

BRULE LAKE, THE ROCHE MIETTE IN DISTANCE

When they had finished blazing the trail, they found that it wound away by the foot of Mount Robson, which, according to Government authorities, is the highest mountain in the Canadian Rockies. Despite the fact that they were able to lay an almost level line from the Atlantic to the Pacific, they found that they were travelling through some of the grandest scenery to be found anywhere in the world.

Other surprises have followed in the wake of the path-finders. They found, as the prospectors followed the trail-blazers, vast areas of the richest agricultural valleylands, rich deposits of silver and gold, great fields of coal, and forests of fine timber. They found, in short, a country so rich in resources as to insure an abundance of traffic for the splendid Railway that has been designed. They found rugged wilds literally alive with big game, together with rivers and lakes full of fish.

By midsummer of this year tourists from the East via Montreal, and from the South via Niagara Falls, will be able to travel over the Grand Trunk's double track to Sarnia, Ont., take the "Huron" or "Huron" for Port Arthur or Fort William, board an express train there, and ride away to the banks of the Athabaska.

By 1912, over the same trail, tourists will be able to travel to the very heart of the last wilderness, to the cool rivers, and limpid lakes, to the wild forests, and the hot springs of the Jasper National Park.
