THEIR LAST WORDS.

"Good bye; good bye.' PresidentM. Kinley's last words were: ' It is God's way. His will be done '

The President died with resignation, but still thoughtful of others. His dying words in dicate that his wide sympathy with his fellow-men was genuine and heartfelt. ' In the majority of instances,' writes John Timbe, F. S. A, 'The ruling passion strong in death is found to be exemplifi d.'

Charles II., although his assumed air of frivolity remained with him until near the last and he spolegized for being such an unconscionable time in dying, grew serious at the end. ' Don't let poor Nellie starve, he said, and these words proved his affection for ' Mistress Nell.'

Many men have died with religious sen. timents on their lips. 'Lord receive my spirit,' were the words of Cranmer at the stake, of Hooper, of Ferrar, and of G. Herbert. 'Tay will be done,' the poet Donne said. Quarles' death bed prayer was 'What I cannot utter with my mouth, accept Lord, from my heart and soul.' Sir James Mackintosh, when his daughter reminded him of the love of Jesus, answered slowly, pausing between each word, 'Jesus Christ-love- the same thing!' A long silence followed. 'I believe,' he said at last 'In God P' she asked. 'In J sus.'

Other men have contrasted eternal pleas. ures with the ephemeral character of those on earth. 'In me behold the end of the world with all its vanities,' Sir Philip Sidney's words ran whin he was struck down on the battlefield. Wolsey's words are almost too famous to need quotation.

'I! I had served my God as faithfully as I have served my King,' the former cardinal and legate a latere said, be would not have given me over in my grey hairs.'

Adams' life had been too fully identified with the foundation, and growth of the American republic to allow him to forget his country at death. 'Independence forever,' he exclaimed when passing away. The regicide Harrison retained his fixity of purpose to the last. 'I wish the true principle of government carried out,' he said. 'I ask no more.'

Pitt's last words breathed a nobler patriotism. 'My country! My country! How I leave my country !' Chatham was borne from the House to die, after he had. with his last remaining strength, urged an unpopular course, but voe that he believed in strongly. 'Sir,' he cried, 'I rejoice that America has resisted.' And his trenchant invective were launched against the iniquity Napoleon had a clergyman at his bedside. I believe in God and am of the true religion of my father,' he said. 'It is not and the pendulum rod of various parts of a every one that can be an atheist.' His last words were:

'Tete de l'armee' (lead of the army.) The words of Captain Laurence, as he died on the deck of the Chesapeake, had a truer ring: 'Don't give up the ship.' Brock cried: ' Push on, brave York volunteers!' Wolfe's strong devotion to duty was reflected in his resignation, when he heard that the day was won. 'What !' he exclaimed, 'Do they run already ? Then I die happy.'

Queen Elizabeth's exclamation was: All my possessions for a moment of time. Burns could not avoid some expression of humour, 'Don't let that awkward squad fire over my grave,' be said. Sir when he laid his head on the block. He thought it a pity that having done no harm, it too should suffer. Henry VIII. could not forget his troubles with the church. 'Monks! monks! monks' he irritably cried. Dr. Samuel Johnson's last words, ad dressed to Miss Morris, were : 'God bless you, my dear.' What will Nelson thinks of us!

exclaimed Captain Riou, when Admiral Parker signalled 'cease firing,' in the bat tle of the Baltic. The next instant a chain Nelson's last intelligible sentence was, "I have done my duty; I praise God for it." He died in the dim cockpit of the Victory, humor of the examiner. A story is told of with the roar of Trafalgar filling all the space about him.

The great Roman Emperor, Augustus never forgot the disastrous defeat of Varus by the Germans, A. D. 9 With his last breath he murmured, Varus, Varus, give me back my legions,'

When Montcalm heard that his wound was mortal, he said: 'I am happy that I wounded in the battle of Chalgrove Field exclaimed in the moment of his last agony. 'Lord Jests, receive my soul. O Lord, save my country. O Lord. be merciful to -. ' In that broken ejeculating, as M : caulay says, passed away his noble and fearless spirit.

After six successive recantations, Archbishop Cranwer found that his doom was inevitable. He met death with fortitude. 'This was the hand that wrote it,' he exclaimed in reference to the recantations; 'therefore it shall first suffer punishment." He held it steadily in the flame, and never moved nor cried till life was gone.

In the battle of Newbury Falkland fell crying out, 'Peace, peace!'

It is nerve testing even to read of the hezards which these men run. A foreman speaks of them thus :

'See those timbers right at the top that come together in a point ? Well the boys walk those cross timbers all the time. It's nothing on the ground, but up there, with he wind blowing-well, you try it !

'I saw one fellow do a thing that knocked me. He stopped balf way across a timber not over eight inches wide, took out his matchbox, stood on his right foot, and struck a match on his left heel. Then he nursed the flame in his hands, got his pipe going good and walked across the timber. 'Why didn't he wait to light his pipe unil be got across P'

The foreman shook his head: 'I give up. He just happened to think of its then, and he did it.

