

RED ROSE TEA "IS GOOD TEA"

Girls are neater, more careful, and more cleanly than boys, so they are employed in the Red Rose factory to do all the packing and labelling.

It is a factory girls like to work in, and Red Rose Tea is a tea you will enjoy drinking. Everything is done to ensure it being absolutely pure and clean.

Will you try a package? Ask your grocer for it.

Liquor Dealers "Undesirables"

Most of the Big Fraternal Organizations Bar Them. Catholic Societies Which Exclude Them. Societies With a Membership of 7 Millions Put Ban on Saloon

Liquor dealers are undesirable citizens from the viewpoint of fraternal societies. The Catholic Order of Foresters is the latest organization to place a ban on saloon owners and the white-jacketed dispensers of alcoholic drinks.

The action taken in the national convention of that body in St. Paul is but a repetition of similar proceedings in national gatherings of a majority of fraternal organizations of all classes.

This movement, which has been going on for two decades, now shows a list of sixty-five fraternal orders in the United States which at the present time bar saloonkeepers, brewers, distillers or other men connected with the liquor traffic, more or less completely from their ranks. The total membership of these sixty-five societies is six and a half millions, and the tendency is constantly growing towards the complete exclusion of all who are in any way connected with the business of liquor selling. It shows that a vast number of American people look upon the liquor element as undesirable.

EXCLUDED IN MANY SOCIETIES. Many lodges of Elks, the society founded by actors and financed in many places by liquor dealers, have raised the bars on the future admission of saloonkeepers, and only the Eagles screech a welcome to their ranks.

Scores of labor organizations already have taken action along the same lines, by practically expelling craftsmen who abandon their former vocations to embark in the liquor traffic. With a few exceptions, the union cards of the former members have been taken up and they remain suspended until the saloon venture is given up.

Reasons of varying degrees have been advanced by the societies for the exclusion of liquor dealers. Those whose basis for existence is the fraternal life insurance plan, merely quote the vital statistics of the great life insurance companies showing a liquor dealer to be a "hazardous" risk.

The Independent Order of Foresters, who in 1895, declined to thereafter admit saloonkeepers, asserted that their presence was undesirable, their influence bad, and that reputable citizens would not join lodges listing them in their memberships.

"The fight for their exclusion was a long one," said Grand Master W. R. Humphreys, "and its justification was shown by the progress of the organization after they were barred. It was not a fight on individuals, but a class. A few saloonkeepers who antedate the decision still are members."

K. C. RULE IS RIGID.

A year later the Knights of Pythias decided a contest that had been waged in each national convention by following the lead of the Odd Fellows. Newer organizations avoided the contest by inserting clauses in the constitution barring the liquor dealers. The National Union, Royal Arcanum, Columbian Knights and others declined to receive applications from them. Efforts to exclude liquor dealers have been considered in several grand councils of the Masonic Order, and the grand councils of six states exclude them. Six years ago they showed their resentment to the attitude of the fraternal order by organizing the Royal Arch fraternal society. Its existence was short, and since its dissolution four years ago, no other effort to organize has been made.

The Knights of Columbus rule barring liquor dealers is particularly rigid and inclusive. It reads as follows:

"No person shall be eligible to membership in the Order of the Knights of Columbus who is engaged in the manufacture or sale, or the wholesale or retail, of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, including: (a) Proprietors of breweries and distilleries, and all officers thereof, except such employees as have no actual contact with the manufacture or sale thereof. (b) Proprietors and licensees of places selling liquor at wholesale or retail, and all employees of such places. (c) Proprietors of saloons and restaurants, where liquor is sold, and all employees whose business is in part or in whole to assist in the sale of such liquors. (d) Proprietors of grocery or department stores where liquor is sold, and all employees assisting in the sale of such liquors. (e) Waiters in clubs who serve intoxicating liquors."

A FORMIDABLE LIST.

A table, recently prepared, shows that nearly all the large fraternal and secret societies bar liquor dealers. Among the Catholic societies barring them, are the following, approximating a membership of 500,000:

Knights of Columbus	186,066
Catholic Order of Foresters	125,000
Catholic Benevolent Legion	19,875
Catholic Mutual Benefit Association	57,762
Ladies' Catholic Mutual Benefit Association	100,000
Other large fraternal and secret societies barring them are the following:
Independent Order of Odd Fellows	1,251,095
Independent Woodmen of America	813,642
Knights of Pythias	622,466
Woodmen of the World	459,211
Red Men	406,774
Knights of Macabees	325,000
Royal Arcanum	283,011
Order of United Workmen	145,693
Lady Macabees	62,444
National Union	70,439
Order of Heptasophs	40,126
Knights of Honor	92,000
Tribe of Ben Hur	61,000

Training Irish Children to be Irish.

