They not only do the work, but they have thus far defrayed the expense. More than 10,000 lost relatives have been found by them and they are establishing communication between separated relatives at the rate of more than 150 a day. Lists of "unfound relatives" are sent regularly to Switzerland, Great Britain and Holland in exchange for similar information received from there, resulting often in gratifying results, particularly concerning Belgian refugees. A compatent archivist from the national bureau of archives co-operates with the women in the direction of their card system, from which they can instantly locate the whereabouts of any one of 400,000 refugees.