A (1 ck of Bicycle:

Alphonse Duhamel of Paris has made a time piece that stands twe've feet high, and is composed entirely of bicycles or their composed parts. The framework is a huge bicycle wheel around which are arranged twelve ordinary sized wheels, all fitted with pueum stic tires. A rim within the large wheel bears the figures for the hours, the figures the msevles being constructed of crank rods. The hands are made of steel tubing, which is used for the framework of bicyc'es. The minute strokes on the dial are small nickelplated spokes. The top of the clock is an arrangement of twelve handle-bars. The clock strikes the hours and the quarters, bicycle bells of course making the chimes. The pendulum is made of a bicycle wheel bicycle frame.

It is said that the clock, besides being a to adorn one of the public buildings of

He Had the Money.

A Western millionaire, who has made a fortune out of mines, and who is remarkable alike for his liberality and for his ig orance of Lie bank account, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, was asked one day to contribute to an object of charity. The canvasser suggested that one thousand dollars would be an acceptable contribu

'That isn't enough,' replied the capita-"I will give you five thousand if I have the money in the bank. Wait until I call up and inquire.'

He summoned a clerk and told him to telephone to the bank to inquire if he had five thousand dollars on deposit, as he desired to contribute that sum, if possible, to a worthy object. The clerk returned, and reported that the bank advised that he had three hundre d and eighty thousand dollars in the bank.

'Dear me,' cried the capitalist, 'as much as that! Well, make out that check for five thousand dollars.'

The New First Lady.

Mrs. Roosevelt, quiet woman though she is, has a genius for hospitality, and has, in addition, the unusual git of being able to remember the faces ef persons she has met but once or twice. Nothing, of course can make a woman more popular than the ability, which Mrs. Grover Cleve land so conspicuously possessed.

Mrs. Rocsevelt's punctiliousness of Albany, both in holding entertainments and in attending those to which she was invited indicates something quite as valuable as social talent. It means that the new President's wife is physically strong, Indeed, Mrs. Roosevelt, though frail in appearance, quite lives up to the family tra ditions in never employing a dotcor and in trusting to exercise and hygiene to preserve her health

This being the case, she will probably submit to the handshaking ordeals of the presidental receptions-ordeal which Mrs. Harrison and Mrs.M. Kinley were plainly unable even to attempt and which never failed to prove a great strain on the robust Mrs. Cleveland.

In addition to her social and domestic duties, Mrs. Roosevelt contrived during her life as wife of the governor, to revive her interest in horsemanship, and she became a very good rider.

Much of her time in Albany, as else where, was devoted to needlework, for she is an expert needlewoman.
It should not be overlooked that she is also a woman of unusual cultivation and of tastes quite as prnouncedly literary as those of her husband. There is at present extant a book of verse which Mrs. Roosevelt published for private circulation only Mrs. Roosevelt has never willingly put h elf on public view except when it was quite necessary. Theodore Roosevelt once tried to express his wi'e's unwillingness to let her personally become known to the public.

'If I should let you have a photograph of Mrs. Roosevelt,' he said laughingly to a reporter, 'she would consider it a st ffi jent ground for divorce.'

Nevertheless, when the last R publican national convention was held in Philadelphia the temptation to stand by her husband in that important crisis of his life was too strong for Mrs Roosevelt to withstand. She did not want him to be nominated for vice president, but she believed in him, and he would be right whatever happened. So curiosity, is an excellent timepiece. It is she sat smilingly confident in the great auditorium and fisshed messages of encouragement to her husband, which he affectionately returned.

There are few men in the city of Kingston better known than Mr. H. S. Johnson the genial proprietor of the "Bon Ton" barber parlor, on Brock street. For several years he had been in failing health, being obliged to give over the entire work of his busy shop to his assistants. But thisspring his health is so wonderfully improved that his many friends have been congra. tulsting him on his restoration. In conversing with a reporter of the Whig recently Mr Johnson had the following to say concerning his illnes. and cure :- "For many months I was practically paralyzed. Numbness took possession of my limbs, especially of my hands. From my hips down my body was without strengthf and despite all that I could do, I was unable to keep my hands and feet from becoming icy cold. My appetite left me, and soon I had to give up work. My general health was of course failing, and I lost flesh. As you know, I am six'y five years of age, and when a man loses s rength at that age, it Upper North Sydney, Sept 18, S Ross MacKay to Eleanor Blanche. tried several kinds of medicines, but they all failed to benefit me. The doctors whom I consulted were also unable to help me. I was discouraged when some one of my old customers advised me to try Dr. Will iams' Pink Pills. At first I refused for I did not believe any medicine on earth could help me, but at last friendly persussion had its effects, and I bought a supply of the pills and began taking them. I soon found that they were benefiting me, and continued their use until Dr. Williams' Pak Pills have made me a new man. I feel stronger and better day by day; I am gaining in weight, and once again am able to attend to my old customers without the least trouble. I consider the pills my best friend and would not be without them." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the friend of the weak and ailing. They surpass all other medicines in their tonic, strengthenng qualities, and make weak and despondent people bright, active and healthy. These pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or can be had by mail, post-paid, at 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