Speaking the other day at a meeting called to aid the new college attached to the Franciscan Monastery in Dublin, Ireland, Very Rev. Father Augustine, O. S. F. C., dwelt on the importance of bringing up the children with a love for Ireland and for the Irish language. He expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large assemblage of people at the meeting, and he had the pleasure of addressing since last St. Patrick's day, our national apostle, in the Cathedral of Westminster, in the heart of London to a congregation of about 7,000 people. He was particularly glad that there were so many children there.

"The children," said he, "of the present day are our hope. If the children are taught Irish, and are brought up in an Irish spirit, all will go well in the future. If the children are not taught their native tongue, and are not thrilled with an Irish spirit, we cannot expect that they will afterwards be proud of their country, or work for her advancement and prosperity. I would, therefore, beg of the parents that have here today to remember that they children have the power of making their country thoroughly Irish, and I implore them to exercise that power. Give your children Irish names and do not go to the pages of English novels or to the ends of the earth in quest of empty, silly names for them. Tell your children that we have had heroes and martyrs and saints in this land of ours of whom any country should feel justly proud. Encourage them to study the history and the language of our own country, and whether they are going to primary or to secondary schools see that they are taught these subjects. Rap loudly at the doors of the schools where your children are not taught Irish; and demand as a right that they be instructed in their native tongue. Teachers of Irish can be easily procured at the present time. Those of them who know Irish already can easily and pleasantly learn the best method of teaching at Ballinacorney, the home of the Munster Training College. Those who do not know it can easily learn it in the summer school attached to the college, which is conducted by a very competent and successful teacher."

"But on an occasion like this you will naturally expect me to say a few words about our own college here in Rochester. With that college are inseparably bound up the name and the acts of Father Theobald Mathew, one of the purest souls, one of the greatest priests and one of the greatest men that ever lived in Ireland and worked for the Irish people. So great was his work and so widespread his fame, that as Archbishop Ireland says, Father Mathew is not only honored Cork, but he honored Ireland and the Irish race throughout the world. When the people of Ireland wish to testify the national gratitude by some enduring memorial one of the ways suggested by the great Nation newspaper was the establishment of a college linked with Father Mathew's name, in which our language, literature, and arts might be revived and extended. Thank God, that this dream has been, at least in part, fulfilled in the college of the Capuchin Franciscans Order in Ireland, of which he was such a distinguished member."

"Father Mathew in his day worked in three great fields of national labor. He worked in the industrial field, in the language field, and in the temperance field. Our mission is to carry on his work and perpetuate his spirit. Though the boys of the college have won coveted distinctions in the Intermediate and Fleming championships examinations yet more than any academic honors we prize the Irish spirit that animates them. This spirit lives on, not only in those who leave the college to enter the priesthood, but also in those who go forth to fight the battle of life in the world. As an instance of this, I may mention that in a certain part of the South of Ireland I recently met a boy who began Irish here in Rochester some few years ago. The boy was in every respect a thoroughgoing Gael. He wore clothes of Irish manufacture, he was a staunch abstainer, and during the several chats we had together in the course of a week he did not speak one word of English to me nor I to him."

"Please God, we shall continue in the future the work that we have begun. We began it under circumstances of great difficulty, but we are full of hope for the time to come. The hand of God is in the work, as my dear friend, Canon O'Leary, says, and the hand of God is able to brush aside every difficulty and to smash every obstacle. We shall continue to work for the glory of God and the honor of Ireland. We shall continue to labor for our country, our language, and our religion as long as the college stands here under the smile and blessing of St. Patrick and St. Brigid—two of the purest and brightest of the grand army of men and women who in bygone times won for our country the glorious title of the Island of Sages and Saints."

New Postal Regulations

BETWEEN CANADA & UNITED STATES

At a conference recently held at Washington between postal representatives of the United States and Canada, the postage on newspapers passing from Canada to the States was not only increased to sixteen times the former rate, but it was decided to make Canadian publishers affix stamps to the papers instead of paying on bulk weight as formerly. This necessitates an increase in the subscription price of THE TRUE WITNESS to subscribers in the United States to $1.50 instead of $1.00 per year, as formerly.

Our friends in the United States will kindly take notice when sending subscriptions and renewals.

Synopsis of Canadian North-West HOMESTEAD REGULATIONS

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 26, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, to the extent of one-quarter section of 160 acres, more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situated.

Entry by proxy may, however, be made on certain conditions by the father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of an intending homesteader.

The homesteader is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

(1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.

(2) If the father (or mother, if the father is deceased) of the homesteader resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.

(3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of his homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given the Commissioner of Dominion Lands at Ottawa of intention to apply for patent.
