THE CORONATION

The world has seen many imperial pageants, but never one to surpass that which today centres at Westminster Abbey. The coronation of King Edward was a great event, but it surpassed in magnificence by that of today. There has been a steady growth of imperial sentiment, and the word Empire means more than it did even a few years ago, both in Britain and the overseas states. Lord Haldane remarked this week that the outstanding feature of the present Imperial Conference was the fact that the governments of the component parts of the empire had taken each other into mutual confidence to an extent never known before, and it remained only to develop this habit of confidence until it became a constitutional usage. Thus King George is crowned ruler of an empire that is not only vast in extent, but whose various states are appreciating more and more the value and the significance of the imperial relation.

No monarch has ever come to the throne with happier auguries for a peaceful and prosperous reign, or more heartfelt assurances of regard for his person and authority. A king of democratic tendencies, with a wide personal knowledge of the empire, and a kindly conception of his duty to the people, he has since his accession confirmed the high estimate formed by the world of his ability and purpose.

A fact that is of much significance, and which need to the drawing together of the imperial states in closer sympathy is most appreciated by all British subjects, is the growing friendliness between Britain and the United States. It is recognized that Anglo-Saxon friendship throughout the world would make for world-peace. Canada is so fortunately situated as to be in a position to do much to cement this friendship, and she will not permit ancient prejudices or craven fears to stand in the way.

The crowning of King George comes at a time when the world is at peace. There are always those who take a gloomy view of international affairs, but there is no cloud in the sky at the present moment large enough to justify fears for the immediate future; while the principle of arbitration has gained favor in influential quarters to such an extent as to project a powerful element making for peace into the realm of international relations. There are discordant voices, but the steady and intelligent propaganda of the International Peace Societies is creating a public sentiment which must influence the rulers of the nations.

King George is fortunate not only in that he cherishes high and noble ideals, but in that Queen Mary is one of the noblest of women. She is very decided in her views and tastes, but they are those of a woman who desires more than ought else to influence the people for good. If at times her views do not commend themselves to the smart set, the fact will not lessen public appreciation of her motives or her judgment. Her example and her influence upon society will tend to discourage the frivolous. It will encourage the development of what is best in womanhood, and the exercise of those social virtues which make the home the bulwark of the nation. Both King and Queen are interested in the solution of social problems, and their court will not be given over to the mere search for time-killing devices and entertainments.

Canadians today join with great heartiness in celebrating the coronation. Many of them have seen the King and Queen, and all of them are devoted to British institutions. There is no jarring note, so far as this Dominion is concerned. It is premier and other members of the federal government, and many of the provincial premiers and leading citizens are among those who today at the heart of the empire join in doing homage to the royal pair who occupy the highest position in the gift of any people in the world. Great empires there have been and will be, but the greatest of which history tells is that sisterhood of nations which today places its crown upon the brows of King George and Queen Mary. Long may they reign in honor and in peace.

The weather today is all that could be desired for the parades and general celebration.

The people of the west are giving Mr. Borden a hearty welcome, and then telling him they want reciprocity.

Secretary Root declares he is for reciprocity, with or without his amending clause. The measure will doubtless pass the senate.

When King Square is lighted up this evening it will seem like a section of fairy land. The city generally is very well decorated.

The religious services this morning show that all classes and all creeds unite in loyalty to the King and Queen. Reports of the sermons delivered are printed in today's Times.

It must have been worth while to be in London last night, in that sleepless through which crowded the streets from dusk to dawn, in anticipation of today's great pageant.

Senator Baird says that though a Conservative he is very strongly in favor of reciprocity, and he cannot understand the attitude of his party. There are doubtless many Conservatives like Senator Baird.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley spoke most hopefully at Amherst last evening of the prospects of the St. John Valley Railway. The minister and Mr. Carvell have done their part as representatives to ensure the construction of such a railway as the people desire.

That was a hearty and a splendid tribute paid to the veteran legislator Senator Costigan at St. Basil on Tuesday evening. After fifty years in public life he is still an active participant in affairs, keenly interested in the development of the Dominion whose birth he witnessed and whose course he helped to direct.

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL

Ottawa, June 22—(Canadian Press)—It is learned that the draft of supplementary estimates submitted to the cabinet council this spring contained an appropriation of $3,000,000 for the commencement of the work on the Georgian Bay canal but that, for some reason, the amount was held back, temporarily at least.

