A Spider's Genius.

HAVE considerable respect for the female spider, notwithstanding the fact that she does not treat the male very consider-ately," says a correspondent. "I had an opportunity last summer to watch a large one that had a web in the top of a decaying peach tree with so few leaves that it was in plain view. I caught sight of her first when watching some birds with my glass. She seemed to be climbing from the top of the tree on nothing to a telephone wire some fifteen feet away and somewhat higher than her web. When she reached the wire she went around it and then back. In studying the situa tion, I found the web was so located that it required a cable to hold it up and the spider had in some way got one over the wire so far away. This cable was, of course, a slender silken thread which evidently she had thrown out, and on account of its lightness it had floated to the right place and be-come attached there by its glutinous properties. It seems remarkable that it should have adhered to the wire firmly enough to allow so large an in-sect to climb over it, which she did every day as long as I watched her, evidently to mend or strengthen it. The spider must have brains in which the ability to construct its web and adapt it to conditions is highly developed." In an article in "Chambers' Journal" the following account of how the spider forms its silken threads is given: "One of the most interesting fea-tures in the economy of spiders is their power of emitting slender threads of silk-like substance called gossamer, with which most of them construct mesh-like nets, and a few long, dangling cables, by which they are buoyed through the air with nearly as much facility and they had been furnished with wings. The apparatus provided by nature for elaborating and emitting this gossamer is a beautiful piece of mechanism. Within the animal there are several little bags or vesicles of a gummy matter; and these vesicles are connegted with a circular orifice situated at the abdomen. Within this orifice are five little teats or spinnerets, through which the gossa mer is drawn. It must not be concluded, however, that there is only one film of gossamer produced by each spinneret; the fact is, these teats are studded with thousands of tubes too small for the naked eve to perceive, and each of these emits a thread of inconceivable fineness. These ninute tubes are known as spinnerules, and the films which proceed from them inite like so many strands of a rope to form the thread of gossamer by which a spider suspends itself. The finest thread which human mechanism can produce is like a ship's cable compared with the delicate films which flow from the spinnerules of the largest spider. The films are all distinctly separate on coming from the spinneret, but unite, not by any twisting process, but merely by their own glutinous of gummy nature. Thus the spinning apparatus of the disdained spider, when viewed by the eve of science, becomes one of most wonderful pieces of animated mechanism known to man. The animal has great command over this apparatus, and can apply it at will as long as the receptacles within are re-plenished with the gummy fluid, but as soon as this gum is exhausted all its efforts to spin are fruitless, and it must wait till nature, by her inscrutable chemistry, has secreted it from informing its readers that they can use the same calendars every twenty years -when the dates of the months fall on avoiding the expense of five almanacs for the present century. Those persons who have the double advan-*** tage of ancient family and careful forefathers, by turning up the calendars - unfortunately, they are not printed ones-for the twelfth century, by Solomon Jarchus, will find the days and dates coincident with the present century. Such persons can save the expense of buying for one hundred years. Again, those with a frugal mind who have preserved the alman-acs of the nineteenth century will avoid an outlay for calendars of the century commencing January 1, 2201, as the dates for the hundred years following will be coincident with those of the last century. But life, remarks the London "Chronicle," is scarcely long enough for such economies. *****************

Tommy's Poser.

the Fatal Results of Bad Digestion and Assimilation

No matter, how sick or tired or, debilitated the stomach is, it puts forth an honest and determined effort to digest the food, no matter how indigest-ible that food may be.

Curious Bits of News.

A DANGEROUS ENEYM It is said that there is now little hope of discovering an unknown First Folio Shakespeare, as all the libraries of England have been ransacked. Nevertheless whenever a First Folio comes to the surface and is sold at auction the New York of the Surface and Is sold at auction the New York of the Surface and Is sold at auction the New York of the Surface and Is sold at auction the Surface and Surface and search begins anew. No wonder! The copy sold in London the other day brought $8,600. A pension worth while is that to be enjoyed by J. A. Fillmore, who has resigned the position of manager of the Pacific system of the Southern Pacific Railway after almost a lifetime of meritorious service. He will be paid one thousand dollars a month till the end of the year and a pension of five llars a month thereafter as long as he lives.

Otani Kozui, a young Buddhist priest who is kinsman to the Mikado, is about to leave England, where he has been for some time past, and will come to America to still further study Christianity and Christian institutions. His family tree has traceable roots as far back as two thousand six hundred and fifty years ago, he represents the richest and most advanced sect in Japan and he will one day rule over thou-sands of temples in that country.

