pathetic sequel occurred late this afternoon, when Rolls' father and mother, Lord and Lady Llangattock, arrived off Bournemouth in their yacht. As they came ashore they upbraided themselves for being too late to winness the start of their son's flight, which they knew had been set for a certain time. They hurried to a waitcertain time. They hurried to a waiting automobile, to rush to the aviation field, in the hope of seeing Capt. Rolls before he descended.
