W. S. HARKINS' NEW MOVIE.

Trying the Effect of Musical Comedy On Theatre Goers.

W. S. Harkins has sprung something new on the public which has known him for many years as a dramatic manager whose name was a guarantee for a first class show. Instead of dramatic drama, he is presenting what he calls a musical comedy, a cross between an opera and a play, put on by a cast composed of a few good actors who can't sing and a few good singers who can't act. The result is entertaining but hardly one that Mr. Harkins' friends would like to remember him by.

Minutely the show is a success. Miss Travick and Miss Nola who take the leading female parts in a play which only serves as a pretext for musical specialties are both singers of unusual ability. Miss Travick artistically rendered selections of popular songs. The acting end of the game was carried by Edward Lee, John Macle, who did well in parts that afforded little opportunity for good work. In Miss Valentine's hands Macle has a very clever little southerner whose topical songs made a decided hit.

The company played to crowded houses in the York Theatre yesterday. Today's matinee and this evening's performance close the engagement.

SPENCER GOT EVEN.

(The late Grant Allen in The Forum). A story is told about Herbert Spencer's fondness for the annual cleaning, whether true or not, is at least most characteristic. He once met an officer from the Senior United Service Club who, owing to the annual cleaning, was then receiving the hospitality of the Athenaeum—in the billiard room of his own club and incidentally challenged him to a game of a hundred up. The officer accepted. Spencer led off his own game and immediately the other then played, and ran out his hundred at a break.

Spencer, says the legend, instantly put up his cue and the stand and observed, solemnly in his sententious voice: "There is an instance with games of skill, such as yours bespeaks a wasted youth. I have the honor to wish you a very good morning."

MORE EVIDENCE OF VIOLATION.

Liquor Purchased at James Ryan's After Hours.

Plucky Temperance Men Continue Their Campaign Against Violators of the Liquor Law.

The latest development in the liquor cases is the disclosure of the identity of the fourth man who was referred to several times when the Harding case was before the court on Thursday. The party in question is Walter Saunders. It was while Murdoch J. Morrison was under cross examination by Scott E. Morrell in the police court this morning when the Ryan cases were being heard that Mr. Morrison mentioned Mr. Saunders' name.

The case against one Ryan was taken up at ten o'clock this morning. Scott E. Morrell asked for an adjournment till Tuesday, so that J. A. McKeown was the principal counsel and he would like an opportunity to consult with him.

His honor said those applications for adjournment were all rot. He was surprised that the learned counsel would put up such a bluff. His honor further claimed to have good common sense. He would not say Mr. Morrell was any wiser than the rest. Mr. Currie had asked for an adjournment of the Harding case on Thursday and as the prosecution were agreeable it had been put off till Tuesday morning next. He would like to go ahead with the Ryan case.

Police Court Clerk Henderson said that he had made a certain proposition to Mr. Morrell, namely that if Mr. Ryan pleaded guilty to the two charges against him they would not press the third. It was about this that Mr. Currie had to consult Mr. McKeown. His honor said he was surprised at him. Mr. Henderson, wanting an adjournment, Mr. Henderson replied that he did not, and was ready to go on with the case.

Murdoch J. Morrison was the first witness on Saturday evening, June 4th, about twenty minutes after eight he went to James Ryan's store at the corner of Charlotte street and the north side of King Square and asked for a pint of Holland gin. He was told that he could not get it, but they could sell him a thirty cent bottle. This he purchased, and went out, going to W. W. Howe's stall in the market.

It came out in the cross examination that Mr. Howe paid to him the thirty cents that he paid for the gin.

In the second case against James Ryan Walter Saunders swore to purchasing a bottle of gin at Mr. Ryan's place at eighteen minutes to eight Saturday evening.

The case is still on as the Star goes to press.

POLICE COURT.

In the police court this morning two common drunks were fined four dollars. Charles Hildreth, who belongs to a mill, but did not like the arrangements. He stayed for several days at one of the city hotels, but his funds gave out and in consequence Officer McNamee found him wandering about Mill street and locked him up. In court this morning he said he was expecting money any day from Granby and would go home. He will be allowed to do so.

A RIVER MYSTERY.

Yesterday afternoon a young man was discovered lying in a partly conscious condition on the beach near Devil's Back, on the St. John river. He was cared for by the people up there, but when questioned seemed either unable or indisposed to disclose his identity. The young man is believed to be Meritt Lord, of Carleton. Thursday afternoon he was seen near the beach at Devil's Back and acted very strangely. The police have been notified and are looking into the case. The unknown man will be brought to the city today.

HOW SHE REBELLED.

He shyly wooed, without success, Nor ventured her the least caress Till his own bashfulness increased him. At last he boldly snatched a kiss— "Did she rebel?" I knew but this, She was "all up in arms" against him. —Town Topics.

THE PROFESSOR'S DEDUCTION.

(Boston Herald.)

Prof. William James of Harvard is very popular with the more intelligent and studious of the undergraduates. When these young men, however, make rash or bold or unbecoming assertions, he does not hesitate to take them down. Not long ago a sophomore aired some rather atheistical views before Prof. James.

"You," said the latter, "are a free thinker, I perceive. You believe in nothing."

"I only believe—how what I can understand," the sophomore replied.

"It comes to the same thing, I at 'poo," said Prof. James.

(Boston Traveller.)

The late Channing Clapp, of Boston, was for some years after the civil war a cotton planter in the South. Mr. Clapp had on his plantation a little boy in buttons called "Sam." Sam one afternoon pointed to a bottle on his master's bureau, and said: "Mars Channing, am dat hair oil?"

"Avery, no, Sam, that's glue," said Mr. Clapp.

"I guess disa why I can't git 'cap oil,'" said Sam, thoughtfully.