The captain of an ocean steamer is often warned of the proximity of icebergs by the men in the engine-room. When a ship enters water considerably colder than that through which it has been going its propeller runs faster. and as such water surrounds the vicinity of icebergs for many miles the engineers know that when the propeller's action is greatly accelerated without any increase of the steam power icebergs may be expected. Of course the thermometer is the most useful indicator of icebergs.

A curious custom exists in the Prus sian royal family of selecting every July a half dozen deserving young couples too poor to marry, and to have them wedded in the garrison church at Potsdam on the anniversary of the death of Queen Louise of Prussia. After the ceremony each bride receives gift of a sum equivalent to about $115 and a handsome family Bible. The function took place, as usual, a short time ago, in the presence of Princess Margarethe, the eldest unmarried daughter of the Prussian royal family.

Some time ago the old trysting oak in Harthill Walk, so frequently mentioned in "Ivanhoe," was felled to the ground in order to preserve the trunk. The tree was one of the oldest in England, and is described by Scott as being venerable when siege was laid to the castle of Torquilstone. The tree stood on the estate of the Duke of Leeds, whose agent, Mr. Mozey, is devoted to Scott. By his instructions the tree was taken down, and the trunk will be preserved on the lawn in front of Mr. Mozey's house. A young oak tree is to be planted by the Duchess of Leeds on the site of the trysting tree. The meaning of the word "humph" was recently the subject of judicial decision in the Irish Court of Appeal. Mr. Justice Madden and Mr. Justice Boyd held that "humph," as used by Sir Walter Scott and Miss Austen in their lovels, was an expression of dissent while the Lerd Chief Justice and Mr Justice Burton inclined to the conclusion that "humph" only meant a "dissatisfied condition of the mind." Court of Appeal has now decided that the word is "an expression of doubt or dissatisfaction," or, as Lord Justice Walker put it, in the words of the Century Dictionary," "a grunt of dissatisfaction."

The Sultan's decree that Turkish children shall not be educated in "the foreign way" any longer and that Turkish women shall not be allowed to have Christian companions has been received with different feelings, it is said. Several high officials are deeply displeased by the order, but one highly educated woman of rank, wife of a dignitary, is quoted as saying that her own experience had convinced her that it was much better to have no education than to learn what life might be, yet have to spend it in a harem. She had refused, therefore, to allow her own daughters to be educated as she had been, and regards the Sultan's decree as a wise one. A curious phenomenon was observed at the village of Le Ghazil, in the French Alps, recently. One day, towards evening, the inhabitants were disturbed by a loud rumbling in the vicinity of Mont Farand which in-creased in intensity. Looking toward the scene of the disturbance, the villagers were further startled by seeing bright flashes of fire. At first the un-usual spectacle was attributed to volcanic agencies, and a party of civil engineers set out to examine the cause of the phenomenon. They discovered that the intense dry heat had caused the chalk rocks on the summit of the mountain to crack and to break away in all directions. These rocks had decended the mountain like an avalanche, and being thickly veined with silex, in descending they had struck one another with terrific force, scattering brilliant showers of sparks in all directions, with such rapidity that they esembled one single sheet of flame.

Cheap Meals. "About the cheapest restaurant I ever visited or read about," said a man lately returned from England, "was a dining saloon in the Whitechapel dis-trict of London, where a relishing and fairly substantial meal may be had for a halfpenny, or one cent in our money. a halfpenny, or one cent in our money. This cheap repast is not served up in the shape of a cut from a joint and two vegetables. It is a big brown pie, very julcy and very hot. The absence of beefsteak is evident when you cut the pie, but you find inside a liberal sprinkling of sheep's liver, onions and turnips, and a plentiful supply of gravy. For a halfpeury extra two slices vy. For a halfpeuuy extra two slices of bread and a cup of tea are sup-plied. Between the hours of twelve and two the poor and hungry from all parts of the East End of the city flock parts of the East End of the city nock to the dining-room. Most of the patrons are shoeblacks, penny toy men, costermongers, and now and then young clerks whose salaries will not permit them to indulge in a more costly dinner."

It turns out that the late fire in the Sultan's palace was the result of a plot among the ladies of the harem. Too many wives can generally be depended on to make things warm for a man.— San Francisco "Bulletin."

