Feb. 1 was mentioned as the date of the expropriation order. On reassembling at 2.30 the commis sion gave permission to the Guelph and Goderich Railway Company for leave to cross the Grand Trunk Railway near Guelph; for an overhead crossing at Goderich, and for a cross-ing at Blythe. The application to cross at Milverton was postponed until Jan. 3. Lan downe Ave. Subway.

The application of the city to con-nect the two sections of Lansdowne-avenue by a subway to be constructed by the G.T.R. or C.P.R., according to the order of the railway committee, Nov. 18, 1899, was argued by City Solicitor Fullerton. He wished a revival of the old order to build the subway, but the railways raised the general uestion, whether there should be a crossing, or, if so, at that place, or if the street railway was not involved.

They wanted a new order, and would introduce new evidence, claiming that a new location on the north side had been chosen, and that new works had been constructed since the order was issued four or five years ago. A. R. Creelman, K.C., thought a new notice should also be served. The case was adjourned till Jan. 10, at Ottawa.

The power, authority and jurisdic-tion of the commission to deal with the Yonge street bridge was considered, and Mayor Urquhart, Treasurer Coady, Ensincer Rust, Controllers Spence and Hubbard and other city hall officials dropped in to hear if the bridge was all right.

As its legal adviser he advised the railway to stand strictly on its legal rights. If the city was prepared to submit the whole question of the construction, and perhaps if the atti-tude of the city were a reasonable one, many of the points he mentioned might not be pressed. Dr. Mills asked if he thought the rights of the railway would be prejudiced by proceeding with the construction. Vague and Indefinite. Vague and Indefinite.
