

You Have Known About Him All These Years ; But Have You Really Known Him ?

SINCE we stand upon the threshold of His birthday, let me introduce you to the most delightful young man in the world. You have never known Him as he really is; all the pictures ever drawn misrepresent Him. They have made Him out a weakling, a woman's features with a beard—He who for thirty years swung an adz and drove a saw through heavy timbers, who for long days tramped the borders of His loved-lake, and would not sleep indoors if He could slip away into His garden.

An outdoor man He was, a man's man who could stand watch when all His friends deserted Him in sleep, and could face the tempest in a little boat calm-eyed and unafraid.

They have called Him a pacifist. How could they forget that day, I wonder, when in the midst of the hard-faced crowd He stood, and braiding a little whip, drove them out before Him?

Think you it was only the glance of righteous anger in His eye that sent them scurrying? I tell you that behind that little whip were muscles of iron, made strong by many years of labor, and a spirit that never once knew fear, not even in the presence of the cross.

I have met men long-faced and sorrowful, wagging their heads bitterly over the evil of the world, and by their very joylessness adding to that evil. And in their hearts they supposed they were representing Him. Think of it—representing Him, to whom little children flocked with joyous laughter, and men, beseeching Him to have dinner with them in their homes.

You remember the first of His miracles—or perhaps you do not. Too often those who claim His name have preferred to forget that miracle. It does not fit in with the picture of Him that they have wrought.

He was at a wedding party with His mother and some friends where the merriment ran high. In the midst of it they came to Him in consternation. The wine had given out.

So He performed His first miracle. Just to save a hostess from embarrassment—and He thought it worth a miracle. Just to save a little group of simple folk from having their hour of joy cut short—it was for such a cause, He thought, that His divine power had been entrusted to Him.

No one ever felt His goodness a cloud upon the company. No one ever laughed less heartily because He had joined the group. His was the gospel of joyfulness; His the message that the God of men would have them travel happily with Him, as children by a Father's side, not as servants shuffling behind.

They killed Him, of course, in the end, and sometimes I am almost glad—glad that He died at thirty-three, with youth still athrob in His veins, and never an illusion lost or an ideal dimmed by age.

Claim Him, you who are young and love life; let no man dispute your claim.

For He, too, was young, and is! He too loved laughter and life. Old age and the creeds have had Him too long; I offer Him now to you—not in creed but in truth—Jesus of Nazareth, the joyous companion, the young man whom young men can love.—Bruce Barton, in December Red Book.

WALLBRIDGE

Under the direction of their teacher, Miss Roblin, the children of the public school held their annual entertainment. Santa Claus was on hand to delight the little folks.

The Sidney Town Hall cheese factory held their annual meeting on the 22nd. The meeting was well attended by stockholders, patrons and bank managers and agents.

OBITUARY

MILDRED V. WALLACE
Mildred V. Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Wallace, of West Huntingdon, died in this city yesterday as a result of vertigo.

She was born at West Huntingdon nearly 15 years ago and had lived there all her life. She belonged to the Presbyterian church. Mourning her death are her parents, one brother William and one sister Elizabeth. The remains were today sent to West Huntingdon by Messrs. Ticekell and Sons' Company.

ACTION DISMISSED

In the case of Herbert Mitchell against Adolphe Burgoyne for damages to a motorcycle as a result of a collision with defendant's automobile at the corner of Front and Campbell streets, the jury decided they should be fifteen dollars but found that there was negligence on the part of both. The county judge accordingly dismissed the action. Fraealek and Abbott for plaintiff; O'Flynn, Diamond and O'Flynn for the defendant. The action was incorrectly reported in last evening's issue as a verdict for the plaintiff for fifteen dollars.

Minister Arrested Near Tavistock

Rev. Otto Streckman, Lutheran minister of Sebastopol, near Tavistock was arrested Wednesday morning at his church by two plain-clothes men. It is reported that he has been arrested for some seditious act or utterance and that he has been taken to Toronto. No further particulars are yet available, according to enquiry.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Christmas, 1918

Written for The Ontario by Helen B. Anderson, Melville

We cannot hear with the shepherds,
That song that the angels sang,
As over the hills of Judah
Their glorious message rang
Of the Christ that was born in Bethlehem.
The Saviour meek and mild
Who left his home in glory
And became a little child.

