fitably employed and give them to that great book which Ewald says "contains all the wisdom of the world."

We need more Christians with whom the Word of God has become the marrow of the bones and the iron of the blood. It is the Magna Charta of our Christian life. It should be the thing with which we begin the day. A good rule would be to read nothing until we have first read a portion of the sacred Word. The man of the world can find time to read the newspaper, no matter how many his engagements. He keeps it in his pocket and reads it on the cars as he goes to his work, or as he waits for his dinner. Keep the Bible about you, and use the occasional spare moment to scan its pages. The strong Christian must be nourished on the Word.

Helping.

The basket of blocks was on the ground, and three rather cross little faces looked down at it.

"It's too heavy for me," said Jimmy.

"Well, you're as big as I am, 'cause we are twins," said Nellie.

"I won't carry it," said the little cousin, with a pout.

Mamma looked from her open window and saw the trouble.

"One day I saw the picture of three little birds," she said. "They wanted a long stick carried somewhere; but it was too large for any one of them to carry. What do you think they did?"

"We don't know," said the twins.

"They all took hold of it together," said mamma, "and then they could fly away with it."

The children laughed and looked at each other. Then they all took hold together of the basket, and found it very easy to carry.

"The way to do all the hard things in the world," said mamma, "is for every one to help a little. No one can do them all; but every one can help."

How it Happened.

"Dear me!" said the Summer, While packing her grip And cleaning her house For a long Southern trip, "Here's a pot of red paint I've just found left over (I mixed it with white To colour the clover). I can't bear to leave it, It seems such a waste, And I can't take it with me, I'm in too great haste." Just then, as quickly She lifted her eye, A bush with green berries She saw standing by. She caught up her brush As quick as a wink, And said, with a laugh, "I'll use it, I think." So she laid on the paint With a regular splash, And made a red berry At every dash. And that's how it happened, In my autumn walks, I found that red bush With its fiery stalks. Now I've told you this tale, How it all came about, I'm sure you'll believe it Without any doubt.

Are You One

Of those unhappy people who are suffering with weak nerves, starting at every slight sound, unable to endure any unusual disturbance, finding it impossible to sleep? Avoid opiate and nerve compounds. Feed the nerves upon blood made pure and nourishing by the great blood purifier and true nerve tonic, Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner pills, assist digestion, prevent constipation. 25c.

—I love that tranquility of soul in which we feel the blessing of existence, and which in itself is a prayer and a thanksgiving.
