

TRAINING A HUSBAND.

So you want to know how I came to train my wife? Well, I'll tell you about it.

You know Daniel left me pretty poorly off. I had two little children, and what do I do? I don't know. The mortgage was to run out in about a year, and a half after he died. I had always counted on his help to get the children down to the school.

One day, when the time was near out I was about the house side of the fence next to the school. I told you I never felt better in my life. It always had and worked on a farm, and couldn't do any other kind of work; so what was to become of me I didn't know.

"Fifty good looking for a green hand," says somebody over the fence. "Ten, I've done enough of it since I was left alone." Practice makes perfect; I need to write in my copy-books when we were children, I answered, and I wouldn't feel leaving a sign.

"Well, Emmeline," says he, "you and I seem to be in the same fix. You need a man to do your house and yard, and I need a woman to see to my house and yard." We agreed well with each other and took to each other. I can't find no help that'll do as Nancy did. So what do you say, Emmeline?

"Perhaps I did think of nothing for the next few minutes. It all flashed over me in a few minutes. It all flashed over me in a few minutes. It all flashed over me in a few minutes. It all flashed over me in a few minutes.

"I know he was a smart man to work with. He was a smart man to work with. He was a smart man to work with. He was a smart man to work with.

"I know he was a smart man to work with. He was a smart man to work with. He was a smart man to work with. He was a smart man to work with.
