AT THE CHURCHES

Interesting Services Last Sunday Appropriate to the Day

The Methodist church on Armistice Day was honored by the visit of the Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs, accompanied by their officers and the Scoutmaster, all in uniform and mustering full strength with their Band, whose performance on the march to and from the service was the delight and admiration of the whole community.

History has a happy knack of repeating itself. The magnificence of this turnout most vividly recalled to the minds of some of the citizens present the Scouts' first Church Parade eleven years ago, in the year when Mr. J. D. Chambers was Mayor, and when the citizens as a community, with all the churches and the University taking a leading part in supporting Mr. Brown, organized themselves into the Boy Scout Association, which is still carrying on. Most of the boys who composed the First Wolfville Troop on that occasion "did their bit" in the Great War, in which some even gloriously paid the supreme sacrifice, while some of those who came back and are now "making good" in their several spheres as citizens, prominently identified themselves with their successors in the celebrations on Sunday.

The Rev. Dr. Hemmeon, who, like all his brethren in the ministry in the town, takes a very deep and active interest in this worthy movement, occupied the pulpit and gave an address that was timely and inspired. By way of introduction he informed the large congregation that the Methodists and Presbyterians of Wolfville had agreed to unite into one congregation to be called "The United Church of St. Andrews—Presbyterian and Methodist," and that beginning on the first Sunday in December next they would worship in the Presbyterian church in the town.

For that reason this the Girl Guides, Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs would visit the Methodist church. He was more than delighted to welcome them and especially to note how beautifully their band had played.

Then he supposed he must give them the text of his sermon. They would find it in Psalm 15, the question in the first verse, "Lord, who shall abide in Thy tabernacle?" He then explained to his fourth year, "He that sweareth to his own hurt, and changeth not." For the benefit of the Cubs he would explain that the Palmis were full of poetry and that this answer was a poetic way of saying, He that maketh a promise and will keep it even if it will hurt him to do it. He noted in passing that he had once asked a Girl Guide what was swearing profusely? She answered, "To use the name of God or Jesus Christ out of place." He challenged anybody to improve upon that answer. Let them take that definition of profane language to heart.

He divided his text into four parts: (1) What is a promise? A boy scout once told him that a promise was "when father says he'll take me fishing." That truly was a promise to the boy, although perhaps his teacher would not accept it as the correct definition, which he suggested was, "A promise is something we will, or will not do something." (2) Why should we make promises? Because everything that happens in the world is in fulfillment of God's promises and life is impossible without. (3) What promises should we make, and (4) Why should we keep our promises? The necessity of keeping one's promises was very effectively impressed upon every listener and the young visitors were especially reminded of the triple promise each of them had solemnly made—to Honor God, King and Country. In conclusion he declared that the only way we could keep God's promises was by faithfully fulfilling our promises to one another.

The service was purposely shortened to allow of everybody participating in the community prayer service at the base of the monument on the East Office lawn. The perfectly orderly in which the Guides, Cubs and Scouts, numbering 120, filed out of church under the personal direction of Scoutmaster Brown, was greatly admired by the congregation which remained seated as interested spectators. The procession, as reformed, comprised the color guard of the Girl Guides, Flora Patrician, Marjorie Warren and Sarah Wallace, carrying the Union Jack; the Boy Scout Band in charge of Harold Phinney and George McKenna, followed by the Scouts in charge of C. A. Patrician, George Nowlan and Waldo Davidson; the Girl Guides in charge of Captain Haley, Lieut. Perry and V. O. Nurse Harry; the Wolf Cubs led by Cub Norman Phinney and in charge of Wallace Barteaux, Malcolm Wallace and Doane Hatfield.

At St. Andrews church last Sunday morning the program was made quite interesting by the occasion. The congregation was fortunate in having as their minister for the day, Prof. James Faulkner, of Pine Hill College, who is

HARVESTING APPLES IN NOVA SCOTIA
(Inset Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Premier of Nova Scotia.)

"Nova Scotia is marketing one and one-half million barrels of apples this year," says Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Premier of that Province. "This is the largest apple crop of any Province in the Dominion. It is noteworthy that more than 25 per cent. of the land in Nova Scotia available for apple growing has been set out in trees. The fruit growing regions of this Province are capable of producing 20,000,000 barrels of merchantable apples yearly. That quantity would enable the giving of a carton of four rosy apples to every man woman and child on the face of the globe."

ADDRESSES SUNDAY SCHOOL

Mr. Arthur Hunt Chute addressed the Baptist Sunday School on Armistice Day. His address in part was as follows:

It was great to be alive in the days of the War, whether we lived or died. Why? Because we all had a cause bigger than self. Many have lost that cause beyond self and their country has slumped back to the old selfishness. What is the matter with Canada today? We're needing to recall in all classes and classes that we had in France and Flanders. Our ideal is to carry on in peace with the same practical idealism that made us great in war. A country worthy dying for is a country worth living for. Loyalty to our comrades gone means that we carry on with the same youth and courage which they gave in our behalf. In war time it is popular for everybody to serve their country. In peace time it is popular to say "Let George do it." Loyalty begins with our own town of Wolfville, and our own province of Nova Scotia. Our greatest hope is in boys and girls like you in this Sunday School because you still have air castles and dreams of something better.

always heard with pleasure by Wolfville people.

