Under False Pretences.

The Advocate prints an account of two Boston sportemen having occupied a shooting lodge on Tabusintac beach, the owners of which-a number of Newcastle gentlemencharged and made them pay $50 for the privilege. The place was not well cared for returned home from the opening of Sussex by the visitors, who had no permit for their occupancy. The owners caught them as they were passing through Newcastle on their way home and took legal proceedings, which were settled at the above named figure. The Advocate says :-

"They claim that when they were here last year they were told by one of the owners that they could occupy the lodge when they came again, and they supposed that this offer still held good. The preacher then preceded to examine the answers of science, philosophy and history to the question.

History seeks to answer the question by presenting models of manhood according to the ideals of different races and nations. For example, Greece presents as its grandest representative of manhood Hercules. The Biblical Hercules is Samson. Yet with all their magnificent physical strength these types are unsatisfying.

The Commissioner of Board of Works will replace it. It was built of cedar abutment, built in at each bank with wings loaded with stone to shear the ice and logs.