HE following very remarkable story is told in "James Russell Lowell and His Friends," by Edward Everett Hale. He is writing of Sidney H. Gay, then managing editor of the New York "Tribune:"

"I have never seen in print Gay"

of the New York "Fibune."
"I have never seen in print Gay's story of that fearful night when Lincoln was killed. But one hears it freely repeated in conversation, and I see no reason why it should not be printed "With the news of the murder of Lincoln, there came to New York every other terrible message. The office of the 'Tribune,' of course, received echoes of all the despatches which showed the alarm at Washington. There were or-ders for the arrest of this man, there were suspicions of the loyalty of that man. No one knew what the morrow might bring.

"In the midst of the anxiety of such hours, to Mr. Gay, the acting editor of that paper, there entered the foreman of the typesetting-room. He brought with him the proof of Mr. Greeley's leading article, as he had left it before leaving the city for the day. It was a brutal, bitter, sarcastic, personal at-tack on President Lincoln—the man who, when Gay read the article, was dying in Washington. "Gay read the article, and asked the foreman if he had any private place where he could lock up the type, to which no one but himself had access. The foreman said he had. Gay bade him tie up the type, lock the galley with this article in his cupboard, and tell no one what he had told him urse no such article appeared in the 'Tribune' the next morning.

"But when Gay arrived the next day at the office, he was met with the news that 'the old man' wanted him, and the intimation that 'the old man' was very angry. Gay waited upon Greeley.

'Are you there, Mr. Gay? I have been looking for you. They tell me you ordered my leader out of this morning's Is it your paper or mine? should like to know if I cannot print what I choose in my own newspaper! This in a great rage.

"The paper is yours, Mr. Greeley. The article is in type upstairs, and you can use it when you choose. Only this, Mr. Greeley: I know New York, and I hope and believe, before God, that there is so much virtue in New York that, if I had let the article go into this morning's paper, there would not be one brick upon another in the bune" office now. Certainly, I should be sorry if there were." "Mr. Greeley was cowed. He said not a word, nor ever alluded to the subject again. I suppose the type is socked up in the cupboard of the Tribune' office at this hour.

that 'he kept Mr. Greeley up to the

A Boom Town. Bridgewater, Ontario, once a boom town of note, was brought into existence by one of the strangest gold finds and crazes in the history of this continent. Nearly thirty years ago a farmer's wife was searching the woods near their farm for a sow that had strayed, and, becoming thirsty, stopped to get a drink from a spring. Slipping, she fell upon a small, loose rock, which rolled to her feet, and which proved to he a twenty-pound nugget of pure gold. Bridegwater at that time was nearly forty miles from the nearest railroad, and the present site of the town was nothing but a wilderness but inside of six months what had been a burned-over, barren wilderness was converted into a substantial city of nearly five thousand people. In digging a shaft about a mile south of the town site, an immense quarry of the purest white marble was found, and the town was practically built of marbie, for it has to day the only hotel, church school, court house, and private dwellings constructed entirely of white marble in the world, and a mile north of the town are an abandoned axe factory and grist mill, whose foundations are built of the same beautiful material. And now comes the strangest part of the story. During the building of the town thousands of men prospected the entire country, and shafts and tunnels were driven-some of them nearly one hundred feet deep-but, strange as it may seem, there was never enough gold found to pay the cost of a single shaft or tunnel sunk or

A Sensible Bishop.

The Italian Bishop of Fano, reports "La Science pour Tous," has sent out to the priests of his diocese the following circular:

"1. In all churches, immediately after feast days on which there have been very large congregations, the floors must be disinfected by means of wood sawdust soaked in one-tenth per cent. solution of corrosive sublimate. On ordinary days they must be frequently swept, after sprinkling them with water so as to raise no dust.

"2. Every week, and even oftener the pews and confessionals must be cleaned with sponges and cloths moistened with pure water.

"3. Every week, and oftener if neare to be washed and polished. "4. The holy water receptacles must be emptied every week, or oftener if necessary, and washed with hot water or a solution of corrosive sublimate.' The same journal comments as fol-

"That the provisions of the circular may be carried out, the bishop has instituted a service of inspection, and requires the payment of fines into the diocesan treasury for transgression of any of these hygienic rules. It is to be desired that the Bishop of Fano's ex-ample should be imitated by church authorities in other countries."