It cannot be ours to hasten
Afar o'er Judean hills,
Led on by the glorious starlight
That beckoned thro' midnight still,
Not ours to give to him treasures
Of frankincense, myrrh and gold
Not ours to gaze on the graces
Of the Christ-child, manifold.

But ours to pause and listen
In life's anxious stress and strain
To catch through the by-gone ages
The spirit of that refrain.
To give to the world the glad message
The message of peace and love
That came that day with the Christ-child
From the heavenly host above.

And so may we catch the spirit
Of that first glad Christmas-tide,
That love and peace and gladness
Might in each heart abide,
And that we with the men of wisdom
May our best of treasures bring
To the Child that was born in a manger
The wonderful Christ and King.

NILES CORNERS

A number from here attended the sale of farm stock and implements at Mr. Wm. Monahan's, on the Lake Shore, on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. O. Spencer, Lake Shore, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ryan.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Quafe have moved into Mr. Hilton Clapp's house. We welcome them to our neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Ryan were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keech, Lake Shore, on Friday.

Dr. Curry, of Picton, was called in for consultation with Dr. Broad at the home of Mr. Fred Ellis last week. Mr. Ellis being dangerously ill with influenza. Mr. Earl Ellis also has the "flu" but glad to say he is not so ill.

Mr. Clarence Stephenson is suffering from an attack of influenza.

The many friends of Mrs. F. E. Neare were sorry to hear of her illness at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Way near Concession, and all hope for her a speedy recovery and an early return home.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Cruickshanks, of Melville, spent Friday night at the bedside of the latter's brother, Mr. Fred Ellis.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dafoe spent the week-end with relatives in Belleville.

Miss Quafe, who has been employed as bookkeeper in Toronto, returned home on Saturday after a severe sick spell.

Provisioned Han Warships at Sea

Friends of the Germans Pay Heavily For Breaking U.S. Neutrality.

San Francisco, Dec. 27.—C. D. Bunker and R. H. Swayne, shipping men, were fined $10,000 each by Federal Judge Van Fleet for connection with a conspiracy whereby the steamer Sacramento, provisioned German warships at sea in violation of American neutrality. George and James Flood, shipping men, were fined $5,000 each; Heinrich Kaufmann, chancellor of the former German consulate, $2,000, and T. W. Anderson, captain of the Sacramento, $1,000, for their connection with the conspiracy.

Eminent Scientists Believe Wilhelm Will Find Own Life

New York, Dec. 27.—It is quite likely the Kaiser did, as reported, try suicide; and it's quite likely he'll try again.

German Lead Suicide List

Prof. Enrico Morcelli, distinguished Italian authority, in his work on "Suicide," expressed this conclusion: "The highest suicide rates are given by countries of German race, and the two stocks, German and Scandinavian divide this supremacy. The centre of the purest German stocks is Saxony, the old and powerful land of the Teutons, and it represents a very high average. Equally great is the proportion in Lower Austria and Salz burg, which are almost pure in those of Leignitz, Potsdam, Merseburg, and Magdeburg of Prussia; in the German cantons of Switzerland and other places in which the German element prevails. The suicidal tendency is much smaller in the Anglo-Saxon stock."

"An Inherent Tendency"

George Kenman, the American authority says: "The extremely high suicide rate of the German peoples long ago attracted the attention of European sociologists. Suicide in Germany is almost as common among the children as among grown people. Between 1888 and 1903 there were 1125 suicides among the pupils of public schools in Prussia alone—and most of them were boys and girls under 15 years of age. An investigation made by the ministry of instruction showed that this prevalence of suicide among children was due to an inherent suicidal tendency in the race."

"Zur Selbstmordfrage"

The German schoolboy kills himself when his lessons go wrong, when he is punished—in other words when he doesn't win. In an analysis of suicides of 1,100 German school children, Prof. Eulenburg of Berlin found that nearly 400 were due either to fear of punishment or of humiliation, or inability to keep up with the school work.

"Suicides," says Kennon

"are part of the manifestations of national character. The Germans who came here 40 or 50 years ago brought a high suicide rate with them and their descendants maintain. The Irish, on the contrary, brought a low suicide rate to this country and their children have it still."

"Zur Selbstmordfrage"

In Prussia 30 years ago, the average number of suicides of children under 15 years was 35. Now it is between 85 and 90. The total for 1911 (the latest available statistics) was 87, and in the same year nearly 700 young Prussians between 15 and 26 years old killed themselves.

"Zur Selbstmordfrage" seems to be the German way of meeting a crisis.