The service opened at 11 o'clock with two minutes of silence while the congregation stood, and was followed by a most earnest and appropriate prayer. The opening hymn was that old favorite selection from the psalter, the concluding stanza of which reads:

"Now for my friends and brethren's sakes
"Peace be in thee" I'll say,
And for the house of God our Lord
I'll sing thy good away.

Before beginning his address the preacher spoke briefly to the young, pointing out the obligation of striving to become educated Christian citizens in order to best serve the country that had been purchased for them by such a rich price. In place of the usual children's hymn, that beginning "Lord of all lands, beneath Thy bending skies," to the tune of "O Canada," was substituted and sung by congregation and choir.

Dr. Faulkner took as his subject, "International Christian Fellowship," which he stated was the slogan chosen by the big student conference recently held in Toronto to discuss the best means of world service. In an eloquent and scholarly address, which was listened to with close attention, the efficacy of Christian fellowship in the light of international well-being was presented as the only method by which the world conditions, now in a state of chaos, could be satisfactorily settled. The service closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

There was a large congregation at St. John's church last Sunday and appropriate hymns followed by the National Anthem were sung. The Rector made a brief reference to Armistice Day and recalled memories of its first celebration and the rejoicings and hopes in connection therewith. He also spoke on the religious outlook today, contrasting conditions that prevailed half a century ago with those obtaining today, and expressed the opinion that although there has been an apparent decline in the outward observance of Religion, the spirit of Christianity in its essentials, as evidenced by the widespread sense of human brotherhood and mutual human responsibilities, was a stronger factor than ever in human affairs.

November—and what weather! old Nova Scotia is certainly alright. Only a few days ago, mayflowers in full bloom and fragrant were found in Halifax Co. We read and hear of snow in the States and other parts of the world, even in Upper Canada, but none here yet.

BOARD OF TRADE

Holds Interesting Meeting—Passes Resolution re Harbor Improvement

The meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening was very well attended and a number of important matters were discussed and passed upon. President Graham was in the chair and after the reading and confirming of the minutes of the last session, called upon Mr. E. W. Robinson, M. P., who, he stated, had something of importance to present regarding proposed harbor improvements.

Mr. Robinson informed the meeting that the government had under consideration the matter of harbor dredging and wharf repairs in Wolfville, and that engineers had recently been here in the interests of the work. It was proposed that the wharf acquired by the government a few years ago be repaired and extended in order to accommodate the new boat which the C. P. R. is putting on the Minas Basin service next summer. They have also under consideration further dredging operations in connection with the harbor and a recommendation has been made that an amount be placed in the forthcoming estimates to provide for the cost of this important work. He advised that the Board make a strong plea for prompt action on the part of the government and that all interested in the shipping of the port use their influence in support of the Board's action.

In accordance with the suggestion of Mr. Robinson the following resolution was introduced and passed unanimously, and the Council was instructed to bring the matter to the attention of the proper authorities:

"Whereas the C. P. R. have given their assurance that beginning with the Spring of 1924 the service of a larger and better boat will be provided on the Minas Basin route;

"And whereas in order to permit Wolfville and surrounding country to enjoy the advantages of this proposed service better harbor facilities are essential at this port;

Therefore be it resolved by the Wolfville Board of Trade in regular session duly convened that the Dominion government be petitioned to effect the necessary repairs and additions on their wharf, pier, and to deepen and dredge the harbor and make whatever improvements are necessary in order to render the proposed service possible;

And furthermore be it resolved that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Parrsboro Board of Trade for their co-operation.

Aside from this the principle item of business before the meeting had reference to tourist travel in this province. President Graham reported fully on what had already been done and made a strong case in favor of more active measures being taken to present the attractions of Wolfville and vicinity and make preparations for suitably entertaining summer visitors to our town. Other members took part in the discussion and a number of suggestions were presented which should prove valuable for future action.

The desirability of having a sign on the main road at Grand Pre, directing motorists to the park and other points of interest, was referred to and the secretary was instructed to communicate with the Motor League with a view to interesting that organization in having this done.

Mr. G. C. Nowlan referred to an article which appeared in this paper last spring with reference to the absence of any suitable memorial at Grand Pre in honor of Col. Noble and his brave followers who fell in the long ago massacre at that place, and urged that some action should be taken to have the omission corrected. The idea was cordially supported by other speakers, who expressed the hope that something would be soon undertaken along the line suggested.

Owing to the departure from Wolfville of Dr. Coit, a vacancy was caused in the Council which, on motion, Mr. J. E. Shaw was appointed to fill.