Remarks of Hon. Mr. Lemieux and other members forecasting a commencement of the work in the very near future are taken as indicating that the suspended vote will be forthcoming in further supplementary estimates when the house resumes The plan is said to be to begin the work simultaneously at the Montreal and Georgian Bay ends of the undertaking.

John H. Whittier, of Cornwall, Me., ninety-seven years old, has never ridden on a train or been out of Somerset County. Mme. Kulesh has just arrived in Nijni Novgorod, Russia, safe and well, having ridden from Harbin, Manchuria, a distance of more than 3,600 miles, on horseback.

It has been estimated that a man capable of carrying a 200-pound load could carry about $200 in pennies; in nickels, $97; in silver dollars, $2,617; in gold coin, $4,091, and in $1,000 bills he could carry a load worth $7,111,100.

We can't help feeling sorry for the poor man who has to think twice before he can remember what his name was before he was married.

CORONATION HYMN

(To be sung to the tune of Luther's Chorus, "Eine feste Burg.")
Of old, our London hath renown,
Of God are her foundations;
Wherein this day a King we crown
Elate among the nations.
Acknowledge then, thou King,
And you, ye People, sing—
What God so bless'd your birth.
Enlarging wide o'er Earth
Your peaceful habitations.

So long, so far Jehovah hath,
By pastures green attending,
For us prepared our fathers' path
Toward His hill ascending;
Whence we, beneath the stars,
Behold their ancient wrongs removed Yea, in one purpose proved
Of Love all-comprehending.

His was that Law to man which spoke
From Sinai forth in thunder;
His was that Love for man which broke
The dreadful grave asunder,
Lord over every Lord,
His consecrating word
An earthly Prince awaits
Lift then your heads, ye gates,
Your God comes riding under!

Be ye lift up, ye deathless doors,
Let wave your banners o'er Him!
Exult, ye streets; be strewn, ye floors,
With palm, with bay, before Him!
Triumphantly fetch Him in,
Ye ransomed folk from sin—
Your God rides through to bliss!
O kneeling King, confess—
O subject men, adore Him!

WRONGS OF THE POOR.

Departures from the old way in things educational come in for hard raps, first and last, but not often are they assailed as in this letter which a glowing boy handed to his teacher the other day:
"Madam you keep telling my son to breathe with his diaphragm I suppose rich boys and girls all has diaphragms but how about when their father only makes 2 dollars a day and there's 4 younger I tell you its enough to make everybody socialists first its one thing and then its another and now its diaphragms its too much."
—P. R. Benson, in June Women's Home Companion.

In Scotland up to the middle of the 18th century the usual school hours, six days a week, were from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. with two recesses of an hour each. Even on Sundays some school work was done. Some schools opened at 5 a.m. and closed only with darkness. The holidays were restricted to a day at Candemans and at Whitson, and a fortnight in autumn.

GRAND TRUNK AND
BOSTON AND MAINE
ROADS AT ODDS

Boston, June 21—(Canadian Press)—Officials of the Grand Trunk Railway came from Montreal today to try to adjust the differences with the Boston & Maine officials over the alleged refusal of the latter road to haul through sleepers and parlor cars from Montreal and other Canadian points to Maine shore resorts after June 28.

The controversy, according to Boston & Maine officials, grows out of the recent consolidation of the lines into the union station at Portland under the Portland Under Terminal Railroad, and the fact that that capital and not the Boston & Maine, or the Maine Central, operates the four miles of track between Portland Junction, where the Grand Trunk crosses, and the union station.

General Passenger Agent Burt, of the Boston & Maine, said that during the summer it has been the custom of the Boston & Maine to take a car from the Grand Trunk at Portland Junction and run it into the union station, where it has been attached to a local train for Kennebunk, by way of Old Orchard. He said the Boston & Maine was willing to continue the custom, but could not guarantee connections at Portland Junction. No other change is contemplated, he added, and Grand Trunk cars on other lines will be hauled as heretofore.

TIRE COMES OFF;
AUTO RACE DRIVER
HURLED TO DEATH

Milwaukee, Wis., June 22—(Canadian Press)—Walter Donnelly of Cincinnati driving a "Cino" car in a 50 mile automobile race at State Fair Park, was killed yesterday when his car ran into a fence.
Donnelly's skull was fractured against a post. He died in a hospital.
Donnelly was making the turn at the three-quarter post on the fortieth mile when a tire came off the rear right wheel, causing the machine to skid.

a joke and gave "smart" answers, as they put it.

He professed upon the schedule to be
