Synopsis of Canadian North-West Land Regulations

Any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old may homestead a quarter section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. The applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-agency for the district. Entry by proxy may be made at any agency, on certain conditions by father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister of the homesteader.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres solely owned and occupied by him or by his father, mother, son, daughter, brother or sister.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter section alongside his homestead. Price $5.00 per acre.

Duties—Must reside upon the homestead or pre-emption six months in each of six years from date of homestead entry (including the time required a homestead patent) and cultivate fifty acres extra.

A homesteader who has exhausted his homestead rights and cannot obtain pre-emption may enter for a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $5.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate fifty acres and erect a house worth $500.00.

Your Soldier Boy Wants HICKEY'S TWIST

No matter where he is, or what other tobacco he can get, the Island soldier who chews tobacco is never satisfied with anything but HICKEY'S TWIST.

In hundreds of letters from the boys in Flanders, France, England and the training camps, they ask for HICKEY'S TWIST—and the 10th took along 20,000 figs with them.

Send your soldier boy a pound of HICKEY'S with the next parcel.

An Indulgence of Seven Years

We have been asking the meaning of this and similar terms found in the various grants of indulgences. The following explanations are found in Maurer's Standard work on indulgences: "In thus granting an indulgence of a certain defined number of days, weeks or years, the Holy See does not thereby intend a corresponding abridgement of the pains of purgatory. Such phraseology has reference merely to the penance enjoined by the ancient rules or canons of the Church. All are agreed in this. Wherefore an indulgence of a hundred days or a year, for example, is the remission of as much temporal punishment as would have been formerly atoned for, before God, by a canonical penance of a hundred days or a year. Hence it would be useless to try to ascertain the amount of purgatorial sufferings redeemed or remitted by such a penance. God alone knows this and we accordingly ought to leave it to his infinite mercy.

"To indulgences of years in length the Holy Father often adds an equal number of quarantines. The quarantines have reference to the Lenten fast. Accordingly, an indulgence of seven years and as many quarantines, e. g. means the remission of a temporal penalty corresponding to seven years of canonical penance, joined to the special austerities of seven Lenten days.

A Mother's Love

The most beautiful thing in life is a mother's love. It begins with stitches in a tiny garment and it outlasts the grave. Some mothers may be unkind but rarely. These are the exceptions. The love that the mother bears for her son follows him through babyhood, school days, young manhood and fatherhood, through all his successes and defeats. In honor or disgrace, it utterly owns him. A stain can never attach itself to him; for always it is he who is wronged by the world. To his mother he can confidently turn on any occasion under any circumstances. In her he finds always the same tender parent who sought dawning light in his baby face, and the secret of his greatness has lain hidden in her heart as she has pondered over its promise. The realization of her dream cannot fail, for she sees its fruition beyond the end of life itself. The mother of the condemned criminal with the halter about his neck knows that he is pure, knows he is innocent, knows he has never in his life told her a lie. It is not blindness; it is revelation, prophetic of something not yet attained in racial development. The mother has this power of vision. She can see in a shapeless bit of life she lives of an unending succession of men. She has also the strength of faith that is unshakable. It approaches the divine. If heaven may be found at all on earth it is in the heart of mother. There is no life a woman will not live, no death she will not die for her children. She makes a home what it is and, while maintaining unbroken relations with the home she loves, builds a family circle of her own. In all the complex relationships she nobly bears her part. Man's life may be diverse and all-absorbing and difficult, but it is as nothing to the experience of the mother who has borne and laid away and lived all that life has to offer.

Art of Letter Writing

Progress in letter writing keeps pace with other arts, as it must in this very practical workaday age. Professor Reynolds gave an interesting resume before the Salt Lake chapter of the American Institute of Banking as to the part good letter writing plays in modern business. Nowadays the man who can indite a fetching letter is useful to every branch of business. Business forms and stereotyped phrases have run their course. The letter that gets more than casual attention must have a message put in concise terms that go right to the point. Neither the recipient, who may be a busy man, nor the domestic household of the man who mixes hyperbole with cold facts, will tolerate airy periffage in a letter beginning in this fashion: "I take my typewriter on my lap to write you these few lines to let you know that I am well and hope you are the same"; yet millions of epistles were begun in similar forms when the pen only was used to address a letter. Many a youth in bygone years found suitable language in the Handy Letter Writer and Compendium of Business forms for the most fearsome epistle of his existence—and got a reply favorable or unfavorable, copied from the same authority. But customs change with the times. The form letter is in the discard with other antiquated business methods, and Mr. Reynolds truly says letter writing in business is coming into its most useful era and will play a more important part in business in the future than ever before.

A Fable

No parish affair was ever held without the assistance of John Jones. When he was not secretary he was chairman and when he was not chairman he was secretary or treasurer. He was a pillar of the Church. The Do-Nothings saw much to criticize in John's activities. He had a swelled head, they said. Likewise he was too officious. And besides, why didn't he give somebody else a chance? John's activities cost him time and money. Nobody ever thought of that. Do-Nothings seldom do think. And so they merrily beat the devil. Merely? Verily! The chorus grew until it reached John's ears. He learned that he thought he was somebody; even though he knew he was only an ordinary fellow. He had been trying to get out of soliciting ads for programs, donating prizes for Euchre, selling tickets for entertainments, distributing window cards, and such, for some time. He smiled inwardly. The wife had been at him, too. Two and two make four; that settled it. At the next Parish Affair he was listed as a member of the Floor Committee. For the first time in five years he had a good time at a Parish Affair. His wife did, too. The attendance was somewhat smaller than usual; but that was on account of the war. The program lacked a few of its usual ads; but times were hard. A few of the handsome and costly prizes were missing; but well. If they don't want to give, you can't make them. So chanted the Parish Blacksmiths. Some one was missing; that was the trouble. The other active workers knew it. The Pastor knew it. Jones knew it but he was too decent to say anything. The knucklers knew it but they would not admit it. Moral—Anybody can swing a hammer, but it requires brains to produce results beyond mere heat.

Story From Real Life

Stepping into a train while on a trip recently I took the seat near the front of the car, which was occupied by a young girl of about sixteen. After being seated I heard a sigh, and glancing aside noticed the sad, longing expression in the eyes of my seat-mate. I reached over and grasped her hand, and asked if I could be of any service to her. Tears welled up in her eyes and then she told me her history. She was sixteen years of age, and came from one of our small Kentucky towns, and now was on her way to live with a maiden aunt who was the only one that ever spoke kindly to her. When she was five years old she lost her mother, and all she remembered was to be driven by a whip, then, later on her father married again, and it went on just the same. She never had any one to ask her to do anything in a kind way; it was go do this, or do that, or I will get this whip and crack you over the head.

She just existed in this way, so her aunt had told her to ask God to help her, and He would at the time He thought best, soften her father's heart by granting the request to live with her aunt, which had been refused so often before. She had not been taught in her childhood about God, only the teaching from her aunt, but now that this request was granted, she has hopes of a change in her father, so he will be kind to her brothers, and not use the whip. She told me that she did not have the same feeling for her parents that other children had, and that this was what made her sad. You fathers and mothers, what right have you to mistreat these little ones? Now by this I do not mean to let them grow up like weeds, but do not bound them continually with the whip. Ask them to do their work in a kind but firm manner, and they will mind all right, for I am speaking from my own experience. I had a very unhappy life, for it is not worth repeating how much misery drink brings, but I taught my children to love and respect me, and now they are settled in life, their first thought is, let us go to see mother. We have many financial disappointments, but are happy in our love for each other. Begin at once and try kindness, and you will see that I am right, and your children will grow up and call you blessed.

Beware of the Mosquito

"Perhaps our first and best defense against malaria lies in the habitual and scrupulous use of mosquito nets at night," says Glenn Herriek, who presumably knows as much as there is to know on the subject of malarial mosquitoes. Every one who lives in mosquito regions knows whether those mosquitoes are of the malarial sort or not, knows that the ordinary screens do not keep all mosquitoes out, and that those curious little insects have a way of wedging their bodies through meshes much smaller than their girth. The fact that only three of the sixty species of mosquitoes to be found in the United States actually carry malaria and that only one carries yellow fever should not make us careless in preventing their bite. Of course the most effective way of exterminating mosquitoes is that of draining swamps or pouring oil upon them where they cannot be drained. But no individual housewife or mother can make this draining or oiling method effective. When mosquitoes come or when you go where mosquitoes are, refrain from sitting out doors after dark as carefully as your grandmother did who had a strange belief that there were certain humors in the

NERVE TROUBLES AND PALPITATION OF THE HEART GO HAND IN HAND.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitate and throbs fast for a time, then so slow as to seem almost to stop, it causes great anxiety and alarm. When the heart does this many people are kept in a state of morbid fear of death, and become nervous, weak, worn and miserable. To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief. Mrs. Thomas Davidson, Mount Brydges, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer in the past with nerve troubles and palpitation of the heart. I tried several remedies, but without any good results. My son came in one day and advised me to take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. After using one and a half boxes I am fully recovered, and am in a perfect state of health, thanks to your valuable medicine."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. night air destructive to health. The night air itself is harmless enough, but not so the mosquitoes who do their worst work after sundown. And after you have retired take Prof. Herriek's advice and sleep under a net. The proper sort of net is one that is made of fairly fine weave. It should not be slashed up the middle and should be put on entire over the top of the bed and should be so made that in getting under it you raise it entirely from the bottom. In the bottom there should be reads or slender slats so as to hold it down. And, of course, an effort should be made to prevent even one mosquito getting under it with you when you retire.

Here is a good balm for the mosquito bite that Prof. Herriek is good enough to give. Of course, it does not mend matters if you have been stung by malarial mosquitoes, but if you have not—or even if you have, for that matter—it makes the actual stinging less annoying. It is simply a 2 per cent solution of carbolic acid, which any druggist will put up for you. A dilute solution of ammonia may be more convenient to have on hand, as it is not poisonous. Pyrethrum, or the ordinary dalmatian or Persian insect powder, may be sprinkled about to stupefy mosquitoes already in the room. Sometimes it can be blown on them when they are in their usual position on the screen by one of the little atomizers that come for that purpose. Once stunned, they should be swept up and destroyed before they come to life.

MILBURN'S LINIMENT CURES DYPHTHERIA.

"Why did you leave your last place?" asked the boss. "I didn't leave. It left me." "Rather strange, I should say." "Not at all. I worked in an ammunition factory."

Librarian—Look here, this bust of Shakespeare is on the pedestal marked "Scott." Cleaner—Sorry, sir; he must have got his base on an error, sir. "Your husband, madam, is suffering from voluntary inertia." "Poor fellow! And here I've been telling him he's just lazy."

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

Sweeten The Breath. They stimulate the sluggish liver, clean the coated tongue, sweeten the breath, clear away all waste and poisonous material from the system in nature's easy manner, and prevent as well as cure constipation, heartburn, catarrh of the stomach, sour stomach, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, jaundice, sallow or muddy complexion, and all diseases arising from a disordered or diseased condition of the liver. As an "after dinner" pill they are most valuable, relieving that "full or bloated feeling" and preventing indigestion. Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c per vial, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
